

Harbard College Library

FROM Thoridike.

1818.

DUKE UNIVERSITY LIBRARY

Treasure Room

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2011 with funding from Duke University Libraries

http://www.archive.org/details/historyofnewham01belk

THE

HISTORY

OB

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

VOLUME I.

COMPREHENDING THE EVENTS OF ONE COMPLETE CENTURY FROM THE DISCOVERY OF THE RIVER PASCA FAQUA.

Br JEREMY BELKNAP, A.M.

Member of the American Philofophical Society held at Philadelphia for promoting ufeful Knowledge.

Tempus edax rerum, tuque invidiofa vetuftas Omnia deftruitis : vitiataque dentibus ævi Paulatim lenta confumitis omnia morte. Hec perflant.

OVID.

PHILADELPHIA:

FRINTED FOR THE AUTHOR BY ROBERT AITKEN, 118 MARKET STREET, NEAR THE COFFEE-HOUSE.

> M. DCC. LXXXIV. 1784,

I DO certify, that on this 18th day of June, 1784, a Book, intitled, "The Hiftory of New Hampfbire, Vol. I. by Jeremy Belknap," printed at Philadelphia by Robert Aitken, was entered according to Act of Affembly in the Prothonotary's office of Philadelphia county by Ebenezer Hazard, Efquire, in behalf of the author. J. B. SMITH, Prothon.

PREFACE.

HEN a new publication appears, fome prefatory account of the reafons which led to it, and the manner in which it has been conducted, is generally expected.

The compiler of this hiftory was early impelled by his natural curiofity to enquire into the original fettlement, progrefs, and improvement of the country which gave him birth. When he took up his refidence in New-Hampfhire his enquiries were more particularly directed to that part of it. Having met with fome valuable manufcripts which were but little known, he began to extract and methodize the principal things in them; and this employment was (to fpeak in the ftyle of a celebrated modern author) his "hobby " horfe."

The work, crude as it was, being communicated to fome gentlemen, to whofe judgment he paid much deference, he was perfuaded and encouraged to-go on with his collection, until the thing became generally known, and a publication could not decently be refufed.

He owns himfelf particularly obliged to the public officers both in this and the neighbouring ftate of Maffachufetts, under the former as well as the prefent conftitutions, for their obliging attention in favouring him with the use of the public records or extracts from them. He is under equal equal obligation to a number of private gentlemen, who have either admitted him to their own collections of original papers or procured fuch for him. In the courfe of his enquiry he has frequently had reafon to lament the lofs of many valuable materials by fire and other accidents : But what has pained him more feverely is the inattention of fome perfons in whofe hands original papers have been deposited, and who have fuffered them to be wasted and destroyed as things of no value. The very great utility of a public repository for fuch papers under proper regulations, has appeared to him in the strongest light, and he is perfuaded that it is an object worthy the attention of an enlightened legislature.

The late accurate and indefatigable Mr. PRINCE of Bofton, (under whofe ministry the author was educated and whofe memory he shall always revere) began fuch a collection in his youth and continued it for above fifty years. By his will he left it to the care of the Old South Church, of which he was paftor, and it was deposited with a library of ancient books in an apartment of their meeting-houfe. To this collection, the public are obliged for fome material hints in the prefent work, the author having had frequent accefs to that library before the commencement of the late war. But the ufe which the British troops in 1775 made of that elegant building having proved fatal to this noble collection of manufcripts; the friends of science and of America must deplore the irretrievable lofs. Had we fuffered it by the hands of SARACENS, the grief had been lefs poignant !

Historians have mentioned the affairs of New-Hampshire only in a loofe and general manner. Neale

Neale and Douglas, though frequently erroneous, have given fome hints, which by the help of original records and other manufcripts, have in this work been carefully and largely purfued. Hutchinfon has faid many things which the others have omitted; his knowledge of the antiquities of the country was extensive and accurate, and the public are much obliged by the publication of his hiftory; but he knew more than he thought proper to relate. The few publications concerning New-Hampshire are fugitive pieces dictated by party or intereft. No regular historical deduction has ever appeared. The late Mr. FITCH of Portfmouth made a beginning of this fort about the year 1728 : From his papers fome things have heen collected which have not been met with elfewhere. The authorities from which information is derived are carefully noted in the margin. Where no written teftimonies could be obtained. recourfe has been had to the most authentic tradition, felected and compared with a fcrupulous attention, and with proper allowance for the imperfection of human memory. After all, the critical reader will doubtlefs find fome chafms which in fuch a work it would be improper to fill by the help of imagination and conjecture.

The author makes no merit of his regard to truth. To have difguifed or mifreprefented facts would have been abufing the reader. No perfon can take more pleafure in detecting miftakes than the author in correcting them if he fhould have opportunity. In tracing the progrefs of controverfy it is impossible not to take a fide, though we are ever fo remote from any perfonal intercft in it: Cenfure or applaufe will naturally follow the opinion we adopt. If the reader fhould happen pen to entertain different feelings from the writer, he has an equal right to indulge them; but not at the expence of candor.

The Mafonian controverfy lay fo directly in the way that it could not be avoided. The rancour fliewn on both fides in the early ftages of it has now fubfided. The prefent fettlement is fo materially connected with the general peace and welfare of the people, that no wife man or friend to the country can at this day wifh to over throw it.

Mr. HUBBARD, Dr. MATHER and Mr. PEN-HALLOW have published narratives of the feveral Indian wars: These have been compared with the public records, with ancient manuscripts, with CHARLEVOIX's history of New-France, and with the verbal traditions of the immediate fufferers or their descendants. The particular incidents of these wars may be tedious to strangers, but will be read with avidity by the posterity of those whose missfortunes and bravery were so confpicuous. As the character of a people must be collected from such a minute feries, it would have been improper to have been less particular.

The writer has had it in view not barely to relate facts, but to delineate the characters, the paffions, the interefts and tempers of the perfons who are the fubjects of his narration, and to defcribe the most firiking features of the times in which they lived. How far he has fucceeded, or wherein he is defective, must be left to the judgment of every candid reader, to which this work is most refpectifully fubmitted.

Dover, June 1, 1784.

CON-

(vii)

CONTENTS.

CHAP. I.

DISCOVERY of the country. Establishment of the council of Plymouth. Their grants to Mason and others. Beginning of the settlements at Portsmouth and Dover. Whelewright's Indian purchase. Neale's adventures. Discouragements. Dissolution of the council. Mason's death. Causes of the failure of his enterprize. Page 1.

- II. Troubles at Dover. Settlements of Excter and Hampton. Story of Underhill. Defertion of Mafon's tenants. Combinations at Portfmouth and Dover. Union of New-Hampfbir'e with Maffachufetts. 32
- III. Observations on the principles and conduct of the first planters of New-England. Cause of their removal. Their religious sentiments. Fortitude. Care of their posterity. Justice. Laws. Principles of government. Theocratic prejudices. Intolerance and perfecutions. 60
- IV. Mode of government under Maffachufetts. Mafon's efforts to recover the property of his anceftor. Transactions of the king's commissioners. Opposition to them. Internal transactions. Mafon discouraged. 100

V. Remarks

.10

- V. Remarks on the temper and manners of the Indians. The first general war with them, called Philip's war. 120
- VI. Mafon's renewed efforts. Randolph's miffion and transfactions. Attempts for the trial of Mason's title. New-Hampsbire separated from Massachusetts and made a royal province. Abstract of the commission. Remarks on it. 164

VII. The administration of the first council. Mafon's arrival. Opposition to him. His departure. State of trade and navigation. 175

- VIII. The administration of Cransfield. Violent meafures. Infurrections. Mason's fuits. Profecution of Moody and Vaughan. Arbitrary meafures. Complaints. Tumults. Weare's agencyin England. Cransfield's removal. Barefoote's administration. 188
 - IX. Administration of Dudley as prefident, and Andross governor of New-England. Mason's further attempts. His disappointment and death. Revolution. Sale to Allen. His commission for the government. 228
 - X. The war with the French and Indians, commonly called King William's war. 242

XI. The civil affairs of the province during the administrations of Usher, Partridge, Allen, the Earl of Bellamont and Dudley, comprehending the whole controversy with Allen and his heirs. 288

XII. The war with the French and Indians, called Queen Anne's war. Conclusion of Dudley's and Usher's administration. 329

Appendix.

CHAP.

CHAP. I.

Difcovery of the country. Establishment of the Council of Plymouth. Their Grants to Majon and others. Beginning of the fettlements at Portsmouth and Dover. Whelewright's Indian purchase. Neal's adventures. Discouragements. Dissolution of the Council. Mason's death. Causes of the failure of his enterprize.

T is happy for America that its difcovery and fettlement by the Europeans happened at a time, when they were emerging from a long period of ignorance and darknefs. The difcovery of the magnetic needle, the invention of printing, the revival of literature and the reformation of religion, had caufed a vaft alteration in their views, and taught them the true use of their rational and active powers. To this concurrence of favourable caufes we are indebted for the precifion with which we are able to fix the beginning of this great American empire : An advantage of which the historians of other countries almost universally are destitute ; their first aras being either difguifed by B fiction fiction and romance, or involved in impenetrable obfcurity.

Mankind do not eafily relinquish ancient and established prejudices, or adopt new fystems of conduct, without fome powerful attractive. The prospect of immense wealth, from the mines of Mexico and Peru, fired the Spaniards to a rapid conquest of those regions and the destruction of their numerous inhabitants; but the northern continent, prefenting no fuch glittering charms, was neglected by the European princes for more than a century after its discovery. No effectual care was taken to fecure to themfelves the poffeffion of fo extensive a territory, or the advantage of a friendly traffic with its natives, or of the fishery on its coafts; till private adventurers at a vaft expence, with infinite hazard and perfevering zeal, eftablifhed fettlements for themfelves, and thereby enlarged the dominions of their fovereigns.

Of the voyagers who vifited the northern coaft of America, for the fake of its furs and fifh, one of the most remarkable was Captain John Smith; who ranged the shore from Penobscot to Cape Cod, and in this route discovered the river Pascataqua; which he found to be a safe harbour with a rocky a rocky fhore. He returned to England in one of his ships, and there published a defcription of the country, with a map of the fea-coaft, which he prefented to Prince Charles, who gave it the name of New-ENGLAND. The other ship he left behind under the care of Thomas Hunt, who decoyed about twenty of the natives on board and fold them for flaves at Malaga. This perfidious action excited a violent jealoufy in the natives, and bitterly enraged them against fucceeding adventurers. Two of those favages having found their way back as far as Newfoundland, then under the government of Captain John Mason, were restored to their native country by his friendly interpofition, and reported the ftrong difapprobation, which the English in general entertained of the mifchievous plot by which they had been carried off. By this means, together with the prudent endeavours of Captain Thomas Dermer, and afterward of the Plymouth fettlers, tranquillity was re-eftablished between the Indians and the adventurers, which was tolerably preferved for many years. However fond we may have been of accufing the Indians of treachery and infidelity, it must be confeffed that the example was first fet them by 1614.

3

Smith's Voyage.

Hubbard's Narrative of the troubles with the Indians, p. 3.

1614.

by the Europeans. Had we always treated them with that juffice and humanity which our religion inculcates, and our true intereft at all times required, we might have lived in as much harmony with them, as with any other people on the globe.

1620. ~

Gorges's Narrative.

Nov. 3.

The importance of the country now began to appear greater than before, and fome measures were taken to promote its fettlement. A patent had been granted by King James in 1606, limiting the dominion of Virginia, from the thirty-fourth, to the forty-fourth degree of northern latitude; which extent of territory had been divided into two parts, called North and South Virginia. The latter was affigned to certain noblemen, knights and gentlemen of London, the former to others in Briftol, Exeter and Plymouth. Those who were interested in the northern colony, finding that the patent did not fecure them from the intrufions of others, petitioned for an enlargement and confirmation of their privileges. After fome time, the king, by his fole authority, conftituted a council, confifting of forty noblemen, knights and gentlemen*, by the name of " The

* The Duke of Lenox, Marquis of Buckingham, —————Hamilton, Earl of Pembroke, Earl

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

" The council established at Plymouth, in " the county of Devon, for the planting, " ruling and governing of New-England, " in America." They were a corporation with perpetual fucceffion, by election of the majority; and their territories extended from the fortieth to the fortyeighth degree of northern latitude. This patent, or charter, is the foundation of all the grants that were made of the country of New-England. But either from the jarring interests of the members, or their indiffinct knowledge of the country, or their inattention to bufinefs, or fome other caufe which does not fully appear, their affairs were transacted in a confused manner from the beginning; and the grants which they made were fo inaccurately defcribed, and interfered fo much with each other, as to occafion difficulties and controverfies,

Earl of Warwick, Vifcount Haddington, Lord Zouche, ---- Sheffield, - Gorges. Sir Edward Seymour, ---- Robert Manfel, -----Edward Zouche, - Dudley Digges, -Thomas Roe ----- Ferdinando Gorges, ----- Francis Popham, ---- John Brooks, ----- Thomas Gates ----- Richard Hawkins, -Richard Edgecombe, Sir Allen Apfley, -----Richard Cotchmay, ---- John Bourgchiere, ----- Nathaniel Rich, -----Edward Giles, --- Giles Mompeffon, ---- Thomas Wroth, Knights. Matthew Sutcliffe, Robert Heath. Henry Boungchiere, John Drake, Rawley Gilbert, George Chudley, Thomas Hammond, John Argall, Efquires.

5

1620.

MS Copy in Super.

Court files.

1620. ~~ troverfies, fome of which are not yet ended.

Hume.

Two of the most active members of this council were Sir Ferdinando Gorges and Captain John Mafon. Gorges had been an officer in the navy of Queen Elizabeth, intimately connected with Sir Walter Raleigh, of whofe adventurous fpirit he had a large fhare. After the peace which King James made in 1604, he was appointed governor of the fort and illand of Plymouth in Devonshire. While he refided there, Captain Weymouth, who had been employed by Lord Arundel in fearch of a northwest passage, but had fallen short of hiscourfe and put in at Pemaquid, brought from thence into the harbour of Plymouth, five natives of America, three of whom were eagerly feized by Gorges, and retained in his fervice for three years. Finding them of a tractable and communicative difpofition, and having won their affections by gentle treatment, he learned from them many particulars concerning their country, its rivers, harbours, iflands, fifheries and other products; and the numbers, force, difpofition and government of the natives; and from this information he conceived fanguine hopes of indulging his genius, and making his fortune, by a thorough rough difcovery of the country. For this purpose he, in conjunction with others, ventured feveral ships, whereof fome met with peculiar misfortunes; and others brought home accounts, which, though difcouraging to fome of his affociates, made him determine upon farther attempts, wherein his refolution and perfeverance were more confpicuous than any folid gain. These transactions were previous to the eftablishment of the council; in foliciting which, Gorges was fo extremely active, that he was appointed their prefident, and had a principal fhare in all their tranfactions. Mason was a merchant of London, but became a fea-officer, and, after the peace, governor of Newfoundland, where he acquired a knowledge of America, which led him, on his return to England, into a clofe attachment to those who were engaged in its difcovery; and upon fome vacancy in the council, he was elected a member and became their fecretary; being also governor of Portfmouth in Hampfhire. He procured a grant from the council, of all the land from the river Naumkeag, [now Salem] round Cape Anne, to the river Merrimack; and up each of those rivers to the farthest head thereof; then to crofs over from the head of the one to IG20. Gorges's Natrative.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

1621. March 9.

1622. Aug. 10.

to the head of the other; with all the islands lying within three miles of the coaft. This diffrict was called MARIANA. The next year another grant was made, to Gorges and Mafon jointly, of all the lands between the rivers Merrimack and Sagadehock, extending back to the great lakes and river of Canada, and this was called LACONIA.

Under the authority of this grant, Gorges and Mafon, in conjunction with feveral merchants of London, Briftol, Exeter, Plymouth, Shrewfbury and Dorchefter, who ftyled themfelves " The Com-" pany of Laconia," attempted the eftablifhment of a colony and fifhery at the river Pascataqua; and in the spring of the following year fent over David Thompfon, a Scotfman, Edward and William Hilton, fishmongers of London, with a number of other people, in two divisions, furnished with all necessaries to carry on their defign. One of these companies landed on the fouthern fhore of the river, at its mouth, and called the place Little-Harbour : Here they crected falt-works, and built an houfe which was afterward called Mafon-Hall; but the Hiltons fet up their ftages eight miles further up the river toward the northwest, on a neck of land land which the Indians called Winnichahannat, but they named Northam, and afterward Dover. Thompfon, not being pleafed with his fituation, removed the next fpring to an illand in the Bay of Maffachufetts; this the General Court afterward confirmed to him and ftill bears his name.

1621. \sim

These fettlements went on but flowly for feveral years, but the natives being peaceable and feveral other fmall beginnings being made along the coaft as far as Plymouth, a neighbourly intercourfe was kept up among them, each following their respective employments of fishing, trading and planting, till the diforderly behaviour of one Morton, at Mount Wollaffon in the Bay of Maffachufetts, caufed an alarm among the fcattered fettlements as far as Pascataqua. This man had, in defiance of the king's proclamation, made a practice of felling arms and ammunition to the Indians, whom he employed in hunting and fowling for him; fo that the English, feeing the Indians armed in the woods, began to be in terror. They alfo apprehended danger of another kind; for Morton's plantation was a receptacle for difcontented fervants, whofe defertion weakened the fettlements, and who, being 1623. Hubbard's MS.

1624.

Prince's Annals.

1628.

Prince's Annals.

1629.

May 17.

ing there without law, were more formidable than the favages themfelves. The principal perfons of Pafcataqua therefore readily united with their neighbours, in making application to the colony of Plymouth, which was of more force than all the reft, to put a ftop to this growing mifchief; which they happily effected by feizing Morton and fending him prifoner to England.

Some of the fcattered planters in the Bay of Maffachufetts, being defirous of making a fettlement in the neighbourhood of Pafcataqua, and following the example of those at Plymouth, who had purchased their lands of the Indians, which they confcientioufly thought neceffary to give them a just title, procured a general meeting of Indians, at Squamfcot falls, where they obtained a deed from Paffaconaway Sagamore of Penacook, Runnaawitt of Pantucket, Wahangnonawitt of Squamfcot, and Rowls of Newichwannock: wherein they exprefs their ' defire to have the English come and · fettle among them as among their coun-' trymen in Maffachufetts, whereby they ' hope to be ftrengthened against their ' enemies the Tarrateens; and according-'ly with the universal consent of their · subjects, · fubjects, for what they deemed a valua-· ble confideration in coats, fhirts and ' kettles, fell to John Whelewright of the " Maffachufetts Bay, late of England, mi-' nifter of the gofpel, Augustine Story [or ' Storer] Thomas Wight, William Went-' worth, and Thomas Leavit, " all that " part of the main Land bounded by the " river Pafcataqua and the river Merri-"mack, to begin at Newichwannock " falls, in Pafcataqua river aforefaid, and " down faid river to the fea; and along " the fea-fhore to Merrimack river; and up " faid river to the falls at Pantucket; and " from thence upon a northweft line, " twenty English miles into the woods; " and from thence upon a ftrait line north-" east, till it meet with the main rivers " that run down to Pantucket falls, and " Newichwannock falls aforefaid*; the " faid rivers to be the bounds from the " thwart or head line to the aforefaid " falls, and from thence the main chan-" nel of each river to the fea to be the " fide bounds; together with all the iflands " within the faid bounds; as alfo the ifles of

* The NW line here deferihed will end within the townfhip of Amherft; and the NE line from thence will croß the river Merrimack about Amufkeeg falls; and paffing through Chefter, Nottingham, Barrington and Rochefter will firike Newichwannock river about ten miles above the Salmon falls.

" of fhoals fo called." The conditions of this grant were, ' that Whelewright ' fhould within ten years, begin a plan-• tation at Squamfcot falls; that other in-' habitants fhould have the fame privi-· leges with him; that no plantation should ' exceed ten miles fquare; that no lands · fhould be granted but in townships; and · that thefe fhould be fubject to the govern-' ment of the Maffachufetts colony, until ' they should have a fettled government ' among themfelves; that for each town-· fhip there fhould be paid an annual ac-' knowledgement of "one coat of trucking " cloth," to Paffaconaway the chief Sag-' amore or his fucceffors, and two bufh-' els of Indian corn to Whelewright and · his heirs. The Indians referved to them-' felves free liberty of fifhing, fowling, ' hunting and planting within thefe limits.' The principal perfons of Pascataqua and the province of Maine were witneffes to the fubfcribing of this inftrument, and giving poffeffion of the lands.

By this deed the English inhabitants within these limits obtained a right to the foil from the original proprietors, more valuable in a moral view, than the grants of any European prince could convey. If we finile at the arrogance of a Roman Pontiff in in affuming to divide the whole new world between the Spaniards and Portuguefe, with what confiftency can we admit the right of a king of England, to parcel out America to his fubjects, when he had neither purchased nor conquered it, nor could pretend any other title, than that fome of his fubjects were the first Europeans who difcovered it, while it was in poffeffion of its native lords? The only validity which fuch grants could have in the eye of reafon was, that the grantces had from their prince a permiffion to negotiate with the poffeffors for the purchase of the soil, and thereupon a power of jurifdiction fubordinate to his crown.

M5 Copy in Super. Court files.

The fame year Captain Mafon procured a new patent, under the common feal of the council of Plymouth, for the land "from the middle of Pafcataqua river and "up the fame to the fartheft head there-"of, and from thence northweftward until "fixty miles from the mouth of the har-"bour were finished; also through Mer-"rimack river, to the fartheft head there-"of, and fo forward up into the land weft-"ward, until fixty miles were finished; "and from thence to cross over land to "the end of the fixty miles accounted from "Pafcataqua river; together with all "islands

Nov. 7.

MS in files of Superior Court.

Gorges's Hifl. of America, p. 48.

" iflands within five leagues of the coaft." This tract of land was called New-HAMP-SHIRE: It comprehended the whole of Whelewright's purchafe; and unlefs Mafon's intention was to frustrate his title, it is difficult to affign a reafon for the procurement of this patent, as the fame land, with much more, had been granted to Gorges and Mafon jointly, feven years before. If there was an agreement between them to divide the province of Laconia, and take out new patents from the council, in preference to the making a deed of partition; it is not eafy to conceive why the weftern boundary fhould be contracted to fixty miles from the fea, when the lakes and river of Canada were supposed to be but ninety or an hundred miles from Pafcataqua. If this grant was intended as an equivalent for the patent of Mariana, which the council had the preceding year included in their deed to the Maffachufetts company; it is impoffible to account for the extension of New-Hampshire to the river Merrimack, when the grant of Maffachufetts reached to " three miles north " of that river and of every part of it*." The

* Mr. Hubbard in his MS hiftory fays " it hath been affirmed by Mr. Joffelyn, who first came over into New England on Captain Mason's account, that there was an agreement made between Mr.

14

The weft country adventurers were not lefs attentive to their intereft; for in the following fpring they obtained a patent from the council whereby " all that part " of the river Pafcataqua called or known " by the name of Hilton's Point, with " the fouth fide of the faid river up to " the falls of Squamfcot, and three miles " into the main land for breadth," was granted to Edward Hilton. This patent, fealed with the common feal of the council, and fubfcribed by the Earl of Warwick, fets forth, that Hilton and his affociates had at their own proper coft and charges transported fervants, built houfes and planted corn at Hilton's Point, now Dover, and intended the further increase and advancement of the plantation. William Blackftone, William Jefferies and Thomas Lewis or either of them, were impowered to give poffeffion of the premifes ;

MS Copy in Proprietary Office.

July 7.

1631.

Mr. Mathew Cradock the first Governor of the Maffachufetts company) and Captain John Mafon, that the bounds of the Maffachufetts fould reach to three miles northward of Merrimack and the remainder of the land betwixt that line and Palcataqua river, should be left for Captain Mason's patent".

The commiffioners fent by Charles II in 1664, report that " Mr. Mafon had a patent for fome land about Cape Anne before the Maffachufetts had their first patent; whereupon Captain Mafon and Mr. Cradock agreed that the Maffachufetts should have that land, which was granted to Captain Mafon about Cape Anne, and Captain Mason should have that land, which was beyond Merrimack and granted to the Maffachufetts. This agreement was fent to Mr. Henry Jocelyn to get recorded at Bolton, but before he could have leifure to go there he heard that Captain Mafon was dead and therefore went not. Of this he made affidavit, before the commissioners". Hutch. Collection Papers, p. 423.

1630.

 \sim March 12. 1631. mifes; which was done by Lewis and the livery and feizin endorfed. Within these m limits are contained the towns of Dover. Durham, and Stretham, with part of Newington and Greenland. It was commonly called Squamfcot patent, but fometimes Bloody-point patent, from a quarrel between the agents of the two companies about a point of land in the river which was convenient for both; and there being no government then eftablished, the controverfy would have ended in blood, if the contending parties had not been perfuaded to refer the decifion of it to their employers.

> The London adventurers alfo thought it prudent to have fome fecurity for the interest which they had advanced, and accordingly obtained agrant from the council, of " that part of the patent of Laco-" nia, on which the buildings and falt-" works were erected, fituate on both " fides the harbour and river of Pafcata-" qua to the extent of five miles west-" ward by the fea-coaft, then to crofs " over towards the other plantation in -" the hands of Edward Hilton." The grantees named in this patent * were, Sir Ferdinando

* Mr. Hubbard fays, that this patent was in the hands of fome gentlemen at Portfmouth when he wrote. I have feen no copy of it but what is preferved in his MS hiftory. There is among the ancient files in the Recorder's office, an invoice of goods fent over in 1631, fubscribed by all the above names, except the last, in whofe flead is fubfcribed William Gyles.

Hubbard's MIS.

Novem. 3.

Hutch.vol. I. p. 316.

Ferdinando Gorges, Captain John Mafon, John Gorton, Henry Gardner, George Griffith, Edwin Gay, Thomas Warnerton, Thomas Eyre and Eliezer Eyre, who, it is faid, had already expended three thousand pounds in the undertaking. They were to pay forty-eight pounds per annum by way of acknowledgment to the prefident and council, if demanded. Captain Camocke, a relation of the Earl of Warwick, with Henry Jocelyn, who were then intending a voyage here were appointed to put the grantees in poffeffion. Within this patent are comprehended the towns of Portfinouth, Newcaftle, and Rye, with part of Newington and Greenland.

The whole intereft being thus divided into two parts, Captain Thomas Wiggen was appointed agent for the upper, and Captain Walter Neal for the lower plantation; with him were affociated Ambrofe Gibbons, George Vaughan, Thomas Warnerton, Humphry Chadbourne and one Godfrie as fuperintendants of the feveral bufineffes of trade, fifhery, falt-making, building and hufbandry. Neal refided at Little-Harbour with Godfric who had the care of the fifhery. Chadbourne built an houfe at Strawberry-bank, which was called the great houfe, in which Warnerton C 1631.

17

Hubbard's MS.

MS Letters. 1631.

refided. Gibbons had the care of a fawmill, and lived in a palifaded houfe at Newichwannock, where he carried on trade with the Indians. He afterward removed to Sander's-point, where the adventurers gave him a fettlement for his faithful fervices. He was fucceeded at Newichwannock by Chadbourne, whofe posterity are perfons of principal figure / and interest there at this day. The proprietors were alfo careful to provide for the defence of their plantations, and fent over feveral cannon which they directed their agents to mount in the most convenient place for a fort. They accordingly placed them on the northeast point of the Great-Island at the mouth of the harbour, and laid out the ground " about a bow-" fhot back from the water-fide to an high " rock, on which it was intended in time " to build the principal fort."

A great part of Captain Neal's errand was to penetrate the interior part of the province of Laconia, concerning which the adventurers had formed very fanguine expectations. It was defcribed as containing divers lakes, and extending back to a great lake and river in the country of the Iroquois. This river was faid to be fair and large, containing many fruitful iflands;

MS in the Recorder's files.

Gorges's Hift. of America, p. 47.

iflands; the air pure and falubrious; the country pleafant, having fome high hills; full of goodly forefts, fair vallies and fertile plains; abounding in corn, vines, chefnuts, walnuts, and many other forts of fruit; the rivers well ftored with fifh, and environed with goodly meadows full of timber-trees. In the great lake were faid to be four iflands, full of pleafant woods and meadows, having great ftore of stags, fallow-deer, elks, roe-bucks, beavers and other game, and thefe iflands were fuppofed to be commodioufly fituated for habitation and traffic, in the midft of a fine lake, abounding with the most delicate fish. No one who is acquainted with the interior part of the country in its wilderness state, can forbear smiling at this romantic defcription, penned in the true style of adventurers: yet fuch an impreffion had the charms of Laconia made on the minds of our first fettlers, that Neal fet out on foot, in company with Jocelyn and Darby Field, to difcover thefe beautiful lakes, and fettle a trade with the Indians by pinnaces, imagining the diftance to be fhort of an hundred miles. In the courfe of their travels, they vifited the white mountains, which they defcribed in the fame romantic style, to be a C 2 ridge, 19

1631.

1632. Jocelyn's rarities of New-England. ridge, extending an hundred leagues, on which fnow lieth all the year, and inacceffible but by the gullies which the diffolved fnow hath made : on one of thefe mountains they reported to have found a plain of a day's journey over, whereon nothing grows but mofs; and at the further end of this plain, a rude heap of massy stones, piled up on one another a mile high; on which one might afcend from scne to stone, like a pair of winding flairs, to the top, where was another level of about an acre, with a pond of clear water. This fummit was faid to be far above the clouds, and from hence they beheld a vapor like a vast pillar, drawn up by the fun-beams, out of a great lake into the air, where it was formed into a cloud. The country beyond thefe mountains northward, was faid to be " daunting terrible," full of rocky hills, as thick as mole-hills in a meadow, and clothed with infinite thick woods. They had great expectation of finding precious ftones on thefe mountains; and fomething refembling chryftal being picked up, was fufficient to give them the name of the CHRYSTAL-HILLS. From hence they continued their route in fearch of the lake; till finding their provision almoft

Hubbard's MS Hift. almoft fpent, and the forefts of Laconia yielding no fupply, they were obliged to return when they fuppofed themfelves fo far advanced, that " the difcovery wanted " but one day's journey of being fi-" nifhed*."

This expedition, being ended, was fucceeded by one of another kind. The coaft was alarmed by the report of a pirate, one Dixy Bull; who with fifteen others, being employed in the Indian trade at the eastward, had taken feveral boats and rifled the fort at Pemaguid. Neal, in conjunction with the others, equipped four pinnaces and shallops, manned with forty men, being all the force that both plantations could fpare, who, being joined by twenty more in a bark from Bofton, proceeded to Pemaquid; but contrary winds and bad weather obliged them to return without meeting the pirates, who made their way farther to the caftward, and at length got to England; where Bull met with his deferts. The company on their return hanged, at Richmond's island, an Indian who had been concerned in the murder of an Englishman.

1632.

Gorges's Hift. of America, p. 48.

November.

Prince's Annals, vol. 2. p. 73. 83.

The

* Mr. Hubbard, and after him Governor Hutchinfon, p'ace this difcovery of the White Hills in 1642. But as Neal had politive orders to difcover the lakes, and tarried but three years in the country, employing great part of his time in fearching the woods, it is probable that Mr. Hubbard miftook one figure in his date. The next year Neal and Wiggen joined in furveying their refpective patents, and laying out the towns of Portfmouth and Northam, and another which was called Hampton, though no fettlement had been made there. They alfo agreed with Whelewright that the plantation which he had undertaken to make at Squamfcot falls, fhould be called Exeter ; and determined the bounds between his land and theirs. This furvey was made by order of the company of Laconia, who gave names to the four towns, and the tranfaction was duly reported to them ; foon after which Neal returned to England.

From a number of letters that paffed between the adventurers and Gibbons their factor, and which are yet preferved, it appears that their views were chiefly turned toward the difcovery of the lakes and of mines; the cultivation of grapes, and the advantages of trade and fifhery; and that little regard was had to agriculture, the fureft foundation of all other improvements in fuch a country as this. They often complain of their expences, as indeed they might with reason; for they had not only to pay wages to their colonists, but to fupply them with provisions, clothing, utenfils, medicines, articles of trade, implements

MS in Recorder's Office.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

ments for building, hufbandry and fifting, and to flock their plantations with cattle, fwine, and goats. Bread was either brought from England in meal, or from Virginia in grain, and then fent to the wind-mill at Bofton, there being none erected here. Very little improvement was made on the lands; the lakes were not explored; the vines were planted but came to nothing; no mines were found but those of iron, and thefe were not wrought; three or four houfes only were built within the first feven years; the peltry trade with the Indians was of fome value, and the fifthery ferved for the fupport of the inhabitants; but yielded no great profit to the adventurers, who received but inadequate returns in lumber and furs. They faw their intereft finking apace, and grew difpirited; and the major part of them either relinquished the defign, or fold their shares to Mafon and Gorges, who were more fanguine than the reft, and became (either by purchafe or tacit confent of the others) the principal, if not fole proprietors. Thefe gentlemen renewed their exertions with greater vigour, fent over a fresh supply of fervants, and materials for carrying on the fettlement, and appointed Francis Williams their governor. He was a gentleman of good

1633.

23

Prince's Annals, vol. 2. p. 30. 70.

1634. Hubbard's MS Hift.

1635.

Gorges's Narrative, p. 22 & 44. good fenfe and diferention; and fo very acceptable to the people, that when they combined in a body politic they continued him at their head.

The charter by which the council of Plymouth was established, had been from the beginning difrelished by the Virginia company; who fpared no pains to get it revoked. Their applications to the king proved fruitles; but when the parliament began to enquire into the grievances of the nation, this patent was complained of as a monopoly. Sir Ferdinando Gorges, being fummoned, appeared before them, and both in perfon and by his council defended it in a mafterly manner, but in vain; for when the national grievances were prefented to the throne, the patent of New-England was the first. The council alfo had got into difrepute with the highchurch party, for having encouraged the fettlement of the Plymouth and Maffachufetts colonists, who fled from their perfecutions. These prejudices against them, operating as difcouragements to their undertaking, induced the council to refign their charter to the king; having previoully taken care to fecure fome portion of the expiring intereft to fuch of themfelves as were difpofed to accept it. The scheme they they had in view was to divide their territory into twelve provinces, under as many proprietary governors, fubject to one general governor; and they went fo far as to nominate Gorges, then threefcore years of age, for the perfon, and build a fhip of war, which was to bring him over and remain in the fervice of the country. But the ship fell and broke in the launching; and their project not being fufficiently attended to by those in power, they were obliged to be content with fuch grants as they could make, of those districts, into which they had divided the country. That which was now made to Mafon comprehended both his former patents, extending from Naumkeag to Pafcataqua, and fixty miles northweftward within the land, together with the fouth half of the Ifles of Shoals, and ten thoufand acres at Sagadahock; faving to those already fettled within thefe limits, the property of their lawful grants on paying " fome " fmall acknowledgment" to the proprietor. This grant was dated the twentyfecond of April*. In June following the council

1635.

Hubbard's MS Hift.

Files of the Sup. Cour.

Hubbard's MS Hift.

• Whether Capt. Mafon had his title confirmed by the king after the furrender of the charter is a point that has been queftioned. I shall here collect what evidence I have met with on both fides.

In a pamphlet published in 1729, containing a detail of the grants

25

Printed State of Allen's Title. council furrendered their charter to the king; and in September Gorges fold to Mafon a tract of land on the northeaft fide of the river Pafcataqua, extending three miles in breadth, and following the courfe of the river from its mouth to its fartheft head, including the faw-mill which had been built at the falls of Newichwannock. But death, which puts an end to the faireft profpects, cut off all the hopes grants and transactions of Capt. Malon, it is faid "K. Charles I. " by charter dated Aug. 19, 1635, gives, grants and confirms unto " Capt. John Mason, then called treasurer and paymaster of his " army, his heirs and affigns, all the aforefaid tract of land grant-" ed to him by the council of Plymouth, by the name of the pro-" vince of New-Hampshire; with power of government, and as am-" ple jurifdiction and prerogatives as used by the bishop of Dur-" ham; creating him and his aforefaids abfolute lords and proprietors " of the province of New-Hampshire, with power of conferring " honours," &c. On this authority (I fuppofe) Douglas has afferted the fame thing. On which Hutchinfon remarks " This is " not prohable. His heirs were certainly unacquainted with it, " or they would have made mention of it before the king in coun-" cil in 1691." The report of the Lords Chief Juffices in 1677, wherein the feveral grants are recited, makes no mention of this : But on the contrary it is faid, " As to Mr. Mafon's right of govern-" ment within the foil he claimed, their lordships, and indeed his " own council, agreed he had none; the great council of Plymouth, " under whom he claimed, having no power to transfer govern-" ment to any." The Lords of Trade in a report to the king in 1753, fay, " It is alledged that this laft grant to Mafon was ratified " and confirmed by the crown, by charter dated Aug. 19, 1635, " with full power of civil jurifdiction and government, but no fuch " charter as this appears upon record."

which

None of Mason's heirs ever attempted to affume government by virtue of fuch a charter, as the heirs of Gorges did in the province of Maine. Robert Mason was appointed councellor by mandamus, and Samuel Allen, who purchased the title, was governor by commission from the crown.

There is an original letter in the Recorder's files, written by George Vaughan to Ambrofe Gibbons, both factors for the company of Laconia, April 10, 1635, long before any controverfy arole on this point, which may give more light to it than any thing that has yet been published. I shall give it a place in the Appendix.

Doug. Summary, I. 418. Hift. Maff. I. 317.

which Mafon had entertained of aggrandizing his fortune, by the fettlement of New-Hampshire. By his last will, which he figned a few days before his death, he difposed of his American estate in the following manner, viz. 'To the corporation · of Lynn Regis in Norfolk the place of ' his nativity, he gave two thoufand acres ' of land in New-Hampshire, subject to the yearly rent of one penny per acre to ' his heirs, and two fifths of all mines ' royal; on condition that five families · fhould within five years be fettled there-' upon. To his brother in law John Wal-' lafton, three thousand acres, subject to ' the yearly rent of one fhilling. To his ' grandchild Anne Tufton, ten thoufand ' acres at Sagadahock. To Robert Tufton, · his grandfon, he gave his manor of "Mafon-hall, on condition that he fhould ' take the firname of Mafon. He alfo ' gave to his brother Wallaston in trust, • one thousand acres for the maintenance of "an honeft, godly and religious " preacher of God's word;" and one ' thousand more for the support of a grammar-school; each of these estates ' to be conveyed to feoffees in truft, ' and their fucceffors, paying annually f one penny per acre to his heirs. The · refidue

1635.

 \sim

Nov. 26.

HISTORY, OF

' refidue of his eftate in New-Hampshire · he gave to his grandfon John Tufton, ' he taking the firname of Mafon, and to · his lawful iffue; or in want thereof to · Robert Tufton and his lawful iffue; or ' in want thereof to Doctor Robert Mason. · chancellor of the diocefe of Winchefter, ' and his lawful iffue; or, in want of fuch ' iffue, to his own other right heirs for-' ever; provided that it fhould not go out ' of the name of Mafon. The reliduary · legatee was required to pay five hundred ' pounds out of this estate to his fister ' Mary, and all the grandchildren were ' to relinquish their right to one thousand ' pounds due from this eftate to their fa-' ther Joseph Tufton.' The eftate in America was valued in the inventory at ten thousand pounds sterling.

The Maffachufetts planters viewed Mafon as their enemy, becaufe he with Gorges had privately encouraged fome perfons whom they had cenfured and fent home, to petition againft them as difaffected to the government; and had endeavoured to get their charter fet afide, to make way for the fcheme of a general governor^{}.

But

* Mr. Hubbard relates the following anecdote, without mentioning the name of the perfon. "One of the gentlemen who " was

MS in Sup. Court files.

28

But though Mafon and Gorges had not the fame religious views with the Maffachusetts planters, yet their memory deferves refpect. They were both heartily engaged in the fettlement of the country; they funk their effates in the undertaking, and reaped no profit to themfelves; yet their enterprizing fpirit excited emulation in others, who had the advantage of improving their plans and avoiding their mistakes. Gorges accounted for the ill fuccefs of his adventures in the following manner. I. He began when there was no hope of any thing for the prefent but lofs; as he had first to feek a place; which, being found, was a wildernefs; and fo gloomy was the profpect, that he could fcarce procure any to go, much lefs to refide in it; and those whom he at length fent, could not fubfift but on the provisions with which he fupplied them. 2. He fought not barely his own profit, but  was known to be one of the greateft adverfaries to the affairs of  the Maffachufetts, fell fick and died. In his ficknefs he fent  for the minifler, and bewailed his enmity againft them : and  promifed if he recovered, he would be as good a friend to New- England, as he had been an enemy; but his fatal hour heing  come, his purpofes of that nature were cut off. The paffage  aforegoing was certified by letters from lord Say and others to  the governor of New-England about the year 1635." Governor Winthrop has the following remark in his Journal.

Gorges's Narrative, p 49.

" 1636. The laft winter Captain Mafon died. He was the chief "mover, in all attempts againft us; and was to have fent the ge-"neral governor; and for this end was providing fhips. But the "Lord in mercy taking him away, all the bufinefs fell on fleep." 29 but the thorough discovery of the country; wherein he went fo far (with the help of his affociates) as to open the way for others to make their gain. 3. He never went in perfon to overfee the people whom he employed. 4. There was no fettled government to punish offenders, or mifpenders of their masters goods. Two other things contributed to the difappointment in as great, if not a greater degree than what he has affigned. The one was that inftead of applying themfelves chiefly to hufbandry, the original fource of wealth and independence in fuch a country as this; he and his affociates, being merchants, were rather intent on trade and fishery as their primary objects. These can not be profitable in a new country, until the foundation is laid in the cultivation of the lands. If the lumber trade and fishery can not now be carried on to advantage, without the constant aid of hufbandry in their neighbourhood, how could a colony of traders and fifhermen make profitable returns to their employers, when the hufbandry neceffary for their fupport was at the diftance of Virginia or England? The other miftake which these adventurers fell into was the idea of lordship, and the granting of lands not not as freeholds, but by leafes fubject to quit-rents. To fettle a colony of tenants in a climate fo far northward, where the charges of fubfiftence and improvement were much greater than the value of the lands, after the improvements were made; efpecially in the neighbourhood of fo refpectable and growing a colony as that of Maffachufetts, was indeed a chimerical project; and had not the wifer people among them fought an union with the Maffachufetts, in all probability the fettlements muft have been deferted. 1635.

1635.

CHAP.

CHAP. II.

Troubles at Dover. Settlements of Exeter and Hampton. Ruin of Mafon's interest. Story of Underhill. Combinations at Portsmouth and Dover. Union of New-Hampshire with Massachusetts.

THILE the lower plantation on the river Pascataqua lay under difcouragement by the death of its principal patron, the upper fettlement, though carried on with more fuccefs, had peculiar difficulties to ftruggle with. Two thirds of this patent belonged to fome merchants of Briftol, the other third to fome of Shrewfbury; and there was an agreement that the division should be made by indifferent men. Captain Wiggen who was fent over to superintend their affairs, after about one year's refidence in the country made a voyage to England, to procure more ample means for carrying on the plantation. In the mean time those of Briftol had fold their intereft to the lords Say and Broke, George Willys and William Whiting, who continued Wiggen in the agency, and procured a confiderable number of families in the Weft of England, fome of whom were of good estates, eftates, and " of fome account for religi-" on," to come over and increase the colony. It appears from ancient records that Wiggen had a power of granting lands to the fettlers; but, as trade was their principal object, they took up fmall lots, intending to build a compact town on Dover Neck, which lies between two branches of the river, and is a fine, dry, and healthy fituation; fo high as to command all the neighbouring fhores, and afford a very extensive and delightful prospect. On the most inviting part of this eminence they built a meeting-houfe, which was afterward furrounded with an entrenchment and flankarts, the remains of which are still visible. Wiggen also brought over William Leverich, a worthy and able puritan minister; but his allowance from the adventurers proving too fmall for his fupport in a new country, where all the neceffaries of life were fcarce and dear, he was obliged to remove to the fouthward; and fettled at Sandwich in the colony of Plymouth. This proved an unhappy event to the people, who, being left deflitute of regular instruction, were exposed to the intrufions of artful impoftors.

The first of these was one Burdet. He had been a minister at Yarmouth in England; but either really or pretendedly taking

1633. Hubbard's MS Hift. Dover Records.

1634. Hubbard's

MS Hift.

33

1634. ing offence at the extravagancies of the bishops and spiritual courts, came over to New-England, and joined with the church in Salem, who employed him for a year or two as a preacher, being a good fcholar and plaufible in his behaviour. But, difgusted with the strictness of their difcipline, he removed to Dover; and continued for fome time in good efteem with the people as a preacher; until by artful infinuations he raifed fuch a jealoufy in their minds against Wiggen their governor, that they deprived him of his office, and elected Burdet in his place.

> During his refidence here, he carried on a correspondence with Archbishop Laud to the difadvantage of the Maffachufetts colony, reprefenting them as hypocritical and difaffected, and that under pretence of greater purity and discipline in matters of religion, they were aiming at independent fovereignty; it being accounted perjury and treafon by their general court, to fpeak of appeals to the king. The prelate thanked him for his zeal in the king's fervice, and affured him that care fhould be taken to redrefs those diforders when leifure from their other concerns would permit. This letter of the archbishop was intercepted, and shewn to the governor of Maffachusetts. Burdet's villainy lainy was confidered as the more atrocious, becaufe he had been admitted a freeman of their corporation, and had taken the oath of fidelity. A copy of his own letter was afterward found in his clofet.

1636.

1637.

About this time, the Antinomian controverfy at Bofton having occafioned the banishment of the principal perfons of that fect, feveral of them retired to this fettlement, being without the jurifdiction of Maffachufetts. When this was known, Governor Winthrop wrote to Wiggen, Burdet and others of this plantation, 'that • as there had hitherto been a good corre-' fpondence between them it would be ' much refented if they fhould receive the exiles; and intimating the intention of the general court to furvey the utmost · limits of their patent, and make use of them.' To this Burdet returned a fcornful answer, refusing to give the governor his title. The governor thought of citing him to court to answer for his contempt; but was diffuaded from it by Dudley, the deputy-governor, who judged it imprudent to exafperate him, left he should avenge himself by farther accusing them to their enemies in England. The governor contented himfelf with fending to Hilton an account of Burdet's behavi-D 2 our, our, inclosing a copy of his letter, and cautioning the people not to put themfelves too far under his power. His true character did not long remain fecret ; for being detected in fome lewd actions he made a precipitate removal to Agamenticus [now York] in the province of Maine, where he alfo affumed to rule, and continued a courfe of injuffice and adultery till the arrival of Thomas Gorges, their governor, [in 1640] who laid a fine on him, and feized his cattle for the payment of it*. He appealed to the king, but his appeal not being admitted, he departed for England full of enmity against these plantati-When he arrived, he found all in ons. confusion; and falling in with the royalifts was taken and imprifoned by the parliamentary party, which is the laft account we have of him.

1638.

One of the exiles on account of the Aptinomian controverfy, was John Whelewright, brother to the famous Anne Hutchinfon. He had been a preacher at Braintree, which was then part of Bofton, and was a gentleman of learning, piety and zeal. Having engaged to make a fettlement within ten years, on the lands he had

* The records of the court mention him as " a man of ill name " and fame, infamous for incontinency." Lib. A. Sept. 8th, 2640. had purchased of the Indians at Squamfcot falls, he with a number of his adherents began a plantation there, which according to the agreement made with Mafon's agents they called Exeter. Having obtained a difinifion from the church in Bofton*, they formed themfelves into a church; and judging themfelves without the jurifdiction of Maffachufetts, they combined into a feparate body politic, and chofe rulers and affiftants, who were fworn to the due difcharge of their office, and the people were as folemnly fworn to obey them. Their rulers were Ifaac Groffe, Nicholas Needham, and Thomas Wilfon ; each of whom continued in office the fpace of a year, having two affiftants. The laws were made in a popular affembly and formally confented to by the rulers. Treafon, and rebellion against the king, (who is ftyled "the Lord's anointed") or the country, were made capital crimes; and fedition was punishable by a fine of ten pounds, or otherwife, at the diferetion of This combination fubfifted the court. three years.

About

John Whelewright, Richard Merrys, Richard Bulgar, Philemon Purmot, Ifaac Groffe,

* The names of those who were thus difmiffed were, Chriftopher Marthall, George Baytes, Thomas Wardell, William Wardell. (Botton Chh. Records). Exeter Records.

1638.

About the fame time a plantation was formed at Winnicumet, which was called Hampton. The principal inducement to the making this fettlement was the very extensive falt-marsh, which was extremely valuable, as the uplands were not cultivated fo as to produce a fufficiency of hay for the fupport of cattle. With a view to fecure thefe meadows, the general court of Maffachusetts had [in 1636] empowered Mr. Dummer of Newbury, with John Spencer, to build an houfe there at the expence of the colony, which was to be refunded by those who should fettle there. Accordingly an houfe was built, and commonly called the Bound-houfe; though it was intended as a mark of poffeffion rather than of limits. The architect was Nicholas Eafton, who foon after removed to Rhode-Island, and built the first English house in Newport.

MS of Mr. Gookin.

Callender's Century

^cermon,

93.

Maffa. Records.

Maffa. Records, Sep. 8, 1538. This entrance being made, a petition was prefented to the court by a number of perfons, chiefly from Norfolk in England, praying for liberty to fettle there, which was granted them. They began the fettlement by laying out a townfhip in one hundred and forty-feven fhares; and having formed a church, chofe Stephen Batchelor for their minister, with whom whom Timothy Dalton was foon after affociated. The number of the first inhabitants was fifty-fix*.

38

The authority of Maffachuletts having established this fettlement, they, from the beginning, confidered it as belonging to their colony. Though the agent of Mafon's estate made fome objection to their proceeding, yet no legal method being taken to controvert this extension of their claim, the way was prepared for one ftill greater, which many circumftances concurred to establish.

After the death of Captain Mason, his widow and executrix fent over Francis Norton as her "general attorney;" to whom fhe committed the whole management of the effate. But the expence fo far exceeded the income, and the fervants grew fo impatient for their arrears, that the was obliged to relinquish the care of the plantation, and tell the fervants that they muft fhift for themfelves. Upon which they fhared the goods and cattle. Norton drove above an hundred oxen to Bofton, and there

MS Depofition in Sup. Court files.

Anne Mafon's Letters, and

MS Depofitions in Sup. Court filcs.

Stephen Batchelor, Chriftopher Huffey, Mary Huffey, widow, Thomas Cromwell, Samuel Skullard, John Ofgood, Samuel Greenfield, John Molton,

* Some of their names are mentioned in the Court Records, viz. Thomas Molton, William Eftow, William Palmer, William Sergeant, Richard Swayne, William Sanders, Robert Tucke, John Crofs.

39

1638.

there fold them for twenty-five pounds fterling per head, which it is faid was the current price of the best cattle in New-England at that time. These were of a large breed, imported from Denmark, from whence Mafon had alfo procured a number of men skilled in fawing planks and making potashes. Having shared the ftock and other materials, fome of the people quitted the plantation; others of them tarried, keeping poffeffion of the buildings and improvements, which they claimed as their own; the houses at Newichwannock were burned; and thus Mafon's effate was ruined. Thefe events happened between 1638 and 1644.

Among the Antinomians who were banifhed from Bofton, and took refuge in thefe plantations, was Captain John Underhill, in whofe ftory will appear fome very ftrong characteriftics of the fpirit of thefe times. He had been a foldier in the Netherlands, and was brought over to New-England by Governor Winthrop, to train the people in military difcipline. He ferved the country in the Pequod war, and was in fuch reputation in the town of Bofton, that they had chofen him one of their deputies. Deeply tinctured with Antinomian principles, and poffeffed of an

Hubbard's MS Hiftory.

Prince's Annals, MS.

an high degree of enthufiafm, he made a capital figure in the controverfy; being one of the fubfcribers to a petition in which the court was cenfured, with an indecent feverity, for their proceedings againft Whelewright. For this offence he was disfranchifed. He then made a voyage to England; and upon his return petitioned the court for three hundred acres of land which had been promifed him for his former fervices, intending to remove after Whelewright. In his petition he acknowledged his offence in condemning the court, and declared "that the Lord had brought him " to a fenfe of his fin in that refpect, fo " that he had been in great trouble on ac-" count thereof." On this occasion the court thought proper to queftion him concerning an offenfive expression, which he had uttered on board the ship in which he came from England, " that the go-" vernment at Bofton were as zealous as " the fcribes and Pharifees, and as Paul " before his conversion." He denied the charge, and it was proved to his face by a woman who was paffenger with him, and whom he had endeavoured to feduce to his opinions. He was alfo queftioned for what he had faid to her concerning the manner of his receiving

41

1638.

Nov. 15th, 1637. 1638.

ing affurance, which was, " that having " long lain under a spirit of bondage, he " could get no affurance; till at length as " he was taking a pipe of tobacco, the " fpirit fet home upon him an abfolute " promise of free grace, with such assurance " and joy that he had never fince doubt-" ed of his good eftate, neither fhould he, " whatever fins he might fall into." This he would neither own nor deny; but objected to the fufficiency of a fingle teftimony. The court committed him for abufing them with a pretended retraction, and the next day paffed the fentence of banishment upon him. Being allowed the liberty of attending public worfhip, his enthusiastic zeal brake out in a speech in which he endeavoured to prove " that " as the Lord was pleafed to convert Saul " while he was perfecuting, fo he might " manifest himself to him while making a " moderate use of the good creature to-" bacco; profeffing withal that he knew " not wherein he had deferved the cen-" fure of the court." The elders reproved him for this inconfiderate speech; and Mr. Cotton told him, " that though God " often laid a man under a spirit of bon-" dage while walking in fin, as was the " cafe with Paul, yet he never fent a fpi-" rit

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

" rit of comfort but in an ordinance, as "he did to Paul by the miniftry of Ana-" nias; and therefore exhorted him to ex-" amine carefully the revelation and joy " to which he pretended." The fame week he was privately dealt with on fufpicion of adultery, which he difregarded; and therefore on the next fabbath was queftioned for it before the church; but the evidence not being fufficient to convict him, the church could only admonifh him.

These proceedings, civil and ecclesiaftical, being finished, he removed out of their jurifdiction; and after a while came to Dover, where he procured the place of governor in the room of Burdet. Governor Winthrop hearing of this, wrote to Hilton and others of this plantation, informing them of his character. Underhill intercepted the letter, and returned a bitter answer to Mr. Cotton; and wrote another letter full of reproaches against the governor to a gentleman of his family, while he addreffed the governor himfelf in a fawning obfequious strain, begging an obliteration of former miscarriages, and a bearing with human infirmities. These letters were all fent back to Hilton; but too late to prevent his advancement. Being

Being fettled in his government, he procured a church to be gathered at Dover who chofe Hanferd Knollys for their minister. He had come over from England the year before; but being an Anabaptist of the Antinomian cast, was not well received in Maffachufetts, and came here while Burdet was in office, who forbad his preaching; but Underhill, agreeing better with him, prevailed to have him chofen their minister. To ingratiate himfelf with his new patron, Knollys wrote in his favour to the church in Bofton; ftyling him " The right worfhipful their honoured governor." Notwithstanding which they cited him again to appear before them; the court granting him fafe conduct. At the fame time complaint was made to the chief inhabitants on the river, of the breach of friendship in advancing Underhill after his rejection; and a copy of Knollys's letter was returned, wherein he had written that "Underhill " was an inftrument of God for their " ruin," and it was enquired whether that letter was written by the defire or confent of the people. The principal perfons of Portfmouth and Dover difclaimed his mifcarriages, and expressed their readinefs to call him to account when a proper per information should be presented; but begged that no force might be fent against him. By his infligation Knollys had alfo written to his friends in England, a calumnious letter against the Massachusetts planters, reprefenting them as more arbitrary than the high-commission court, and that there was no real religion in the country. A copy of this letter being fent from England to Governor Winthrop, Knollys was fo ashamed at the discovery, that obtaining a licence, he went to Bofton; and at the public lecture before the governor, magistrates, ministers and the congregation, made confession of his fault, and wrote a retraction to his friends in England, which he left with the governor to be fent to them.

44

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

Underhill was fo affected with his friend's humiliation, and the difaffection of the people of Pifcataqua to him, that he refolved to retrieve his character in the fame way. Having obtained fafe conduct, he went to Bofton, and in the fame public manner acknowledged his adultery, his difrefpect to the government and the juffice of their proceedings againft him : But his confeffion was mixed with fo many excufes and extenuations that it gave no fatisfaction ; and the evidence of his fcandalous deportment ment being now undeniable, the church paffed the fentence of excommunication, to which he feemed to fubmit, and appeared much dejected while he remained there.

Upon his return, to please some difaffected perfons at the mouth of the river, he fent thirteen armed men to Exeter to rescue out of the officer's hand one Fish, who had been taken into cuftody for fpeaking against the king. The people of Dover forbad his coming into their court till they had confidered his crimes and he promised to refign his place if they fhould difapprove his conduct; but hearing that they were determined to remove him, he rushed into court in a passion, took his feat, ordered one of the magiftrates to prifon for faying that he would not fit with an adulterer, and refused to receive his difmiffion, when they voted it. But they proceeded to chufe another governor, Roberts, and fent back the prifoner to Exeter.

1640. ~~ A new scene of difficulty now arose. Thomas Larkham, a native of Lyme in Dorfetshire and formerly a minister at Northam near Barnstable, who had come over to New-England, and not favouring the doctrine, nor willing to submit to the discipline of the churches in Massachusets, chufetts, came to Dover; and being a preacher of good talents, eclipfed Knollys, and raifed a party who determined to remove him. He therefore gave way to the popular prejudice, and fuffered Larkham to take his place; who foon difcovered his licentious principles by receiving into the church perfons of immoral characters, and affuming, like Burdet, the civil as well as ecclefiaftical authority. The better fort of the people were displeased and restored Knollys to his office who excommunicated Larkham. This bred a riot in which Larkham laid hands on Knollys, taking away his hat on pretence that he had not paid for it; but he was civil enough afterward to return it. Some of the magistrates joined with Larkham, and forming a court, fummoned Underhill, who was of Knollys's party to appear before them, and answer to a new crime which they had to alledge against him. Underhill collected his adherents; Knollys was armed with a piftol, and another had a bible mounted on an halbert for an enfign. In this ridiculous parade they marched against Larkham and his party, who prudently declined a combat, and fent down the river to Williams the governor, at Portfmouth, for affiftance. He 1640.

He came up in a boat with an armed party, befet Knollys's houfe where Underhill was, guarded it night and day till a court was fummoned, and then, Williams fitting as judge, Underhill and his company were found guilty of a riot, and after being fined, were banished the plantation. The new crime which Larkham's party alledged against Underhill was that he had been fecretly endeavouring to perfuade the inhabitants to offer themfelves to the government of Maffachufetts, whofe favor he was defirous to purchafe, by these means, as he knew that their view was to extend their jurifdiction as far as they imagined their limits reached, whenever they fhould find a favourable opportunity. The fame policy led him with his party to fend a petition to Bofton, praying for the interpolition of the government in their cafe: In confequence of which the governor and affiftants commiffioned Simon Bradstreet, Efq. with the famous Hugh Peters, then minister of Salem, and Timothy Dalton of Hampton, to enquire into the matter, and effect a reconciliation, or certify the flate of things to them. These gentlemen travelled on foot to Dover, and finding both fides in fault, brought the matter to this iffue, that that the one party revoked the excommunication, and the other the fines and banifhment.

In the heat of thefe difputes, a difcovery was made of Knollys's failure in point of chaftity. He acknowledged his crime before the church; but they difmiffed him and he returned to England, where he fuffered by the feverity of the long parliament in 1644; and being forbidden to preach in the churches, opened a feparate meeting in Great St. Helen's, from which he was foon diflodged, and his followers difperfed. He alfo fuffered in the caufe of non-conformity in the reign of King Charles the fecond, and at length (as it is faid) died " a good man in a good old " age." [September 19, 1691, Æt. 93.]

Underhill having finished his career in these parts obtained leave to return to Boston, and finding honesty to be the best policy, did in a large affembly, at the public lecture, and during the fitting of the court, make a full confession of his adultery and hypocrify, his pride and contempt of authority, justifying the church and court in all that they had done against him, declaring that his pretended affurance had failed him, and that the terror of his mind had at some times been so great, that he had E drawn 1640.

49

Neal'sHift. Puritans, 4to vol. 11. p. 113.

Neal'sHift. N. Engld. vol. I. p. 216.

Mather's Magnal. lib. 3. p.7. 1640.

Prince's Annals.

Hubbard's MS Hift. drawn his fword to put an end to his life. The church being now fatisfied, reftored him to their communion. The court, after waiting fix months for evidence of his good behaviour, took off his fentence of banishment, and released him from the punishment of his adultery: The law which made it capital having been enacted after the crime was committed, could not touch his life. Some offers being made him by the Dutch at Hudfon's river, whofe language was familiar to him, the church of Bofton hired a veffel to tranfport him and his family thither, furnishing them with all neceffaries for the voyage. The Dutch governor gave him the command of a company of an hundred and twenty men, and he was very ferviceable in the wars which that colony had with the Indians, having, it is faid, killed one hundred and fifty on Long-Island, and three hundred on the Main. He continued in their fervice till his death.

We find in this relation a ftriking inftance of that fpecies of falfe religion, which, having its feat in the imagination, inftead of making the feart better and reforming the life, inflames the paffions, ftupifies reafon, and produces the wildeft effects in the behaviour. The exceffes of enthufiafm enthufiafin have often been obferved to lead to fenfual gratifications; the fame natural fervour being fufficient to produce both. It cannot be firange that they who decry morality, fhould indulge fuch grofs and fcandalous enormities as are fufficient to invalidate all those evidences of their religious character on which they lay fo much ftrefs. But it is not fo furprifing that men fhould be thus milled, as that fuch frantic zealots fhould ever be reduced to an acknowledgment of their offences; which in this inflance may be aferibed to the ftrict difcipline then practifed in the churches of New-England.

The people of Dover and Portfmouth during all this time had no power of government delegated from the crown: but finding the necessity of fome more determinate form than they had yet enjoyed, combined themfelves each into a body politic after the example of their neighbours at Exeter. The inhabitants of Dover, by a written inftrument, figned by forty one perfons, agreed to fubmit to the laws of England, and fuch others as fhould be enacted by a majority of their number, until the royal pleafure fhould be known. The date of the combination at Portfmouth is uncertain, their first book of records E 2 having having been destroyed [in 1652,] after copying out what they then thought proper to preferve. Williams, who had been fent over by the adventurers, was by annual fuffrage continued governor of the place, and with him were affociated Ambrofe Gibbons and Thomas Warnerton * in quality of affiftants. During this combination, a grant of fifty acres of land for a glebe was made by the governor and inhabitants + to Thomas Walford and Henry Sherburne, church-wardens, and their fucceffors forever, as feoffees in truft; by virtue of which grant the fame land is ftill held, and being let on long leafes, a confiderable part of the town of Portfmouth is built upon it. At this time they had a parfonage houfe and chapel, and had chofen Richard Gibson for their parfon, the patronage being vefted in the parishioners.

Octo. 22.

Hubbard's MS Hift.

1640. Portf. Rec.

• Warnerton had been a foldier. Upon the division of Mason's flock and goods he carried his share to Penobscot, or some part of Nova-Scotia, where he was killed in a fray with the French inhabitants. 1644. (Hubbard)

+ This grant is fubfcribed by

Francis Williams, Governor, Ambrofe Gibbons, Affiftant, William Jones, Renald Fernald, John Crowther, Anthony Bracket, Michael Chatterton, John Wall, Robert Pudington, Henry Sherburne, John Landen, Henry Taler, John Jones, William Berry, John Pickerin, John Billing, John Wotten, Nicholas Row, Matthew Coe, William Palmer. (Portfm: Rec:)

May 25.

Portf. Rec.

parishioners. Gibson was sent from England as minister to a fishing plantation belonging to one Trelawney. He was " wholly addicted to the hierarchy and " difcipline of England, and exercifed his " ministerial function" according to the ritual. He was fummoned before the court at Bofton for " fcandalizing the go-" vernment there, and denying their " title;" but upon his fubmiffion, they discharged him without fine or punishment, being a ftranger and about to depart the country. After his departure the people of Portfinouth had James Parker * for their minister, who was a scholar and had been a deputy in the Maffachufetts court. After him they had one Browne; and † Samuel Dudley a fon of Deputy-

* Governnr Winthrop gives this account of him and his ministry. (" 1642. 10 mo:) " Those of the lower part of Pascataqua in-" vited Mr. James Parker of Weymouth, a godly man, to be " their minister. He by advising with divers of the magi-" firates and elders accepted the call and went and taught among " them, this winter, and it pleafed God to give great fuccels " to his labours fo as above forty of them, whereof the most had " been very profane and fome of them profeffed enemies to the " way of our churches, wrote to the magiftrates and elders, ac-" knowledging the finful courfe they had lived in, and bewailing " the fame, and bleffing God for calling them out of it and car-" neftly defiring that Mr. Parker might be fettled amongst them. "Moft of them fell back again in time, embracing this prefent world." He afterward removed to Barbadoes and there fettled. (vid Hutchinson's collection of papers, p. 155 and 222.) Hutchinton fuppofes him to have been minister of Newbury, millaking him for Thomas Parker.

† Dudley fettled at Exeter in 1650, and died there in 1683, At. 77. "He was a perfon of good capacity and learning."

(Fitch's MS.)

1640.

Gov. Winthrop's Journal, MS.

Portf. Rec.

MS Journ.

HISTORY OF 1640.

54

Deputy-Governor Dudley; but thefe were only temporary preachers, and they did not obtain the regular fettlement of a minifter for many years.

Four diftinct governments (including one at Kittery on the north fide of the river) were now formed on the feveral branches of Pascataqua. These combinations being only voluntary agreements, liable to be broken or fubdivided on the first popular difcontent, there could be no fafety in the continuance of them. The distractions in England at this time had cut off all hope of the royal attention, and the people of the feveral fettlements were too much divided in their 'opinions to form any general plan of government which could afford a profpect of permanent utility. The more confiderate perfons among them, therefore thought it beft to treat with Maffachufetts about taking them under their protection. That government was glad of an opportunity to realize the conftruction which they had put upon the claufe of their charter wherein their northern limits are defined. For a line drawn from east to west at the distance of " three " miles to the northward of Merrimack " river and of any and every part thereof," will take in the whole province of New-Hampshire, Hampshire, and the greater part of the province of Maine, fo that both Mafon's and Gorges's patents must have been vacated. They had already intimated their intention to run this east and west line, and prefuming on the juffice of their claim, they readily entered into a negotiation with the principal fettlers of Pafcataqua refpecting their incorporation with them. The affair was more than a year in agitation, and was at length concluded by an inftrument fubscribed in the prefence of the general court by George Willys, Robert Saltonstall, William Whiting, Edward Holiock, and Thomas Makepeace, in behalf of themfelves and the other partners of the two patents; by which inftrument they refigned the jurifdiction of the whole to Maffachufetts, on condition that the inhabitants should enjoy the same liberties with their own people, and have a court of juffice erected among them. The property of the whole patent of Portfmouth, and of one-third part of that of Dover, and of all the improved lands therein, was referved to the lords and gentlemen proprietors, and their heirs forever.

The court on their part confented that the inhabitants of these towns should enjoy the fame privileges with the rest of the colony, October 8.

1640.

Maffa.Rec.

1641. April 14. 1641.

colony, and have the fame administration of juffice as in the courts of Salem and Ipfwich; that they fhould be exempted from all public charges, except what fhould arife among themfelves, or for their own peculiar benefit; that they flould enjoy their former liberties of fishing, planting and felling timber; that they fhould fend two deputies to the general court; and that the fame perfons who were authorifed by their combinations to govern them, fhould continue in office till the commiffioners named in this order should arrive at Pascataqua. These commissioners were invested with the power of the quarter courts of Salem and Ipfwich, and at their arrival they conftituted Francis Williams, Thomas Warnerton and Ambrofe Gibbons of Portfmouth, Edward Hilton, Thomas Wiggen and William Waldron of Dover, magistrates, who were confirmed by the general court.

1642. Sept. 8. By a fubfequent order a very extraordinary conceffion was made to thefe towns, which fhews the fondnefs that government had of retaining them under their jurifdiction. A teft had been eftablifhed by law, but it was difpenfed with in their favor; their freemen were allowed to vote in town affairs, and their deputies to to fit in the general court though they were not church-members.

The people of Dover being left deftitute of a minister by the fudden departure of Larkham, who took this method to avoid the fhame which would have attended the difcovery of a crime fimilar to that for which Knollys had been difmiffed, wrote to the Maffachusetts for help. The court took care to fend them Daniel Maud who had been a minister in England. He was an honeft man, and of a quiet and peaceable disposition, qualities much wanting in all his predeceffors. Larkham returned to England, where he continued to exercife his ministry till ejected by the act of uniformity in 1662, from Tavistock in Devon, He is faid to have been " well known there for a man " of great piety and fincerity," and died in 1669. Æ. 68.

The inhabitants of Exeter had hitherto continued their combination; but finding themfelves comprehended within the claim of Maffachufetts, and being weary of their inefficacious mode of government they petitioned the court, and were readily admited under their jurifdiction. William Wenborne, Robert Smith, and Thomas Wardhall were appointed their magiftrates; and 1642.

57

Hubbard's MS.

Math.Mag.

Calamy's account of ejceted minifters, p. 246.

Sept. 8.

Massa.Rec.

Hubbard's

1644

Maffa.Rec.

May 29.

and they were annexed to the county of Effex. Upon this, Whelewright who was ftill under fentence of banifhment, with thofe of his church who were refolved to adhere to him, removed into the province of Maine, and fettled at Wells, where his pofterity yet remain. He was foon after reftored, upon a flight acknowledgment, to the freedom of the colony, and removed to Hampton; of which church he was minifter for many years; until he went to England where he was in favor with Cromwell: But, after the reftoration, he returned and fettled at Salifbury, where he died in 1680.

After his departure from Exeter, an attempt was made by the remaining inhabitants to form themfelves into a church, and call the aged Stephen Batchelor to the ministry, who had been difmissed from Hampton for his irregular conduct. But the general court here interpofed and fent them a folemn prohibition, importing "that " their divisions were fuch that they could " not comfortably, and with approbation, " proceed in fo weighty and facred affairs," and therefore directing them "to defer ga-" thering a church, or any other fuch pro-" ceeding, till they or the court at Ipfwich, " upon further fatisfaction of their recon-" ciliation

1642.

 \sim

" ciliation and fitnefs, fhould give allowance therefor."

Such a ftretch of power, which would now be looked upon as an infringement of chriftian liberty, was agreeable to the principles of the firft fathers of New-England, who thought that civil government was eftablifhed for the defence and fecurity of the church againft error both doctrinal and moral. In this fentiment they were not fingular, it being univerfally adopted by the reformers, in that and the preceding age, as one of the fundamental principles of their feparation from the Romifh church, and neceffary to curtail the claims of her Pontiff, who affumed a fupremacy over " the kings of the earth."

CHAP.

C H A P. III.

Observations on the principles and conduct of the first planters of New-England. Causes of their removal. Their fortitude. Religious sentiments. Care of their posterity. Justice. Laws. Theocratic prejudices. Intolerance and perfecutions.

A N union having been formed between the fettlements on Paſcataqua and the colony of Maſſachuſetts, their hiſtory for the fucceeding forty years is in a great meaſure the fame. It is not my intention to write the tranfactions of the whole colony during that period; but, as many of the people in New-Hampſhire had the fame principles, views and intereſts with the other people of New-England, I ſhall make ſome obſervations thereon, and interſperſe ſuch hiſtorical facts as may illuſtrate the ſubject.

In the preceding century the holy fcriptures, which had long lain hid in the rubbifh of monaftic libraries, were brought to public view by the happy invention of printing; and as darknefs vanifhes before the rifing fun, fo the light of divine truth began began to diffipate thofe errors and fuperfitions in which Europe had long been involved. At the fame time a remarkable concurrence of circumflances gave peculiar advantage to the bold attempt of Luther, to roufe Germany from her inglorious fubjection to the Roman Pontiff, and effectuate a reformation, which foon fpread into the neighbouring countries. But fo intimately were the political interefts of kingdoms and flates blended with religious prejudices, that the work, though happily begun, was greatly blemifhed and impeded.

Henry the VIIIth of England took advantage of this amazing revolution in the minds of men, to throw off the papal yoke, and affert his native claim to independence. But fo dazzling was the idea of power, and the example of the first christian princes, who had exercifed a fuperintendency in fpirituals, as well as temporals, that he transferred to himfelf that fpiritual power which had been usurped and exercised by the bishops of Rome, and fat up himfelf as fupreme head on earth of the church of England; commanding both clergy and laity in his dominions to fwear allegiance to him in this newly affumed character. This

This claim was kept up by his fon and fucceffor Edward the Sixth, in whofe reign the reformation gained much ground; and a fervice-book was published by royal authority as the flandard of worship and difcipline for his fubjects. This excellent prince was taken out of the world in his youth; and his fifter Mary, who then came to the throne, reftored the fupremacy to the pope, and raifed fuch fiery perfecution against the reformers, that many of them fled into Germany and the Netherlands; where they departed from that uniformity which had been eftablished in England, and became divided in their fentiments and practice refpecting ecclefiaftical affairs : the native effect of that just liberty of confcience which they enjoyed abroad, purfuing their own enquiries according to their respective measures of light; uninfluenced by fecular power, or the hope of acquiring dignities in a national establishment.

The acceffion of Elizabeth infpired them with new hopes; and they returned home, refolving to attempt the reformation of the church of England, agreeably to the refpective opinions which they had embraced in their exile. But they foon found that the queen, who had been educated in the the fame manner with her brother Edward, was fond of the eftablishment made in his reign, and was ftrongly prejudiced in favor of pomp and ceremony in religious worfhip. She afferted her fupremacy in the moft abfolute terms, and erected an high-commiffion court with jurifdiction in ecclefiastical affairs. Uniformity being rigoroufly enjoined and no abatement or allowance made for tender confciences (though it was conceded that the ceremonies were indifferent) a feparation from the eftablishment took place. Those who were defirous of a farther reformation from the Romifh fuperstitions, and of a more pure and perfect form of religion were denominated Puritans; whofe principles, as diffinguished from those of the other reformers who were in favor with the queen, are thus reprefented.

"The queen and court-reformers held, 1. That every prince had the fole authority to correct all abufes of doctrine and worfhip within his own territories. 2. That the church of Rome was a true church though corrupt in fome points of doctrine and government; that all her ministrations were valid, and that the pope was a true bifhop of Rome though not of the univerfal church. 3. That the foriptures were Neal'sHift. Puritans, vol. 1. p. 95.98.4to. were a perfect rule of faith, but not a standard of discipline; and that it was left to the diferetion of the christian magistrate, to accommodate the government of the church to the policy of the state. 4. That the practice of the primitive church for the first four or five centuries was a proper ftandard of church government and difcipline; and in fome refpects better than that of the apofiles, which was only accommodated to the infant flate of the church, while it was under perfecution; whereas the other was fuited to the grandeur of a national establishment. 5. That things indifferent in their own nature as rites, ceremonies, and habits, might be fettled, determined and made neceffary by the command of the civil magistrate, and that in fuch cafes it was the duty of the fubject to obferve them."

"On the other hand, the puritans, I. Difowned all foreign jurifdiction over the church, but could not admit of that extenfive power which the crown claimed by the fupremacy. However, they took the oath, with the queen's explication, as only reftoring her majefty to the ancient and natural rights of fovereign princes over their fubjects. 2. They held the pope to be antichrift, the church of Rome a falfe church, church, and all her ministrations superstitious and idolatrous. 3. That the fcriptures were a standard of discipline as well as doctrine, and if there was need of a difcretionary power, it was vefted not in the magistrate but in the officers of the church. 4. That the form of government ordained by the apoftles was aristocratical, and defigned as a pattern to the church in after ages, not to be departed from in its main principles. 5. That those things which Chrift hath left indifferent ought not to be made neceffary; and that fuch rites and ceremonies as had been abufed to idolatry and fuperstition, and had a manifest tendency to lead men back thereto, were no longer indifferent but unlawful."

" Both parties agreed too well in afferting the neceffity of uniformity in public worship, and of using the fword of the magistrate for the support and defence of their respective principles; which they made an ill use of in their turns, whenever they could grafp it in their hands. The standard of uniformity according to the bishops, was the queen's supremacy and the laws of the land; according to the puritans, the decrees of national and provincial fynods, allowed and enforced by the civil magistrate. Neither party were F for for admitting that liberty of confcience and freedom of profeffion which is every man's right, fo far as is confiftent with the peace of civil government. Upon this fatal rock of uniformity, was the peace of the church of England fplit."

It is melancholy to obferve what mifchiefs were caufed by the want of a just diftinction between civil and ecclefiaftical power, and by that abfurd zeal for uniformity, which kept the nation in a long ferment, and at length burft out into a blaze, the fury of which was never thoroughly quelled till the happy genius of the revolution gave birth to a free and equitable toleration, whereby every man was reftored to the natural right of judging and acting for himfelf in matters of religion. All the celebrated wildom of Elizabeth's government could not devife an expedient fo fuccefsful. Though her reign was long and profperous, yet it was much stained with oppreffion and cruelty toward many of her beft fubjects; who, wearied with ineffectual applications, waited the acceffion of James, from whom they expected more favour, becaufe he had been educated in the prefbyterian church of Scotland, and professed an high veneration for that eftablishment. But they foon found that he had had changed his religious principles with his climate, and that nothing was to be expected from a prince of fo bafe a character, but infult and contempt.

In the beginning of his reign a great number of the puritans removed into Holland, where they formed churches upon their own principles. But not relifhing the manners of the Dutch, after twelve years they projected a removal to America, and laid the foundation of the colony of Plymouth. The fpirit of uniformity still prevailing in England, and being carried to the greatest extent in the reign of Charles the First by that furious bigot Archbishop Laud; many of the lefs fcrupulous, but confcientious members of the church of England, who had hitherto remained in her communion, feeing no prospect of reft or liberty in their native country, followed their brethren to America, and eftablished the colony of Maffachufetts, from which proceeded that of Connecticut.

By fuch men, influenced by fuch motives, were the principal fettlements in New-England effected. The fortitude and perfeverance which they exhibited therein will always render their memory dear to their pofterity. To prepare for their enterprize, they had to fell their F_2 effates, estates, fome of which were large and valuable, and turn them into materials for a new plantation, with the nature of which they had no acquaintance, and of which they could derive no knowledge from the experience of others. After traverfing a wide ocean they found themfelves in a country full of woods, to fubdue which required immenfe labour and patience; at a vaft diftance from any civilized people; in the neighbourhood of none but ignorant and barbarous favages; and in a climate, where a winter much more fevere than they had been accustomed to, reigns for a third part of the year. Their flock of provisions falling flort, they had the dreadful apprehension of perishing by famine, one half of their number dying before the first year was completed; the ocean on one fide feparated them from their friends, and the wildernefs on the other, prefented nothing but fcenes of horror, which it was impoffible for them to conceive of before they endured them.

But under all thefe difficulties, they maintained a fleady and pious refolution; depending on the providence of the fupreme ruler, and never repenting the bufinefs on which they had come into this wildernefs. As purity in divine administrations was the profeffed professed object of their undertaking, fo they immediately fet themfelves to form churches, on what they judged the gofpel plan. To be out of the reach of prelatic tyranny, and at full liberty to purfue their own enquiries, and worship God according to their confciences, (which had been denied them in their own country) was effeemed the greateft of bleffings, and fweetened every bitter cup which they were obliged to drink. They always profeffed that their principal defign was to erect churches on the primitive model, and that the confideration of temporal interest and conveniency had but the fecond place in their views.*

In the doctrinal points of religion they were of the fame mind with their brethren of the church of England, as expressed in their articles. The Massachusetts planters left behind them, when they failed, a respectful declaration importing that they did not confider the church of England as antichristian, but only withdrew from the imposition Hutchin. Hul. vol. 1. p. 487.

* " It concerneth New-England always to remember, that they " are originally a plantation religious, not a plantation of trade. " The profeffion of the purity of doftrine, worfhip and difcipline " is written upon her forehead. Let merchants, and fuch as are " increasing cent per cent remember this, that worldly gain was " not the end and defen of the people of New-England but religi-" on. And if any man among us make religion as twelve, and " the world as thirteen, fuch an one hath not the fpirit of a true " New-Englandman." Higginfon's Election Sermon, 1663. impolition of unscriptural terms of communion. Some of the Plymouth planters had embraced the narrow principles of the Brownists, the first who separated from the church of England; but by the improvements which they made in religious knowledge under the inftruction of the renowned John Robinfon, their pastor in Holland, they were in a great meafure cured of that four leaven. The congregational fystem of church government was the refult of the fludies of that truly pious, learned, humble and benevolent divine, who feems to have had more of the genuine fpirit of the reformation, and of freedom from bigotry, than any others in his day. His farewell charge to those of his flock who were embarking in Holland for America deferves to be had in perpetual remembrance. " Brethren (faid he) we are now " quickly to part from one another, and " whether I may ever live to fee your face " on earth any more, the God of heaven " only knows; but whether the Lord hath " appointed that or no, I charge you be-" fore God and his bleffed angels that you " follow me no further than you have feen " me follow the Lord Jefus Chrift. If "God reveal any thing to you by any " other inftrument of his, be as ready to " receive Neal'sHift. N. Eng. vol. I. p.84.

" receive it, as ever you were to receive " any truth by my ministry; for I am " verily perfuaded, I am very confident, " the Lord has more truth yet to break " forth out of his holy word. For my " part, I cannot fufficiently bewail the con-" dition of the reformed churches, who are " come to a period in religion, and will " go at prefent no farther than the inftru-" ments of their reformation. The Lu-" therans cannot be drawn to go beyond " what Luther faw; whatever part of his " will our good God has revealed to Cal-" vin, they will rather die than embrace it. " And the Calvinifts you fee flick fast where " they were left by that great man of God, " who yet faw not all things. This is a " mifery much to be lamented; for though " they were burning and fhining lights in " their times, yet they penetrated not in-" to the whole counfel of God; but were " they now living, would be as willing to " embrace farther light, as that which they " at first received. I befeech you to re-" member it is an article of your church " covenant, That you be ready to receive " whatever truth shall be made known to " you from the written word of God. Re-" member that, and every other article of " your facred covenant. But I must herewithal

" withal exhort you to take heed what " you receive as truth. Examine, con-" fider and compare it with other fcrip-" tures of truth, before you receive it; for " it is not poffible the chriftian world " fhould come fo lately out of fuch thick " antichriftian darknefs, and that perfecti-" on of knowledge fhould break forth at " once." It is much to be regretted that this excellent man did not live to reach New-England and to diffufe more generally fuch truly catholic and apoftolic principles.

Many of the first planters of New-England were perfons of good education, and fome of them eminent for their abilities and learning. Such men could not but fee the neceffity of fecuring to their pofterity the advantages which they had fo dearly purchased. One of their first concerns was to have their children confidered, from their earlieft years, as fubjects of ecclefiaftical difcipline. This became a matter of controverfy, and was largely difcuffed in fermons and pamphlets, and at length determined by the authority of a fynod. A regular course of academical learning was a point of equal importance, and admitted of no difpute. They faw that the reputation and happinefs nefs of the whole country depended greatly upon it. They therefore took early care for the eftablishment of schools, and . within ten years from their first fettlement, founded a college at Cambridge*, which from fmall beginnings, by the munificence of its patrons, has made a diftinguished figure in the republic of letters. Many eminent men have there been formed for the fervice of the church and state; and without this advantage the country could not have arrived, in fo fhort a time, at its present respectable state; nor have been furnished with men capable of filling the various stations of usefulness, and of defending our civil and religious liberties.

Though the first planters derived from the royal grants and charters a political right as subjects of the crown of England, to this territory; yet they did not think themselves justly entitled to the property of it till they had fairly purchased it of its native lords, and made them full fatisfaction †. Nor did they content themselves with

• "When New-England was poor, and we were but few in "number, there was a fpirit to encourage learning, and the col-"lege was full of fludents." Refult of a Synod in 1679.

† The Abbé Raynal in his elegant hiftory of the Eaft and Weft Indies speaks of the purchase made of the Indians by William Penn in 1681, as "an example of moderation and justice in America, "which with merely living peaceably among them, but exerted themfelves vigoroufly in en-. deavouring their conversion to christianity. which was one of the obligations of their patent, and one of the profeffed defigns of their fettlement in this country. This painful work was remarkably fucceeded, and the names of ELIOT and MAYHEW will always be remembered as unwearied instruments in promoting it. Great care was taken by the government to prevent fraud and injustice toward the Indians in trade, or violence to their perfons. The nearest of the natives were fo sensible of the justice of their English neighbours, that they lived in a flate of peace with them, with but little interruption, for above fifty years.

Slavery was thought fo inconfistent with the natural rights of mankind, and detrimental to fociety, that an express law was made, prohibiting the buying or felling of flaves, except those taken in lawful war, or reduced to fervitude for their crimes

"which was never thought of before, by the Europeans." It can be no derogation from the honor due to the wife founder of Pennfylvania that the example of this moderation and juffice was first fet by the planters of New-England, whofe deeds of conveyance from the Indians were earlier than his by half a century.

In fome parts of the country the lands purchafed of the Indians are fubject to a quit-rent, which is annually paid to their poflerity. They have lands referved to their ufe, which are not allowed to be purchafed of them without the confent of the legiflature.

crimes by a judicial fentence; and thefe were to have the fame privileges as were allowed by the laws of Mofes. There was a remarkable inflance of juffice in the execution of this law in 1645, when a Negro who had been fraudulently brought from the coaft of Africa, and fold in the country, was by the fpecial interpofition of the general court taken from his mafter in order to be fent home to his native land*. How long after this the importation of blacks continued to be difallowed is uncertain; but if the fame refolute juftice had always been obferved, it would have been much for the credit and intereft of the country; 'and our own ftruggles for liberty would not have carried fo flagrant an appearance of inconfiftency.

Severe laws conformable to the principles of the laws of Mofes were enacted against all kinds of immorality. Blasphemy, idolatry, adultery, unnatural luss, rape, murder, man-stealing, false witness, rebellion

• "14. 3d mo. 1645. The court thought proper to write to Mr. "Williams of Pafeataqua (underflanding that the Negroes which "Captain Smyth brought were fraudulently and is juriously takers and brought from Guinca, by Captain Smyth's confeffion and "the reft of the company) that he forthwith find the Negro which "he had of Captain Smyth hither, that he may be first home, "which this court doth refolve to fend back without delay. And "if you have any thing to alledge, why you thould not return "him to be difpofed of by the court, it will be expected you fhould "forthwith make it appear either by yourfelf or your agent."

Massachusetts Records.

rebellion against parents, and confpiracy against the commonwealth were made capital crimes; and becaufe fome doubted whether the magistrate could punish breaches of the four first commands of the decalogue, this right was afferted in the highest tone, and the denial of it ranked among the most pestilent herefies, and punished with banishment. By the feverity and impartiality with which those laws were executed, intemperance and profanenefs were fo effectually difcountenanced that Hugh Peters, who had refided in the country twenty years, declared before the parliament that he had not feen a drunken man, nor heard a profane oath during that period. The report of this extraordinary firictness, while it invited many of the best men in England to come over, kept them clear of those wratches who fly from one country to another to escape the punishment of their crimes.

The profeffed defign of the plantation being the advancement of religion, and men of the ftricteft morals being appointed to the chief places of government, their zeal for purity of every kind carried them into fome refinements in their laws which are not generally fuppofed to come within the fphere of magiftracy, and in larger communities communities could fcarcely be attended to in a judicial way. The drinking of healths, and the use of tobacco were forbidden, the former being confidered as an heathenish and idolatrous practice, grounded on the ancient libations ; the other as a fpecies of intoxication and wafte of time. Laws were inftituted to regulate the intercourfe between the fexes, and the advances toward matrimony: They had a ceremony of betrothing, which preceded that of marriage. Pride and levity of behavior came under the cognizance of the magistrate. Not only the richness but the mode of dress, and cut of the hair were fubject to flateregulations. Women were forbidden to expose their arms or bosoms to view; it was ordered that their fleeves flould reach down to their wrift, and their gowns be clofed round the neck. Men were obliged to cut fhort their hair, that they might not refemble women. No perfon not worth two hundred pounds was allowed to wear gold or filver lace, or filk hoods and Offences against these laws were fcarfs. prefentable by the grand jury; and those who dreffed above their rank were to be affeffed accordingly. Sumptuary laws might be of use in the beginning of a new plantation; but thefe pious rulers had more more in view than the political good. They were not only concerned for the external appearance of fobriety and good order, but thought themfelves obliged, fo far as they were able, to promote real religion and enforce the obfervance of the divine precepts.

As they were fond of imagining a near refemblance between the circumstances of their fettlement in this country and the redemption of Ifrael from Egypt or Babylon; it is not ftrange that they fhould alfo look upon their " commonwealth as an " inflitution of God for the prefervation " of their churches, and the civil rulers " as both members and fathers of them." The famous John Cotton, the first minifter in Boston was the chief promoter of this fettlement. When he arrived in 1633, he found the people divided in their opinions. Some had been admitted to the privileges of freemen at the first general court, who were not in communion with the churches; after this an order was paffed, that none but members of the churches should be admitted freemen; whereby all other perfons were excluded from every office or privilege civil or military. This great man by his eloquence confirmed those who had embraced this opinion, opinion, and earneftly pleaded " that the " government might be confidered as a " theocracy wherein the Lord was judge, " lawgiver and king; that the laws which " he gave Ifrael might be adopted, fo " far as they were of moral and perpetual " equity; that the people might be confider-" ed as God's people in covenant with him; " that none but perfons of approved piety " and eminent gifts fhould be chofen rulers; " that the ministers should be confulted in " all matters of religion; and that the " magistrate should have a superintending " and cöercive power over the churches." At the defire of the court, he compiled a fystem of laws founded chiefly on the laws of Mofes, which was confidered by the legiflative body as the general standard; though they never formally adopted it, and in some instances varied from it.

Increafe Mather's life, p. 57.

Mather's Magnalia, lib 3. p. 20.

Thefe principles were fundamentally the fame with thofe on which were grounded all the perfecutions which they had endured in England, and naturally led to the fame extremes of conduct which they had fo bitterly complained of in thofe civil and ecclefiaftical rulers, from whofe tyranny they had fled into this wildernefs. They had already proceeded a flep farther than the hierarchy had ever attempted. No Hutch-Collect. papers, p. 161. No teft-law had as yet taken place in England; but they had at one blow cut off all but those of their own communion, from the privileges of civil offices, however otherwise qualified. They thought that as they had fuffered fo much in laying the foundation of a new flate, which was fupposed to be "a model of the glori-"ous kingdom of Christ on earth*," they had an exclusive right to all the honours and privileges of it; and having the power in their hands, they effectually established their pretensions, and made all diffenters and disturbers feel the weight of their indignation.

In confequence of the union thus formed between the church and ftate on the plan of the Jewifh theocracy, the minifters were called to fit in council, and give their advice in matters of religion and cafes of confcience which came before the court, and without them they never proceeded to any act of an ecclefiaftical nature. As none were allowed to vote in the election of

• • • 1 look upon this as a little model of the glorious kingdom • of Chrift on earth. Chrift reigns among us in the common-• wealth as well as in the church, and hath his glorious intereft • involved in the good of both focieties refpectively. He that fhall • be treacherons and falfe to the civil government, is guilty of high • treafon againft the Lord Jefus Chrift, and will be proceeded a-• " gainft as a rebel and traitor to the King of kings, when he fhall • hold his great affizes at the end of the world."

Prefident Oakes's Election Sermon, 1673.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

of rulers but freemen, and freemen must be church members; and as none could be admitted into the church but by the elders, who first examined, and then propounded them to the brethren for their vote, the clergy acquired hereby a vaft afcendency over both rulers and people, and had in effect the keys of the flate as well as the church in their hands. The magistrates, on the other hand, regulated the gathering of churches, interpofed in the fettlement and difmiffion of ministers, arbitrated in ecclefiaftical controverfies and controled fynodical affemblies. This coercive power in the magistrate was deemed 'abfolutely neceffary to preferve " the " order of the gofpel."

The principle on which this power is grounded is expressed in the Cambridge Platform in terms as foft as possible. "The "power and authority of magisfrates is not "for the reftraining of churches, or any "other good works, but for the helping "in and furthering thereof, and therefore "the confent and countenance of magi-"frates when it may be had, is not to be "flighted or lightly effected; but, on the "contrary, it is a part of the honor due "to christian magisfrates to defire and "crave their confent and approbation G "therein:

Chap. 17. Sect. 3.

81

" therein : which being obtained, the " churches may then proceed in their way " with much more encouragement and " comfort." This article (like divers others in that work) is curioufly and artfully drawn up, fo that there is an appearance of liberty and tenderness but none in reality: For although the magistrate was not to reftrain any good works, yet he was to be the judge of the good or evil of the works to be reftrained; and what fecurity could churches have that they fhould not be reftrained in the performance of what they judged to be good works? They might indeed think themfelves fafe, while their rulers were fo zealous for the purity of the churches of which themfelves were members, and while their ministers were confulted in all ecclesiastical affairs; but if the civil powers had acted without fuch confultation, or if the ministers had been induced to yield to the opinion of the magistrates, when contrary to the interest of the churches, what then would have become of religious liberty?

The idea of liberty in matters of religion was in that day ftrangely underftood, and myfterioufly expressed. The venerable Higginson of Salem in his fermon on the day of the election 1663, speaks thus; " The

" The gofpel of Chrift hath a right para-" mount all rights in the world; it hath " a divine and fupreme right to be receiv-" ed in every nation, and the knee of ma-" giftracy is to bow at the name of Jefus. " This right carries liberty along with it, " for all fuch as profefs the gofpel, to walk " according to the faith and order of the " gofpel. That which is contrary to the " gofpel hath no right, and therefore fhould " have no liberty." Here the question arifes, Who is to be the judge of what is agreeable or contrary to the gofpel? If the magistrate, then there is only a liberty to believe and practife what the magistrate thinks right. A fimilar fentiment occurs in the fermon of the learned Prefident Oakes on the fame occasion in 1673; " The outcry of fome is for liberty of con-" fcience. This is the great Diana of the " libertines of this age. But remember " that as long as you have liberty to walk " in the faith and order of the gofpel, and " may lead quiet and peaceable lives in " all godlinefs and honefty, you have as " much liberty of confcience as Paul de-" fired under any government." Here the queftion recurs, Would Paul have fubmitted to walk according to the opinion which the magistrate might entertain of G 2 the the faith and order of the gofpel? But this was all the freedom allowed by the fpirit of these times. Liberty of conscience and toleration were offenfive terms, and they who used them were supposed to be the enemies of religion and government. " I look upon toleration (fays the fame au-" thor) as the first-born of all abominati-" ons; if it fhould be born and brought " forth among us, you may call it Gad, " and give the fame reafon that Leah did, " for the name of her fon, Behold a troop " cometh, a troop of all manner of abo-" minations." In another of thefe election fermons, (which may generally be accounted the echo of the public voice, or the political pulfe by which the popular opinion may be felt) it is fhrewdly intimated that toleration had its origin from the devil, and the fpeech of the demoniac who cried out, " what have we to do with thee, let " us alone, thou Jefus of Nazareth," is ftyled "Satan's plea for toleration." The following admonition to posterity, written by the Deputy-Governor Dudley, is another fpecimen.

Shephard's Election Sermon, 1672.

Morton's Memorial, p. 179.

- " Let men of God in courts and churches " watch
- " O'er fuch as do a toleration hatch ; " Left

84

" Left that ill egg bring forth a cockatrice,
" To poifon all with herefy and vice.
" If men be left and otherwife combine
" My epitaph 's I die no libertine."

The champion of these sentiments was Cotton, who though eminently meek, placid and charitable, yet was ftrongly tinctured with the prevailing opinion, That the magistrate had a coercive power against heretics. The banishment of Roger Williams, minister of Salem, occasioned a vehement controverfy on this point. Williams having written in favour of liberty of confcience, and ftyled the oppofite principle " the bloody tenet ;" was anfwered by Cotton, who published a treatife in 1647 with this ftrange title, " The " bloody tenet washed, and made white in " the blood of the Lamb." In this work he labours to prove the lawfulnefs of the magistrate's using the civil fword to extirpate heretics, from the commands given to the Jews to put to death blafphemers and idolaters. To the objection, that perfecution ferves to make men hypocrites, he fays, " better tolerate hypocrites and " tares than briars and thorns. In fuch " cafes the civil fword doth not fo much " attend the conversion of feducers, as the " preventing the feduction of honeft minds "by

" by their means." He allows indeed that " the magistrate ought not to draw " the fword against feducers till he have " used all good means for their conviction : " But if after their continuance in obsti-" nate rebellion against the light, he shall " ftill walk toward them in foft and gentle " commiferation, his foftnefs and gentle-" nefs is exceffive large to foxes and " wolves; but his bowels are miferably " ftraitned and hardned against the poor " fheep and lambs of Chrift. Nor is it " frustrating the end of Christ's coming, " which was to fave fouls, but a direct ad-" vancing it, to deftroy, if need be, the " bodies of those wolves, who seek to de-" ftroy the fouls of those for whom Christ " died." In purfuing his argument he refines fo far as to deny that any man is to be perfecuted on account of confcience " till being convinced in his confcience of " his wickednefs, he do ftand out therein, " not only against the truth, but against " the light of his own confcience, that fo " it may appear he is not perfecuted for " caule of confcience, but punished for " finning against his own confcience." To which he adds, " fometimes it may be " an aggravation of fin both in judgment " and practice that a man committeth it in " confcience."

" confcience." After having faid that " it was toleration which made the world " antichriftian," he concludes his book with this fingular ejaculation, " the Lord " keep us from being bewitched with the " whore's cup, left while we feem to reject " her with open face of profeffion, we " bring her in by a back door of tolerati-" on; and fo come to drink deeply of the " cup of the Lord's wrath, and be filled " with her plagues."

But the ftrangeft language that ever was used on this or perhaps on any other fubject, is to be found in a book printed in 1645 by the humourous Ward of Ipfwich entitled " the Simple Cobler of A-" gawam." " My heart (fays he) hath " naturally detefted four things; the ftand-" ing of the Apocrypha in the bible: " foreigners dwelling in my country, to " croud out native fubjects into the cor-" ners of the eaft: alchymized coins: " toleration of divers religions or of one " religion in fegregant fhapes. He that " willingly affents to the laft, if he ex-" amines his heart by day-light, his con-" fcience will tell him, he is either an " atheift, or an heretic, or an hypocrite, " or at beft a captive to fome luft. Poly-" piety is the greatest impiety in the " world.

" world. To authorize an untruth by to-" leration of the state, is to build a sconce " against the walls of heaven, to batter "God out of his chair. Perfecution of " true religion and toleration of false are the " Jannes and Jambres to the kingdom of " Chrift, whereof the last is by far the worst. "He that is willing to tolerate any un-" found opinion, that his own may be to-" lerated though never fo found, will for " a need, hang God's bible at the devil's " girdle. It is faid that men ought to " have liberty of confcience and that it is " perfecution to debar them of it: I can " rather fland amazed than reply to this; " it is an aftonishment that the brains of " men fhould be parboiled in fuch impious " ignorance."

From these spectrum for the seader will think he has had enough) it is easy to fee how deeply the principle of intolerancy was rooted in the minds of our forefathers. Had it flood only in their books as a subject of speculation, it might have been excussed, considering the prejudices of the times; but it was drawn out into fatal practice, and caused fevere perfecutions which cannot be justified consistently with christianity or true policy. Whatever may be faid in favour of their proceedings against against the Antinomians, whose principles had fuch an effect on the minds of the people as materially affected the foundations of government, in the infancy of the plantation; yet the Anabaptifts and Quakers were fo inconfiderable for numbers, and the colony was then fo well eftablished that no danger could have been rationally apprehended to the commonwealth from them. Rhode-Ifland was fettled by fome of the Antinomian exiles on a plan of entire religious liberty: men of every denomination being equally protected and countenanced, and enjoying the honours and offices of government. The Anabaptifts, fined and banifhed, flocked to that new fettlement, and many of the Quakers alfo took refuge there; fo that Rhode-Island was in those days looked upon as the drain or fink of New-England; and it has been faid that " if any man had loft his " religion, he might find it there, among " fuch a general mufter of opinionifts." Notwithstanding this invective, it is much to the honour of that government that there never was an inftance of perfecution for confcience fake countenanced by them. Rhode-Ifland and Pennfylvania afford a ftrong proof that toleration conduces greatly to the fettlement and increase of an in-The fant plantation.

Callender's Century Sermon, 1738.

The Quakers at first were banished; but this proving infufficient, a fucceffion of fanguinary laws were enacted against them, of which imprisonment, whipping, cutting off the ears, boring the tongue with an hot iron, and banishment on pain of death, were the terrible fanctions. In confequence of these laws four perfons were put to death at Bofton, bearing their punishment with patience and fortitude; folemnly protefting that their return from banishment was by divine direction, to warn the magistrates of their errors, and intreat them to repeal their cruel laws; denouncing the judgments of God upon them; and foretelling that if they fhould put them to death others would rife up in their room to fill their hands with work*. After the execution of the fourth perfon

• The following paffages extracted from William Leddra's letter to his friends, written the day before his execution, March 15, 1660, fhew an elegance of fentiment and expression, not common in their writings.

" Moft dear and inwardly beloved,

"The fweet influence of the morning flar, like a flood, diflif-"ling into my innocent habitation hath fo filled me with the joy " of the Lord in the beauty of holinefs, that my fpirit is as if it " did not inhabit a tabernacle of clay, but is wholly fwallowed up " in the bofom of eternity from whence it had its being."

" Alas, alas ! what can the wrath and fpirit of man that lufteth to envy, aggravated by the heat and ftrength of the king of the cloufs which came out of the pit, do unto one that is hid in the fecret places of the Almighty ? or to them that are gathered under the healing wings of the Prince of Peace ? O my beloved, I have waited as the dove at the windows of the ark, and have for food

a

perfon, an order from King Charles the fecond, procured by their friends in England, put a flop to capital executions.

Impartiality will not fuffer a veil to be drawn over these difgraceful transactions. The utmost that has been pleaded in favor of them, cannot excufe them in the eye of reason and justice. The Quakers, it is faid, were heretics; their principles appeared to be fubverfive of the gofpel, and derogatory from the honor of the Redeemer. Argument and fcripture were in this cafe the proper weapons to combat them with; and if these had failed of fucces, they must have been left to the judgment of an omnifcient and merciful God. They were complained of as diffurbers of the peace, revilers of magistracy, " malignant " and

" flood ftill in that watch, which the mafter did at his coming re-" ward with the fulnefs of his love ; wherein my heart did rejoice " that I might fpeak a few words to you, fealed with the fpirit of " promife. As the flowing of the ocean doth fill every creek and " brauch thereof, and then retires again toward its own being and " fulnefs and leaves a favour behind it; fo doth the life and virtue " of God flow into every one of your hearts, whom he hath made " partakers of his divine nature; and when it withdraws but a " little, it leaves a fweet favour behind it, that many can fay they " are made clean through the word that he has fooken to them. " Therefore, my dear hearts, let the enjoyment of the life alone " be your hope, your joy and your confolation. Stand in the " watch within, in the fear of the Lord which is the entrance of " wifdom. Confess him before men, yea before his greatest ene-" mies. Fear not what they can do to you : Greater is he that is " in you than he that is in the world, for he will clothe you with " humility and in the power of his meeknefs you shall reign over " all the rage of your enemies."

Sewel's Hift. Quakers, p. 274.

" and affiduous promoters of doctrines di-" rectly tending to fubvert both church " and flate;" and our fathers thought it hard, when they had fled from opposition and perfecution in one fhape to be again troubled with it in another. But it would have been more to their honor to have fuffered their magistracy and church order to be infulted, than to have flained their hands with the blood of men who deferyed pity rather than punishment. The Quakers indeed had no right to difturb them; and fome of their conduct was to an high degree indecent and provoking; but they were under the influence of a fpirit which is not eafily quelled by oppofition. Had not the government appeared to be jealous of their principles, and prohibited the reading of their books before any of them appeared in perfon, there could not have been fo plaufible a pretext for their reviling government. It was faid that the laws by which they were condemned were grounded on the laws in England against Jefuits. But the cafe was by no means parallel, (as the Quakers pleaded) their principles and practices not being equally detrimental to fociety. It was moreover urged in excufe of the feverities exercifed against the Quakers that the

92

Sewel's Hiftory Quakers.

the magistrates thought themselves "bound in confcience to keep the paffage with the point of the fword: this (it was faid) could do no harm to him that would be warned by it: their rushing on it was their own act, and they brought the blood on their own heads. Had they promifed to depart the jurifdiction and not return without leave, the country would have been glad to have rid themfelves of the trouble of executing the laws upon them; it was their prefumptuous returning after banishment that caufed them to be put to death." This was the plea which the court ufed in their addrefs to the king; and in another vindication published by their order, the unhappy fufferers are ftyled " felones de fe," or felf-murderers. But this will not juftify the putting them to death, unlefs the original crimes for which they were banished had deferved it. The preamble to the act by which they were condemned charges them with "altering the received laudable cuftom of giving refpect to equals and reverence to fuperiors; that their actions tend to undermine the civil government and deftroy the order of the churches, by denying all established forms of worship, by withdrawing from orderly church fellowship allowed and approved

93

Mafs. Rec.

Sewel, b. G. p. 272.

p. 199.

proved by all orthodox professors of the truth, and instead thereof, and in opposition thereto, frequently meeting themfelves, infinuating themselves into the minds of the fimple, whereby divers of our inhabitants have been infected." Did thefe offences deferve death? had any government a right to terrify with capital laws perfons guilty of no other crimes than thefe, efpecially when they profeffed that they were obliged to go the greateft lengths in maintaining those tenets which they judged facred, and following the dictates of that fpirit which they thought divine? Was not the mere " holding the point of " the fword" to them, really inviting them to " rush on it" and feal their testimony with their blood? and was not this the moft likely way to ftrengthen and increase their party? Such punishment for offences which proceeded from a mifguided zeal, increafed and inflamed by opposition, will never reflect any honour on the policy or moderation of the government; and can be accounted for only by the ftrong predilection for cöercive power in religion, retained by most or all of the reformed churches; a prejudice which time and experience were neceffary to remove*.

The

[•] From the following authorities, it will appear that the government

The miftakes on which their conduct was grounded cannot be detected in a more mafterly manner, than by transcribing the fentiments of Doctor Increase Mather, who lived in those times, and was a strong advocate for the coercive power of the magistrate in matters of religion; but afterward changed his opinion on this point. "He became fensible that the example of the Israelitish reformers inflicting penalties on false worshippers would not legitimate the like proceedings among christian vernment of New-England, however fevere and unjustifiable in their proceedings against the Quakers, went no farther than the most eminent reformers; particularly the Bohemians, the Lutherans, the celebrated Calvin and the martyr Cranmer.

In the war which the Emperor Sigifmond excited againft the BOLEMIAN reformers, who had the famous Zifca for their general; "The afts of harbarity which were committed on both fides were thocking and terrible beyond expression. For notwithstanding the irreconcileable opposition between the religious fentiments of the contending parties, they both agreed in this one horrible point, that it was innocent and lawful to perfecute and extirpate with fire and fword, the enemies of the true religion, and fuch they reeiprocally appeared to be in each others eyes." Motheim's Eccl. Hift, vol. 3. p. 261.

" It were indeed ardently to be wifted, that the LUTHERANS had treated with more mildnefs and charity thofe who differed from them in religious opinions. But they had unhappily imbibed a fpirit of perfecution in their early education. This was too much the fpirit of the times, and it was even a leading maxim with our anceftors [this author was a Lutheran] that it was both lawful and expedient to use feverity and force againft thofe whom they looked upon as heretics. This maxim was derived from RO M E; and even thofe who feparated from that church did not find it eafy to throw off all of a fudden that defpotic and uncharitable fpirit, that had fo long been the main fpring of its government and the general charafteriftic of it members. Nay in their narrow view of things, their very piety feemed to fupprefs the generous movements of fraternal love and forbearance, and the more they felt themchriftian gentiles: For the holy land of old was, by a deed of gift from the glorious God, miraculoufly and indifputably granted to the Ifraelitifh nation, and the condition on which they had it was their obfervance of the Mofaic inftitutions. To violate them was high treafon againft the king of the theocracy, an iniquity to be punifhed by the judge. At the fame time fojourners in the land were not compelled to the keeping thofe rites and laws which Mofes had given to the people. Nay the Ifraelites felves animated with a zeal for the divine glory, the more difficult did they find it to renounce that ancient and favourite maxim, that whoever is found to be an enemy to God, ought alfo to be deelared an enemy to his country." Molkeim, vol: 4. p. 437.

"Michael Servetus, a Spanish physician, published feven books in which he attacked the fentiments adopted by far the greatest part of the childian church, in relation to the divine nature and a trinity of perfons in the Godhead. Few innovators have fet out with a better prospect of fucesfs: But all his views were totally di'appointed by the vigilance and feverity of Calvin, who when Servetus was passing through Switzerland, caufed him to be apprehended at Geneva in the year 1553, and had an accusation of blasshemy brought against him before the council. Servetus adhering refulutely to the opinions he had embraced, was declared an obstingte heretic and condemned to the flames." Motheim, wol. 4. p. 171.

Dr. Macclaine in his note on this paffage, fays, "It was a remaining portion of the fpirit of popery in the breaft of Calvin that kindled his unchriftian zeal against the wretched Servetus, whofe death will be an indelible reproach upon the character of that great and eminent reformer."

In the reign of Edward the fixth of England, anno 1549, "A woman called Joan Bocher, or Joan of Kent, was accufed of heretical pravity. Her doftrine was, "that Chrift was not truly in-"carnate of the virgin, whofe fleth being the outward man was fin-"fully begotten and born in fin; and confequently he could take "none of it; but the word, by the confent of the inward man of "the state of the state of "the state of the state of Ifraelites themfelves fell, many of them, into the worft of herefies, yet while they kept the laws and rites of Mofes, the magiftrate would not meddle with them. The herefy of the Sadducees in particular ftruck at the foundation of all religion; yet we do not find that our Saviour ever blamed the Pharifees for not perfecuting them. The H chriftian

" the virgin was made flefh." A febolaftic nicety, not capable of doing much mifchief! but there was a neceffity for delivering the woman to the flames for maintaining it. The young king though in fuch tentler years, had more fenfe than all his counfellors and preceptors; and he long refused to fign the warrant for her execution. CRANMER, with his fuperior learning, was employed to perfuade him to compliance, and he faid, that the prince, being God's deputy, ought to reprefs impieties against God, in like manner as the king's deputies were bound to punish offenders against the king's perfon. He alfo argued from the practice of the Jewith church in ftoning blafphemers. Edward overcome by importunity more than reason at last submitted, and told Cranmer with tears in his eyes, that if any wrong was done, the guilt should lie entirely on his head. The primate was firuck with furprize; but after making a new effort to reclaim the woman and finding her obflinate, he at last committed her to the flames. Nor did he ever renounce his burning principles fo long as he continued in power." Hume's Hift. Eng. 4to vol. 3. p. 320. Neal's Hift. Purit. 4to. vol. I. p. 41.

It ought also to be remembered, that at the fame time that the Quakers fuffered in New-England, penal laws against them were made and rigoroufly executed in England; and though none of them fuffered capital executions, yet they were thrown into prifon and treated with other marks of cruelty, which in fome inftances proved the means of their death. And though the lenity of King Charles the IId in putting a ftop to capital executions here has been much celebrated, yet in his letter to the Maffachufetts government the next year, wherein he requires liberty for the church of England among them, he adds, " Wee cannot be underflood hereby " to direct, or wifh that any indulgence thould be graunted to " Quakers, whofe principles, being inconfiftent with any kind of " government, Wee have found it neceffary with the advise of our " parliament here to make a fharp law against them, and are well " content you doe the like there." Records of Deeds, Prov. Maine, lib. I. fol. 129.

christian religion brings us not into a temporal Canaan, it knows no weapons but what-are purely fpiritual. He faw that until perfecution be utterly banished out of the world, and Cain's club taken out of Abel's hand, 'tis impoffible to refcue the world from endless confusions. He that has the power of the fword will always be in the right and always affume the power of perfecuting. In his latter times therefore he looked upon it as one of the most hopeful among the figns of the times, that people began to be ashamed of a practice which had been a mother of abominations, and he came entirely into that golden maxim, Errantis poena doceri."

Divers others of the principal actors and abettors of this tragedy lived to fee the folly and incompetency of fuch fanguinary laws, to which the fufferings of their brethren, the nonconformifts in England, did not a little contribute. Under the arbitrary government of King James the fecond, when he, for a flew of liberty and as a leading ftep to the introduction of popery, iffued a proclamation of indulgence to tender confciences, the principal men of the country fent him an addrefs of thanks, for granting them what they had formerly denied to others. It is but juffice to add, that all those difgraceful laws were renounced and repealed, and the people of New-England are now as candidly difposed toward the Quakers as any other denominations of christians. To keep alive a spirit of refentment and reproach to the country, on account of those ancient transfactions which are now universally condemned, would discover a temper not very consistent with that meekness and forgiveness which ought to be cultivated by all who profess to be influenced by the gospel.

98

99

But though our anceftors are justly cenfurable for those instances of misconduct, yet they are not to be condemned as unworthy the christian name, fince fome of the first disciples of our Lord, in a zealous imitation of the prophet Elias, would have called for fire from heaven to confirme a village of the Samaritans who refused to receive him. Their zeal was of the fame kind; and the answer which the benevolent author of our religion gave to his difciples on that occasion, might with equal propriety be addreffed to them, and to all perfecuting christians, "Ye know not " what fpirit ye are of, for the Son of man " is not come to deftroy men's lives but to " fave them."

CHAP.

HISTORY OF

C H A P. IV.

Mode of government under Maffachufetts. Mafon's efforts to recover the property of his anceftor. Transactions of the king's commissioners. Opposition to them. Political principles. Internal transactions. Mason discouraged.

URING the union of these planta-tions with Massachusetts, they were governed by the general laws of the colony, and the terms of the union were frictly obferved. Exeter and Hampton were at first annexed to the jurifdiction of the courts at Ipfwich, till the eftablishment of a new county which was called Norfolk, and comprehended Salifbury, Haverhill, Hampton, Exeter, Portfmouth and Dover. These towns were then of fuch extent as to contain all the lands between the rivers Merrimack and Pafcataqua. The fhire town was Salifbury; but Dover and Portfmouth had always a diftinct jurifdiction, though they were confidered as part of this new county; a court being held in one or the other, fometimes once and fometimes twice in the year, confifting of one or more of the magistrates Or or affistants, and one or more commissioners chofen by the general court out of the principal gentlemen of each town. This was called the court of affociates; and their power extended to caufes of twenty pounds value. From them there was an appeal to the board of affiftants, which being found inconvenient, it was in 1670 ordered to be made to the county court of Norfolk. Caufes under twenty shillings in value were fettled in each town by an inferior court confisting of three perfons. After fome time they had liberty to choofe their affociates, which was done by the votes of both towns, opened at a joint meeting of their felectmen, though fometimes they requefled the court to appoint them as before. That mutual confidence between rulers and people, which fprings from the genius of a republican government is obfervable in all their transactions*.

1643.

 \sim

1643.

Maff Gen. Court Rec.

1647.

Dover and Portfmou. Rec.

* In 1652, the number of people in Dover was increased to that they were allowed by law to fend two deputies to the general court. Hampton continued fending but one till 1669, and Portsmouth till 1672. The names of the representatives which I have been able to recover, are as follows:

For Dover. John Baker, Valentine Hill, Richard Waldron, who was chofen without interruption for 25 years, and was fometime fpeaker of the house. Richard Cook, Peter Coffin. For Portfmouth. Bryan Pendleton, Henry Sherburne, Richard Cutts, Nathaniel Fryer, 1647.

Elias

This

IOI

1652.

This extension of the colony's jurifdiction over New-Hampshire, could not fail of being noticed by the heirs of Mafon : But the diffractions caufed by the civil wars in England were invincible bars to any legal enquiry. The first heir named in Mafon's will dying in infancy, the eftate descended after the death of the executrix to Robert Tufton, who was not of age till 1650. In two years after this, Joseph Mason came over as agent to the executrix, to look after the intereft of her deceafed hufband. He found the lands at Newichwannock occupied by Richard Leader, against whom he brought actions in the county court of Norfolk; but a difpute arifing whether the lands in queftion were within the jurifdiction of Maffachufetts, and the court of Norfolk judging the action not to be within their cognizance, recourfe was had to the general court; who on this occasion ordered an accurate furvey of the northern bounds of their patent tent to be made; a thing which they had long meditated. A committee of the general court attended by Jonathan Ince and John Shearman furveyors, and feveral Indian guides, went up the river Merrimack to find the most northerly part thereof, which the Indians told them was at Aquedochtan, the outlet of the lake Winnipifeogee. The latitude of this place was obferved to be 43 degrees 40 minutes and 12 feconds, to which three miles being added, made the line of the patent, according to their construction, fall within the lake, in the latitude of 43 degrees 43 minutes and 12 feconds. Two experienced ship-masters, Jonas Clarke and Samuel Andrews, were then difpatched to the eastern coaft, who found the fame degrees, minutes, and feconds, on the northern point of an ifland in Cafco Bay, called the Upper Clapboard Ifland. An eaft and west line, drawn through these points from the Atlantic to the South fea, was therefore fuppofed to be the northern boundary of the Maffachufetts patent, within which the whole claim of Mafon, and the greater part of that of Gorges were comprehended. When this grand point was determined, the court were of opinion, that " fome lands at Newichwannock, with the " river, 103 1652.

Elias Stileman, John Cutts, Richard Martyn, Richard Cook, of Bofton. For Hampton. Jeoffry Mingay, Henry Dow, William Fuller, Robert Page, Roger Shaw, Roger Page, Samuel Dalton, Jofhua Gilman, Anthony Stanyon, Chriftopher Huffey, William Gerrith, Jofeph Huffey.

I do not find that Excter fent any deputies to court during this, union. Gen. Court Rec.

Maffa.Rec.

1653.

1653.

" river, were by agreement of Sir Ferdi-" nando Gorges and others, apportioned " to Captain Mafon, and that he alfo had " right by purchafe of the Indians, as alfo " by poffeffion and improvement;" and they ordered " a quantity of land propor-"tionable to his difburfements, with the " privilege of the river, to be laid out to " his heirs." The agent made no attempt to recover any other part of the eflate; but having tarried long enough in the country to obferve the temper of the government, and the management used in the determination of his fuit, he returned ; and the eftate was given up for loft unlefs the government of England fhould interpofe.

During the commonwealth, and the protectorate of Cromwell, there could be no hope of relief, as the family had always been attached to the royal caufe, and the colony flood high in the favor of the parliament and of Cromwell. But the reftoration of King Charles the fecond encouraged Tufton, who now took the firname of Mafon, to look up to the throne for favor and affiftance. For though the plan of colonization adopted by his grandfather was in itfelf chimerical, and proved fruitlefs, yet he had expended a large eftate in the 1660.

the profecution of it, which must have been wholly loft to his heirs, unlefs they could recover the poffeffion of his American territories. Full of this idea, Mason petitioned the king; fetting forth ' the en-' croachment of the Maffachufetts colony ' upon his lands, their making grants and ' giving titles to the inhabitants, and there-· by difpoffeffing him and keeping him 'out of his right.' The king referred the petition to his attorney-general Sir Geoffry Palmer, who reported that " Robert " Mafon, grandfon and heir to Capt. John " Mafon, had a good and legal title to the " province of New-Hampfhire." Nothing farther was done at this time, nor was the matter mentioned in the letter which the king foon after fent to the colony, though fome offenfive things in their conduct were therein reprehended, and divers alterations enjoined. But the directions contained in this letter not being ftrictly attended to, and complaints being made to the king of difputes which had arifen in divers parts of New-England concerning the limits of jurifdiction, and addreffes having been prefented by feveral perfons, praying for the royal interpolition; a commission was islued under the great feal to Colonel Richard Nichols, Sir Robert Carre, knight, George Carteret 1660.

Nov. 8. MS in Su. Cour. files.

1662. Huteb. Collect. of papers, p. 377.

Hutch. Hift Maf. vol. I. p. 535-

> 1664. April 25.

1664.

Carteret and Samuel Maverick, efquires, impowering them " to vifit the feveral co-" lonies of New-England; to examine " and determine all complaints and ap-" peals in matters civil, military and cri-" minal; to provide for the peace and fe-" curity of the country, according to their " good and found diferetion, and to fuch " inftructions as they fhould receive from " the king, and to certify him of their pro-" ceedings."

This commiffion was highly difrelifhed by the colony, as inconfiftent with the rights and privileges which they enjoyed by their charter, and which the king had facredly promifed to confirm. It is therefore no wonder that the commiffioners were treated with much coolnefs at their arrival; but they feverely repaid it in their report to the king.

Hutch. Colle. pap. 417.

1665.

In their progrefs through the country they came to Pafcataqua, and enquired into the bounds of Mafon's patent. They heard the allegation of Whelewright, who when banifhed by the colony, was permitted to refide immediately beyond what was called the bound-houfe, which was three large miles to the northward of the river Merrimack. They took the affidavit of Henry Jocelyn concerning the agreement

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

ment between Governor Cradock and Captain Mafon, that the river should be the boundary of their respective patents. They made no determination of this controverfy in their report to the king; but having called together the inhabitants of Portfmouth, Sir Robert Carre, in the name of the reft, told them that " they would " releafe them from the government of " Maffachusetts whose jurifdiction should " come no farther than the bound-house." They then proceeded to appoint juffices of the peace and other officers, with power to act according to the laws of England, and fuch laws of their own as were not repugnant thereto, until the king's pleafure should be farther known.

There had always been a party here who were diffaffected to the government of Maffachufetts. One of the moft active among them was Abraham Corbett of Portfmouth, who, fince the arrival of the commiffioners at Bofton, and probably by authority derived from them, had taken upon him to iffue warrants in the king's name on feveral occafions, which was conftrued a high mifdemeanor, as he had never been commiffioned by the authority of the colony. Being called to account by the general court, he was admonifhed, fined five Mafs Rec. Octo. 10.

107

1665.

Hutchin. Collection pap. 488.

Maffa. Rec.

108

1665.

five pounds, and committed till the fentence was performed. Irritated by this feverity, he was the fitter inftrument for the purpofe of the commiffioners, who employed him to frame a petition to the king in the name of the four towns, complaining of the ufurpation of Maffachufetts over them, and praying to be releafed from their tyranny. Corbett, in a fecret manner, procured feveral perfons both in Portfmouth and Dover to fubfcribe this petition, but the most of those to whom he offered it refused.

The fenfible part of the inhabitants now faw with much concern that they were in danger of being reduced to the fame unhappy flate which they had been in before their union with the colony. Awed by the fupercilious behaviour of the commiffioners, they knew not at first how to act: for to oppose the king's authority was conftrued treason, and it was faid that Sir Robert Carre had threatened a poor old man with death for no other crime than forbidding his grandchild to open a door to them. But when the rumour was fpread that a petition was drawn, and that Corbett was procuring fubfcribers, the people, no longer able to bear the abuse, earnestly applied to the general court, praying " that

" that in fome orderly way they might " have an opportunity to clear themfelves " of fo great and unjuft afperfions, as were " by this petition, drawn in their name, " caft upon the government under which " they were fettled; and alfo to manifeft " their fenfe of fuch perfidious actions, left " by their filence it fhould be concluded " they were of the fame mind with thofe " who framed the petition." In confequence of this petition, the court commiffioned Thomas Danforth, Eleazar Lufher, and Major General Leverett to enquire into the matter, and fettle the peace in thefe places according to their beft difcretion.

These gentlemen came to Portsmouth, and having affembled the inhabitants, and published their commission, they told them that they were informed of a petition fubfcribed in behalf of that and the neighbouring towns, complaining of the government; and defired them if they had any just grievances to let them be known, and report should be immediately made to the general court. The next day they affembled the people of Dover and made the fame challenge. Both towns refpectively protested against the petition, and professed full fatisfaction with the government, which they fignified in addreffes to the

October 9.

1665.

the court. Dudley, the minister of Exeter, certified under his hand to the committee, that the people of that town had no concern directly nor indirectly with the obnoxious petition. They received alfo full fatisfaction with regard to Hampton; a certificate of which might have been obtained, if they had thought it neceffary.

They then proceeded to fummon Corbett before them for feditious behaviour; but he eluded the fearch that was made for him, and they were obliged to leave a warrant with an officer to cite him to the court at Bofton. The commiffioners had now gone over into the province of Maine, from whence Sir Robert Carre in their name fent a fevere reprimand to this committee, forbidding them to proceed againft fuch perfons as had fubfcribed the petition, and inclofing a copy of a letter which the faid commiffioners had written to the governor and council on the fame fubject.

The committee returned and reported their proceedings to the court, and about the fame time the commiffioners came from their eaftern tour to Bofton; where the court defired a conference with them, but received fuch an anfwer from Sir Robert Carre as determined them not to repeat their requeft. A warrant was then iffued iffued by the fecretary, in the name of the whole court, to apprehend Corbett and bring him before the governor and magistrates, " to answer for his tumultuous " and feditious practices against the go-" vernment." The next fpring he was feized and brought before them; and after a full hearing was adjudged guilty of fedition, and exciting others to difcontent with the government and laws, and of keeping a diforderly houfe of entertainment, for which crimes he was fentenced to give a bond of one hundred pounds with fecurity for his peaceable behaviour and obedience to the laws; he was prohibited retailing liquors; difabled from bearing any office in the town or commonwealth, during the pleafure of the court; and obliged to pay a fine of twenty pounds and five pounds for the cofts of his profecution.

IIO

This feverity in vindication of their charter-rights they thought fit to temper with fomething that had the appearance of fubmiffion to the royal commands. The king's pleafure had been fignified to the commiffioners, that the harbours fhould be fortified. This inftruction came to hand while they were at Pafcataqua, and they immediately iffued warrants to the four four towns, requiring them to meet at a time and place appointed to receive his majesty's orders. One of these warrants was tent by express to Boston, from whence two officers were difpatched by the governor and council to forbid the towns on their peril to meet, or obey the commands of the commissioners. But by their own authority they ordered a committee to look out the most convenient place for a fortification, upon whole report " the neck of land on the eaftward of the " Great Island, where a fmall fort had " been already built, was fequestered for " the purpofe, taking in the Great Rock, " and from thence all the easterly part of " the faid island." The court of affociates being impowered to hear and determine the claims of those who pretended any title to this land; a claim was entered by George Walton, but rejected; and the appropriation confirmed. The cuftoms and imposts on goods imported into the harbour were applied to the maintenance of the fort, and the trained bands of Great-Island and Kittery-Point were discharged from all other duty to attend the fervice of it, under Richard Cutts, efq. who was appointed captain.

Hutchin. Collect. pap. 419.

1665.

1666. May 23. 1666.

Maffa. Rec.

The

The people of Maffachufetts have, both in former and latter times, been charged with difloyalty to the king in their conduct toward these commissioners, and their difregard of authority derived from the fame fource with their charter. To account for their conduct on this occasion, we must confider the ideas they had of their political connexion with the parent flate. They had been forced from thence by perfecution: they came at their own charges into a wildernefs, claimed indeed by the crown of England; but really in poffeffion of its native lords; from whom they had purchafed the foil and fovereignty, which gave them a title, confidered in a moral view, fuperior to the grant of any European prince. For convenience only, they had folicited and accepted a patent from the crown, which in their opinion conflituted the only bond of union between them and their prince, by which the nature and extent of their allegiance to him was to be determined. This patent they regarded as a folemn compact, wherein the king had granted them undiffurbed poffeffion of the foil, and power of government within certain limits; on condition that they should settle the country, chriftianize the natives, yield a fifth of all gold and and filver mines to the crown, and make no laws repugnant to those of England. They had, on their part, facredly performed these conditions; and therefore concluded that the grant of title, property and dominion which the crown had made to them was irrevocable. And although they acknowledged themselves subjects of the reigning prince, and owned a dependence on the royal authority; yet they underflood it to be only through the medium of their charter.

II3

1666.

1666.

The appointment of commissioners who were to act within the fame limits, independently of this authority, and to receive appeals from it; whofe rule of conduct was no eftablished law, but their own " good and found diferetion," was regarded as a dangerous ftretch of royal power, militating with and fuperfeding their charter. If the royal authority was defined to flow through the patent, it could not regularly be turned into another channel: if they were to be governed by laws made and executed by officers of their own choofing, they could not at the fame time be governed by the "difcretion" of men in whofe appointment they had no voice, and over whom they had no control. Two ruling powers in the fame flate was a folecifm lecifm which they could not digeft. The patent was neither forfeited nor revoked; but the king had folemnly promifed to confirm it, and it fubfifted in full force. The commission therefore was deemed an usurpation and infringement of those chartered rights, which had been folemnly pledged on the one part, dearly purchafed and juffly paid for on the other. They regarded " a royal donation under the great feal (to use their own words) " as the greateft fecurity that could be had in human affairs;" and they had confidence in the juffice of the fupreme ruler, that if they held what they in their confciences thought to be their rights, and performed the engagements by which they had acquired them, they should enjoy the protection of his providence, * though they fhould be obliged to abandon the country, which they had planted with fo much labour and expence, and feek a new fettlement in fome other part of the globe.

These were the principles which they I 2 had

* "Keep to your patent. Your patent was a royal grant in-"deed; and it is inftrumentally your defence and fecurity. Recede from that, one way or the other, and you will expose yourfelves to the wrath of God aud the rage of man. Fix upon the patent, and ftand for the liberties and immunities conferred upon you therein; and you have GOD and the king with you, both a good therein; and you have GOD and the king with good confeience fet your foot againft any foot of pride and violence that fhall come againft you." Prefident Oakes's Election Sermon 1673. 1666.

Hutch. Hift. Maff. Vol. 1. p. 5431666.

had imbibed, which they openly avowed and on which they acted. Policy might have dictated to them the fame flexibility of conduct, and foftnefs of expreffion, by which the other colonies on this occafion gained the royal favour. But they had fo long held the fole and uninterrupted fovereignty, in which they had been indulged by the late popular government in England; and were fo fully convinced it was their right; that they chofe rather to rifque the lofs of all, than to make any conceffions; thereby expofing themfelves farther to the malice of their enemies and the vengeance of power.

The commissioners, having finished their bufinefs, were recalled by the order of the king, who was much difpleafed with the ill treatment they had received from the Maffachufetts government, which was the more heinous, as the colonies of Plymouth, Rhode-Island and Connecticut had treated the commiffion with acknowledged refpect. By a letter to the colony he commanded them to fend over four or five agents, promifing " to hear in perfon, all the allega-" tions, fuggeftions, and pretences to right " or favour, that could be made on behalf " of the colony," intimating that he was far from defiring to invade their charter; and

April 10. Hutch, p. 547. and commanding that all things fhould rémain as the commiffioners had fettled them until his farther order; and that thofe perfons who had been imprifoned for petitioning or applying to them fhould be releafed. The court, however, continued to exercife jurifdiction, appoint officers, and execute the laws in thefe towns as they had done for twenty-five years, to the general fatisfaction of the people who were united with them in principles and affection.

This affection was demonstrated by their ready concurrence with the proposal for a general collection, for the purpose of erecting a new brick building * at Harvard college, the old wooden one being small and decayed. The town of Portsmouth, which was now become the richest, made a subfeription of fixty pounds per annum for feven years; and after five years passed a town vote to carry this engagement into effect. Dover gave thirty-two, and Exeter ten pounds for the same laudable purpose.

The people of Portfmouth, having for fome time employed Jofhua Moody as a preacher among them, and erected a new meeting-

* This building was crefted in 1672, and confumed by fire in 1764.

1669.

Harvard Col. Rec.

1671.

1666.

1666. ~~

Portf.Chh. Records.

1674

Hutch. Collection of Papers,

451, 472.

meeting-houfe, proceeded to fettle him in regular order. A church confifting of nine brethren † was first gathered; then, the general court having been duly informed of it, and having fignified their approbation, according to the established practice, Moody was ordained in the prefence of Governor Leverett and feveral of the magistrates.

The whole attention of the government in England being at this time taken up with things that more immediately concerned themfelves, nothing of moment relating to Mafon's intereft was transacted. He became difcouraged, and joined with the heirs of Gorges in proposing an alienation of their respective rights in the provinces of New-Hampshire and Maine to the crown, to make a government for the Duke of Monmouth. The duke himfelf was greatly pleafed with the fcheme, as he had been told that an annual revenue of five thousand pounds or more might be collected from these provinces. But by the more faithful reprefentations of fome perfons who were well acquainted with the country, he was induced to lay afide the project.

 John Cutts, John Cutts, Richard Cutts, Richard Martyn, Elias Stileman, Samuel Haynes, James Pendleton, John Fletcher, John Tucker."

118

project. Many complaints were made againft the government of Maffachufetts; and it was thought to be highly expedient that more fevere meafures fhould be ufed with them; but the Dutch wars, and other foreign transactions, prevented any determination concerning them, till the country was involved in all the horrors of a general war with the natives.

CHAP.

1674.

HISTORY OF

C H A P. V.

Remarks on the temper and manners of the Indians. The first general war with them called Philip's war.

A T the time of the first discovery of the river Pasccataqua by Captain Smith, it was found that the native inhabitants of these parts differed not in language, manners, nor government, from their eaftern or western neighbours. Though they were divided into feveral tribes, each of which had a diffinct fachem, yet they all owned fubjection to a fovereign prince, called Baffaba, whofe refidence was fomewhere about Pemaquid. It was foon after found that the Tarratenes, who lived farther eastward, had invaded his country, furprized and flain him, and all the people in his neighbourhood, and carried off his women, leaving no traces of his authority. Upon which the fubordinate fachems, having no head to unite them, and each one ftriving for the pre-eminence, made war among themfelves; whereby many of their people, and much of their provision were destroyed. When Sir Richard Hawkins vifited the coaft in 1615, this war was at Smith's Voyage.

Gorges's Narrat. p. 17. 54.

at its height; and to this fucceeded a pestilence, which carried them off in fuch numbers that the living were not able to bury the dead; but their bones remained at the places of their habitations for feveral During this peftilence, Richard years. Vines and feveral others, whom Sir Ferdinando Gorges had hired, at a great expence, to tarry in the country through the winter, lived among them and lodged in their cabbins, without receiving the leaft injury in their health, " not fo much as " feeling their heads to ach the whole " time." By fuch fingular means did divine providence prepare the way for the peaceable entrance of the Europeans into this land.

When the first fettlements were made, the remains of two tribes had their habitations on the feveral branches of the river Pafcataqua; one of their fachems lived at the falls of Squamfcot, and the other at those of Newichwannock; their head quarters being generally feated in places convenient for fishing. Both these, together with several inland tribes, who resided at Pantucket and Winnipiseogee, acknowledged subjection to Passa per acknowledged several factor of the several monly pronounced) Penacook. He excelled Prince's Annals. 1617-

Gorges, p. 12. led the other fachems in fagacity, duplicity and moderation; but his principal qualification was his fkill in fome of the fecret operations of nature, which gave him the reputation of a forcerer, and extended his fame and influence among all the neighbouring tribes. They believed that it was in his power to make water burn, and trees dance, and to metamorphofe himfelf into flame; that in winter he could raife a green leaf from the afhes of a dry one, and a living ferpent from the fkin of one that was dead.

An English gentleman who had been much converfant among the Indians was invited, in 1660, to a great dance and feaft; on which occafion the elderly men, in fongs or fpeeches recite their hiftories, and deliver their fentiments, and advice, to the younger. At this folemnity Paffaconaway, being grown old, made his farewell speech to his children and people; in which, as a dying man, he warned them to take heed how they quarrelled with their English neighbours; for though they might do them fome damage, yet it would prove the means of their own destruction. He told them that he had been a bitter enemy to the English, and by the arts of forcery had tried his utmost to hinder their Hutch. Hift. Maff. Vol 1. p. 474. their fettlement and increafe; but could by no means fucceed. This caution perhaps often repeated, had fuch an effect, that upon the breaking out of the Indian war fifteen years afterward, Wonolanfet, his fon and fucceffor, withdrew himfelf and his people into fome remote place, that they might not be drawn into the quarrel.

While the Britifh nations had been diftracted with internal convulsions, and had endured the horrors of a civil war, produced by the fame caufes which forced the planters of New-England to quit the land of their nativity; this wildernefs had been to them a quiet habitation. They had ftruggled with many hardfhips; but providence had fmiled upon their undertaking, their fettlements were extended and their churches multiplied. There had been no remarkable quarrel with the favages, except the fhort war with the Pequods, who dwelt in the fouth-east part of Connecticut: They being totally fubdued in 1637, the dread and terror of the English kept the other nations quiet for near forty years. During which time the New-England colonies being confederated for their mutual defence, and for maintaining the public peace, took great pains to propagate the gofpel among the natives, and bring Hubbard's printed Narrative. p. 9. 31. bring them to a civilized way of living, which, with refpect to fome, proved effectual; others refufed to receive the miffionaries, and remained obflinately prejudiced against the English. Yet the object of their hatred was at the same time the object of their fear; which led them to forbear acts of hostility, and to preferve an outward shew of friendship, to their mutual interest.

Our historians have generally reprefented the Indians in a most odious light, efpecially when recounting the effects of their ferocity. Dogs, caitiffs, miscreants and hell-hounds, are the politest names which have been given them by fome writers, who feem to be in a paffion at the mentioning their cruelties, and at other times fpeak of them with contempt. Whatever indulgence may be allowed to those who wrote in times when the mind was vexed with their recent depredations and inhumanities, it ill becomes us to cherifh an inveterate hatred of the unhappy natives. Religion teaches us a better temper, and providence has now put an end to the controverfy, by their almost total extirpation. We should therefore proceed with calmnefs in recollecting their paft injuries, and forming our judgment of their character. It Hubbard's Narrative and Mather's Magnalia. It must be acknowledged that human depravity appeared in these unhappy creatures in a most shocking view. The principles of education and the refinements of civilized life, either lay a check upon our vicious propensities, or difguise our crimes; but among them human wickedness was seen in its naked deformity. Yet, bad as they were, it will be difficult to find them guilty of any crime which cannot be paralleled among civilized nations.

They are always defcribed as remarkably cruel; and it cannot be denied that this difpofition indulged to the greateft excefs, ftrongly marks their character. We are ftruck with horror, when we hear of their binding the victim to the flake, biting off his nails, tearing out his hair by the roots, pulling out his tongue, boring out his eyes, flicking his fkin full of lighted pitch-wood, half roafting him at the fire, and then making him run for their diverfion, till he faints and dies under the blows which they give him on every part of his body. But is it not as dreadful to read of an unhappy wretch, fewed up in a fack full of ferpents and thrown into the fea, or broiled in a red hot iron chair; or mangled by lions and tygers after having fpent his ftrength to combat them for the divertion verfion of the spectators in an amphitheatre? and yet thefe were punifhments among the Romans in the politest ages of the empire. What greater cruelty is there in the American tortures, than in confining a man in a trough, and daubing him with honey that he may be flung to death by wafps and other venomous infects; or fleaing him alive and stretching out his skin before his eyes, which modes of punishment were not inconfistent with the foftnefs and elegance of the ancient court of Perfia? or, to come down to modern times; what greater mifery can there be in the Indian executions, than in racking a prifoner on a wheel, and breaking his bones one by one with an iron bar; or placing his legs in a boot and driving in wedges one after another; which tortures are ftill, or have till lately been ufed in fome European kingdoms? I forbear to name the torments of the inquisition, because they feem to be beyond the ftretch of human invention. If civilized nations, and those who profess the most merciful religion that ever bleffed the world, have practifed thefe cruelties, what could be expected of men who were ftrangers to every degree of refinement either civil or mental?

The Indians have been reprefented as revengeful.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

revengeful. When any perfon was killed, the neareft relative thought himfelf bound to be the avenger of blood, and never left feeking, till he found an opportunity to execute his purpofe. Whether in a flate, where government is confeffedly fo feeble as among them, fuch a conduct is not juftifiable, and even countenanced by the Jewifh law may deferve our confideration.

The treachery with which these people are justly charged, is exactly the fame difposition which operates in the breach of solemn treaties made between nations which call themselves christian. Can it be more criminal in an Indian, than in an European, not to think himself bound by promises and oaths extorted from him when under dures?

Their jealou/y and hatred of their Englifh neighbours may eafily be accounted for, if we allow them to have the fame feelings with ourfelves. How natural is it for us to form a difagreeable idea of a whole nation, from the bad conduct of fome individuals with whom we are acquainted? and though others of them may be of a different character, yet will not that prudence which is efteemed a virtue, lead us to fulpect the faireft appearances, Numbers ch. 35. v. 19. Deuteronomy ch. 19. v. 13.

as ufed to cover the most fraudulent defigns, especially if pains are taken by the most politic among us, to foment fuch jealoufies to fubferve their own ambitious purposes?

Though the greater part of the English fettlers came hither with religious views, and fairly purchafed their lands of the Indians, yet it cannot be denied that fome, efpecially in the eaftern parts of New-England, had lucrative views only; and from the beginning used fraudulent methods in trade with them. Such things were indeed difallowed by the government, and would always have been punished if the Indians had made complaint : but they knew only the law of retaliation, and when an injury was received, it was never forgotten till revenged. Encroachments made on their lands, and fraud committed in trade, afforded fufficient grounds for a quarrel, though at ever fo great a length of time; and kept alive a perpetual jealoufy of the like treatment again*.

Such

* Monf. du Pratz gives nearly the fame account of the Indians on the Miffiffippi. "There needs nothing but prudence and good "fenfe to perfuade thefe people to what is reafonable, and to pre-"fervetheir friendfhip without interruption. We may fafely affirm, "that the differences we have had with them have been more ow "ing to the French than to them. When they are treated info-"lently, or oppreffively, they have no lefs fenfibility of injuries "than others." Hiftory of Louifiana, lib. 4. cap. 3.

Such was the temper of the Indians of New-England when the first general war began. It was thought by the English in that day, that Philip, fachem of the Wompanoags, a crafty and afpiring man, partly by intrigue, and partly by example, excited them to fuch a general combination. He was the fon of Maffaffoiet, the neareft fachem to the colony of Plymouth, with whom he had concluded a peace, which he maintained more through fear than good will, as long as he lived. His fon and immediate fucceffor Alexander, preferved the fame external shew of friendship; but died with choler on being detected in a plot against them. Philip, it is faid, diffembled his hoftile pupofes; he was ready, on every fufpicion of his infidelity, to renew his fubmiffion, and teftify it even by the delivery of his arms, till he had fecretly infufed a cruel jealoufy into many of the neighbouring Indians; which excited them to attempt the recovering their country by extirpating the new poffeffors. The plot, it is faid, was difcovered before it was ripe for execution; and as he could no longer promise himself security under the mask of friendship, he was constrained to shew himfelf in his true character, and accordingly began hostilities upon the plantation of K Swanzy,

I2Q

Swanzy, in the colony of Plymouth, in the month of June 1675.

Notwithstanding this general opinion, it may admit of fome doubt, whether a fingle fachem, whofe authority was limited, could have fuch an extensive influence over tribes foremote and unconnected with him as the eaftern Indians; much more improbable is it, that those in Virginia fhould have joined in the confederacy, as it hath been intimated. The Indians never travelled to any greater diftance than their hunting required; and fo ignorant were they of the geography of their country, that they imagined New-England to be an ifland, and could tell the name of an inlet or ftreight by which they fuppoled it was feparated from the main land. But what renders it more improbable that Philip was fo active an inftrument in exciting this war, is the conftant tradition among the posterity of those people who lived near him, and were familiarly converfant with him, and with those of his Indians who furvived the war: which is, that he was forced on by the fury of his young men, forely against his own judgment and that of his chief counfellors; and that as he forefaw that the English would, in in time, eftablish themselves and extirpate the Indians, fo he thought that the making war upon them would only haften the destruction of his own people. It was always a very common, and fomctimes a juft excufe with the Indians, when charged with breach of faith, that the old men were not able to reftrain the younger from fignalizing their valour, and gratifying their revenge, though they difapproved their rafhnefs. This want of reftraint was owing to the weaknefs of their government; their fachems having but the fhadow of magistratical authority.

Hubbard's Narrative, p. 12.

Neal's Hitt. N.E. Vol.1.p.21.

The inhabitants of Briftol fhew a particular fpot where Philip received the news of the first Englishmen that were killed, with fo much forrow as to caufe him to weep; a few days before which he had refcued one who had been taken by his Indians, and privately fent him home. Whatever credit may be given to this account, fo different from the current opinion, it must be owned, that in such a feafon of general confusion as the first war occafioned, fear and jealoufy might create many fufpicions, which would foon be formed into reports of a general confederacy, through Philip's contrivance; and it is to be noted that the principal hiftories K 2 of Callender's Century Sermon, p.

132 of this war, [Increafe Mather's and Hubbard's] were printed in 1676 and 1677, when the ftrangeft reports were eafily credited, and the people were ready to believe every thing that was bad of fo formidable a neighbour as Philip. But as the fact cannot now be precifely afcertained, I fhall detain the reader no longer from the real caufes of the war in thefe eaftern parts.

Hubbard, p. 29. 61.

There dwelled near the river Saco a fachem named Squando, a noted enthufiaft, a leader in the devotions of their religion, and one that pretended to a familiar intercourfe with the invisible world. Thefe qualifications rendered him a perfon of the higheft dignity, importance and influence among all the eaftern Indians. His fquaw paffing along the river in a canoe, with her infant child, was met by fome rude failors, who having heard that the Indian children could fwim as naturally as the young of the brutal kind, in a thoughtlefs and unguarded humour overfet the canoe. The child funk, and the mother instantly diving fetched it up alive, but the child dying foon after, its death was imputed to the treatment it had received from the feamen; and Squando was fo provoked that he conceived a bitter antipathy pathy to the English, and employed his great art and influence to excite the Indians against them. Some other injuries were alledged as the ground of the quarrel; and, confidering the interested views and irregular lives of many of the castern fettlers, their distance from the feat of government, and the want of due fubordination among them, it is not improbable that a great part of the blame of the eastern war belonged to them.

The first alarm of the war in Plymouth colony fpread great confternation among the diftant Indians, and held them a while in fuspence what part to act; for there had been a long external friendship sublishing between them and the English, and they were afraid of provoking fo powerful neighbours. But the feeds of jealoufy and hatred had been fo effectually fown, that the crafty and revengeful, and those who were ambitious of doing fome exploits, foon found means to urge them on to an open rupture; fo that within twenty days after Philip had begun the war at the fouthward, the flame broke out in the most northeasterly part of the country, at the distance of two hundred miles.

Hubband, p. 13.

The English inhabitants about the river Kennebeck, hearing of the infurrection in Plymouth 1675.

Magnalia, Lib. 7. p.

134

Plymouth colony, determined to make trial of the fidelity of their Indian neighbours, by requefting them to deliver their arms. They made a fhew of compliance; but, in doing it, committed an act of violence on a Frenchman, who lived in an English family; which being judged an offence, both by the English and the elder Indians, the offender was feized; but upon a promise, with fecurity, for his future good behaviour, his life was fpared, and fome of them confented to remain as hoftages; who foon made their efcape, and joined with their fellows in robbing the houfe of Purchas, an ancient planter at Pechypfcot:

The quarrel being thus begun, and their natural hatred of the Englifh, and jealoufy of their defigns, having rifen to a great height under the malignant influence of Squando and other leading men; and being encouraged by the example of the weftern Indians, who were daily making depredations on the colonies of Plymouth, and Maffachufetts; they took every opportunity to rob and murder the people in the fcattered fettlements of the province of Maine; and having difperfed themfelves into many fmall parties, that they might be the more extensively mifchievous, mischievous, in the month of September they approached the plantations at Pafcataqua, and made their first onset at Oyster river then a part of the town of Dover, but now Durham. Here they burned two houfes belonging to two perfons named Chefly, killed two men in a canoe, and carried away two captives; both of whom foon after made their escape. About the fame time a party of four laid in ambufh near the road between Exeter and Hampton, where they killed one, and took another, who made his escape. Within a few days an affault was made on the houfe of one Tozer at Newichwannock, wherein were fifteen women and children, all of whom, except two, were faved by the intrepidity of a girl of eighteen. She first feeing the Indians as they advanced to the houfe, that the door and flood against it, till the others efcaped to the next house, which was better fecured. The Indians chopped the door to pieces with their hatchets, and then entering, they knocked her down, and leaving her for dead, went in purfuit of the others, of whom two children, who could not get over the fence, fell into their hands. The adventurous heroine recovered, and was perfectly healed of her wound.

× -

Hubbard, p. 19.

1675.

The

Hubbard, p. 22.

The two following days they made feveral appearances on both fides of the river, using much infolence, and burning two houfes and three barns, with a large quantity of grain. Some shot were exchanged without effect, and a purfuit was made after them into the woods by eight men, but night obliged them to return without fuccefs. Five or fix houfes were burned at Oyster river, and two more men killed. Thefe daily infults could not be borne without indignation and reprifal. About twenty young men, chiefly of Dover, obtained leave of Major Waldron, then commander of the militia, to try their fkill and courage with the Indians in their own way. Having fcattered themfelves in the woods, a fmall party of them difcovered five Indians in a field near a deferted houfe, fome of whom were gathering corn, and others kindling a fire to roaft it. The men were at fuch a diftance from their. fellows that they could make no fignal to them without danger of a difcovery; two of them, therefore, crept along filently, near to the house, from whence they fuddenly rushed upon those two Indians, who were bufy at the fire, and knocked them down with the butts of their guns; the other three took the alarm and efcaped. All

136

All the plantations at Pafcataqua, with the whole eastern country, were now filled with fear and confusion: Bufiness was fuspended, and every man was obliged to provide for his own and his family's fafety. The only way was to defert their habitations, and retire together within the larger and more convenient houfes, which they fortified with a timber wall and flankarts, placing a centry-box on the roof. Thus the labour of the field was exchanged for the duty of the garrifon, and they who had long lived in peace and fecurity were upon their guard night and day, fubject to continual alarms, and the most fearful apprehenfions.

The feventh of October was obferved as a day of fafting and prayer; and on the fixteenth the enemy made an affault upon the inhabitants at Salmon falls, in Berwick. Lieutenant Roger Plaifted, being a man of true courage and of a public fpirit, immediately fent out a party of feven from his garrifon to make difcovery. They fell into an ambufh; three were killed, and the reft retreated. The Lieutenant then difpatched an express to Major Waldron and Lieutenant Coffin at Cochecho, begging most importunately for help, which they were in no capacity to afford, confistently

Hubbard,

1. 24.

fistently with their own fafety. The next day Plaisted ventured out with twenty men, and a cart to fetch the dead bodies of their friends, and unhappily fell into another ambush. The cattle affrighted ran back, and Plaisted being deferted by his men, and difdaining either to yield or fly, was killed on the fpot, with his eldeft fon and one more; his other fon died of his wound in a few weeks. Had the heroifm of this worthy family been imitated by the reft of the party, and a reinforcement arrived in feafon, the enemy might have received fuch a fevere check as would have prevented them from appearing in fmall parties. The gallant behaviour of Plaisted, though fatal to himfelf and his fons, had this good effect, that the enemy retreated to the woods; and the next day Captain Froft came up with a party from Sturgeon creek, and peaceably buried the dead : But before the month had expired a mill was burned there, and an affault made on Frost's garrifon, who though he had only three boys with him, kept up a conftant fire, and called aloud as if he were commanding a body of men, to march here and fire there: the ftratagem fucceeded, and the houfe was faved. The enemy then proceeded down the river, killing and plundering as they found found people off their guard, till they came opposite to Portfmouth; from whence fome cannon being fired they difperfed, and were purfued by the help of a light fnow which fell in the night, and were overtaken by the fide of a fwamp, into which they threw themfelves, leaving their packs and plunder to the purfuers. They foon after did more mifchief at Dover, Lamprey river and Exetcr; and with thefe fmall, but irritating affaults and fkirminhes, the autumn was tpent until the end of November; when the number of people killed and taken from Kennebeck to Pafcataqua amounted to upwards of fifty.

138

The Maffachufetts government being fully employed in defending the fouthern and weftern parts, could not feafonably fend fuccours to the eastward. Major General Denifon, who commanded the militia of the colony, had ordered the majors who commanded the regiments on this fide of the country, to draw out a fufficient number of men to reduce the enemy, by attacking them at their retreat to their head-quarters at Offapy and Pigwacket. But the winter fetting in early and fiercely, and the men being unprovided with rackets to travel on the fnow, which by the tenth of December was four feet deep in the the woods, it was impoffible to execute the defign. This peculiar feverity of the feafon however proved favourable. The Indians were pinched with famine, and having loft by their own confession about ninety of their number, partly by the war, and partly for want of food, they were reduced to the neceffity of fuing for peace. With this view they came to Major Waldron, expreffing great forrow for what had been done, and promifing to be quiet and fubmiffive. By his mediation a peace was concluded with the whole body of eaftern Indians, which continued till the next Auguft; and might have continued longer, if the inhabitants of the eastern parts had not been too intent on private gain, and of a difpolition too ungovernable to be a barrier against an enemy fo irritable and vindictive. The reftoration of the captives made the peace more pleafant : A return from the dead could not be more welcome than a deliverance from Indian captivity.

Church's Memoirs, P·44· The war at the fouthward, though renewed in the fpring, drew toward a clofe. Philip's affairs were defperate; many of his allies and dependents forfook him; and in the month of August he was slain by a party under Captain Church. Those western Indians who had been engaged in the the war, now fearing a total extirpation, endeavoured to conceal themfelves among their brethren of Penacook who had not joined in the war, and with those of Offapy and Pigwacket who had made peace. But they could not fo difguife themfelves or their behaviour as to efcape the difcernment of those who had been conversant with Indians. Several of them were taken at different times and delivered up to public execution. Three of them, Simon, Andrew and Peter, who had been concerned in killing Thomas Kimbal of Bradford, and captivating his family, did, within fix weeks voluntarily reftore the woman and five children. It being doubted whether this act of fubmillion was a fufficient atonement for the murder, they were committed to Dover prifon till their cafe could be confidered. Fearing that this confinement was a prelude to farther punifhment, they broke out of prifon, and going to the eastward, joined with the Indians of Kennebeck and Amorifcogin in those depiedations which they renewed on the inhabitants of those parts, in August, and were afterward active in diffreffing the people at Pascataqua.

140

This renewal of hoftilities occafioned the fending of two companies to the eaftward under under Captain Joseph Syll, and Captain William Hawthorne. In the courfe of their march they came to Cochecho, on the fixth of September, where four hundred mixed Indians were met at the house of Major Waldron, with whom they had made the peace, and whom they confidered as their friend and father. The two captains would have fallen upon them at sordce, having it in their orders to feize all Indians, who had been concerned in the war. The major diffuaded them from that purpofe, and contrived the following ftratagem. He proposed to the Indians, to have a training the next day, and a fham fight after the English mode; and fummoning his own men, with those under Captain Froft of Kittery, they, in conjunction with the two companies, formed one party, and the Indians another. Having diverted them a while in this manner, and caufed the Indians to fire the first volley; by a peculiar dexterity, the whole body of them (except two or three) were furrounded, before they could form a fufpicion of what was intended. They were immediately feized and difarmed, without the lofs of a man on either fide. A feparation was then made : Wonolanfet, with the Penacook Indians, and others who had had joined in making peace the winter before, were peaceably difmified; but the ftrange Indians, (as they were called) who had fled from the fouthward and taken refuge among them, were made prifoners, to the number of two hundred; and being fent to Bofton, feven or eight of them, who were known to have killed any Englifhmen, were condemned and hanged; the reft were fold into flavery in foreign parts.

This action was highly applauded by the general voice of the colony; as it gave them opportunity to deal with their enemies in a judicial way, as rebels, and, as they imagined, to extirpate those troublefome neighbours. The remaining Indians, however, looked upon the conduct of Major Waldron as a breach of faith; inafmuch as they had taken those fugitive Indians under their protection, and had made peace with him, which had been frictly obferved with regard to him and his neighbours, though it had been broken elfewhere. The Indians had no idea of the fame government being extended very far, and thought they might make peace in one place, and war in another, without any imputation of infidelity; but a breach of hospitality and friendship, as they deemed ed this to be, merited, according to their principles, a fevere revenge, and was never to be forgotten or forgiven. The major's fituation on this occasion was indeed extremely critical; and he could not have acted either way without blame. It is faid that his own judgment was against any forcible measure, as he knew that many of those Indians were true friends • to the colony; and that in cafe of failure he fhould expose the country to their refentment; but had he not affisted the forces in the execution of their commission, (which was to feize all Indians who had been concerned with Philip in the war) he must have fallen under cenfure, and been deemed acceffary, by his neglect, to the mischiefs which might afterward have been perpetrated by them. In this dilemma he finally determined to comply with the orders and expectations of government; imagining that he fhould be able to fatisfy those of the Indians whom he intended to difinifs, and that the others would be removed out of the way of doing any further mifchief; but he had no fuspicion that he was laying a fnare for his own life. It was unhappy for him, that he was obliged in deference to the laws of his country, and the orders of government, to give offence to

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

to a people who, having no public judicatories and penal laws among themfelves, were unable to diffinguish between a legal punishment and private malice*.

Two days after this furprifal the forces proceeded on their route to the eaftward, being joined with fome of Waldron's and Froft's men; and taking with them Blind Will, a fagamore of the Indians who lived about Cochecho, and eight of his people for pilots. The eaftern fettlements were all either deftroyed or deferted, and no enemy was to be feen; fo that the expedition proved fruitlefs, and the companies returned to Pafcataqua.

It was then thought advifeable, that they fhould march up toward the Offapy ponds; where the Indians had a ftrong fort of timber fourteen feet high, with flankarts; which they had a few years before hired fome Englifh carpenters to build for them, as a defence against the Mohawks, of whom they were always afraid. It was thought that if the Indians could be furprized on their first return to their head-quarters, at L the

* The above account of the feizure of the Indians is given from the noft authentic and credible tradition that could be obtained within the laft fixteen years, from the pofferity of those perfons who were concerned in the affair. It is but just mentioned by Hubbard and Mather, and not in connexion with its confequences. Neal, for want of better information, has given a wrong turn to the relation, and fo has Wynne who copies from him. Hutchinfon has not mentioned it at all. 145

1676.

4

146

the beginning of winter, fome confiderable advantage might be gained against them ; or if they had not arrived there, that the provisions, which they had laid in for their winter fublistence, might be destroyed. Accordingly, the companies being well provided for a march at that feason, fet off on the first of November.; and after travelling four days through a rugged, mountainous wildernefs, and croffing feveral rivers, they arrived at the fpot; but found the fort and adjacent places entirely deferted, and faw not an Indian in all the way. Thinking it needless for the whole body to go further, the weather being fevere, and the fnow deep, a felect party was detached eighteen or twenty miles above ; who difcovered nothing but frozen ponds, and fnowy mountains; and fuppofing the Indians had taken up their winter quarters nearer the fea, they returned to Newichwannock, within nine days from their first departure.

They had been prompted to undertake this expedition by the falfe accounts brought by Mogg, an Indian of Penobfcot, who had come in to Pafcataqua, with a propofal of peace; and had reported that an hundred Indians were affembled at Offapy. This Indian brought with him two men of Portfmouth,

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

Portfmouth, Fryer and Kendal, who had been taken on board a veffel at the eastward; he was deputed by the Penobfcot tribe to confent to articles of pacification; and being fent to Bofton, a treaty was drawn and fubfcribed by the governor and magistrates on the one part, and by Mogg on the other; in which it was flipulated, that if the Indians of the other tribes did not agree to this transaction, and cease hoftilities, they fhould be deemed and treated as enemies by both parties. This treaty was figned on the fixth of November; Mogg pledging his life for the fulfilment of it. Accordingly, veffels being fent to Penobfcot, the peace was ratified by Madokawando the fachem, and two captives were reflored. But Mogg, being incautioufly permitted to go to a neighbouring tribe, on pretence of perfuading them to deliver their captives, though he promifed to return in three days, was feen no more. It was at first thought that he had been facrificed by his countrymen, as he pretended to fear when he left the veffels; but a captive who efcaped in January gave a different account of him; that he boafted of having deceived the English, and laughed at their kind entertainment of him. There was also a defign talked of among L 2 them them to break the peace in the fpring, and join with the other Indians at the eaftward in ruining the fifhery. About the fame time it was difcovered that fome of the Narrhaganfet Indians were fcattered in the eaftern parts; three of them having been decoyed by fome of the Cochecho Indians into their wigwams, and fcalped, were known by the cut of their hair. This raifed a fear in the minds of the people, that more of them might have found their way to the eaftward, and would profecute their revenge againft them.

1676.

147

148

From these circumstances it was fuspected, that the truce would be but of fhort continuance. The treachery of Mogg, who was furety for the performance of the treaty, was deemed a full juftification of the renewal of hostilities; and the state of things was, by fome gentlemen of Pafcataqua, reprefented to be fo dangerous, that the government determined upon a winter expedition. Two hundred men, including fixty Natick Indians, were enlifted and equipped, and failed from Bofton the first week in February, under the command of Major Waldron; a day of prayer having been previoufly appointed for the fuccess of the enterprize.

At Cafco the major had a fruitlefs conference, and a flight fkirmish with a few Indians, of whom fome were killed and wounded. At Kennebeck he built a fort, and left a garrifon of forty men, under the command of Captain Sylvanus Davis. At Pemaquid he had a conference with a company of Indians, who promifed to deliver their captives on the payment of a ranfom : Part of it being paid, three captives were delivered, and it was agreed that the conference should be renewed in the afternoon, and all arms be laid afide. Some fuspicion of their infidelity had arifen, and when the major went ashore in the afternoon with five men, and the remainder of the ranfom, he difcovered the point of a lance hid under a board, which he drew out and advanced with it toward them : charging them with treachery in concealing their arms fo near. They attempted to take it from him by force; but he threatened them with inftant death, and waved his cap for a fignal to the veffels. While the reft were coming on fhore, the major with his five men fecured the goods: Some of the Indians fnatching up a bundle of guns which they had hid, ran away: Captain Froft, who was one of the five, feized an Indian, who was well known to be be a rogue, and with Lieutenant Nutter, carried him on board. The major fearching about found three guns, with which he armed his remaining three men; and the reft being come on fhore by this time, they puriued the Indians, killed feveral of them before they could recover their canoes, and after they had pufhed off, funk one with five men, who were drowned; and took four prifoners, with about a thoufand pounds of dried beef, and fome other plunder. The whole number of the Indians was twenty-five.

149

Whether the cafual difcovery of their arms, which they had agreed to lay afide, was fufficient to juftify this feverity, may be doubted; fince, if their intentions had really been hoftile, they had a fine opportunity of ambufhing or feizing the major and his five attendants, who came afhore unarmed; and it is not likely that they would have waited for the reft to come afhore before they opened the plot. Poffibly, this fudden fufpicion might be groundlefs, and might inflame the prejudice againft the major, which had been already excited by the feizure of their friends at Cochecho fome time before.

On the return of the forces, they found fome wheat, guns, anchors and boards at Kennebeck, Kennebeck, which they took with them. They killed two Indians on Arrowfick Ifland, who, with one of the prifoners taken at Pemaquid, and fhot on board, made the number of Indians killed in this expedition thirteen. They returned to Bofton on the eleventh of March, without the lofs of a man, bringing with them the bones of Captain Lake, which they found entire in the place where he was killed*.

There being no profpect of peace at the eastward, it became necessary to maintain great circumfpection and refolution, and to make use of every possible advantage against the enemy. A long and inveterate animofity had fubfifted between the Mohawks and the eaftern Indians, the original of which is not mentioned, and perhaps was not known by any of our historians; nor can the oldest men among the Mohawks at this day give any account of it. Thefe Indians were in a flate of friendship with their English neighbours; and being a fierce and formidable race of men, their name carried terror wherever it

 Here ends Hubbard's printed narrative. The account of the remainder of this war is taken from his MS hiftory, from fundry original letters, and copies of letters, and from a MS journal found in Prince's collection, and fuppofed to have been written by Captain Lawrence Hammond of Charleflown. 151-

1,52

Genefis, ch. 14.

Hubbard's MS Hiftory.

it was known. It was now thought, that if they could be induced to profecute their ancient quarrel with the eastern Indians, the latter might be awed into peace, or incapacitated for any farther mifchief. The propriety of this measure became a fubject of debate; fome quettioning the lawfulnefs of making ufe of their help, " as they were heathen;" but it was urged in reply, that Abraham had entered into. a confederacy with the Amorites, among whom he dwelled, and made use of their affistance in recovering his kinfman Lot from the hands of their common enemy. With this argument the objectors were fatisfied; and the two meffengers, Major Pynchon of Springfield, and Richards of Hartford were difpatched to the country of the Mohawks; who treated them with great civility, expressed the most bitter hatred against the eastern enemy, and promifed to purfue the guarrel to the utmost of their power.

Accordingly fome parties of them came down the country about the middle of March, and the first alarm was given at Amuskeeg falls; where the fon of Wonolanset being hunting, discovered fifteen Indians on the other fide, who called to him in a language which he did not understand;

derstand; upon which he fled, while they fired near thirty guns at him without effect. Prefently after this they were difcovered in the woods about Cochecho. Major Waldron fent out eight of his Indians whereof Blind Will was one, for farther information. They were all furprized together by a company of the Mohawks; two or three efcaped, the others were either killed or taken: Will was dragged away by his hair; and being wounded, perifhed in the woods, on a neck of land, formed by the confluence of Cochecho and Ifingglafs rivers, which still bears the name of Blind Will's Neck. This fellow was judged to be a fecret enemy to the English, though he pretended much friendship and refpect; fo that it was impoffible to have punished him, without provoking the other neighbouring Indians, with whom he lived in amity, and of whofe fidelity there was no fuspicion. It was at first thought a fortunate circumftance that he was killed in this manner; but the confequence proved it to be otherwife; for two of those who were taken with him efcaping, reported that the Mohawks threatened destruction to all the Indians in these parts without distinction: So that those who lived in subjection to the Englifh

1677.

153

MS Journal, March 30.

Hubbard's MS Hift.

MS Journal. glifh grew jealous of their fincerity, and imagined, not without very plaufible ground, that the Mohawks had been perfuaded or hired to engage in the war, on purpofe to deftroy them; fince they never actually exercifed their fury upon those Indians who were in hostility with the English, but only upon those who were in friendfhip with them; and this only in fuch a degree as to irritate, rather than to weaken or distress them. It cannot therefore be thought ftrange that the friendly Indians were alienated from their English neighbours, and difpofed to liften to the feducing stratagems of the French; who in a few years after made use of them, in conjunction with others, forely to fcourge these unhappy people. The English, in reality, had no fuch defign; but the event proved, that the fcheme of engaging the Mohawks in our quarrel, however lawful in itfelf, and countenanced by the example of Abraham, was a pernicious fource of innumerable calamities.

The terror which it was thought this incurfion of the Mohawks would firike into the eaftern Indians was too finall to prevent their renewing hoftilities very early in the fpring. Some of the garrifon who had been left at Kennebeck were furprized 'by by an ambush, as they were attempting to bury the dead bodies of their friends, who had been killed the fummer before, and had lain under the fnow all winter. The remainder of that garrifon were then taken off and conveyed to Pascataqua; whither a company of fifty men and ten Natick Indians marched, under Captain Swaine, to fuccour the inhabitants, who were alarmed by fcattered parties of the enemy, killing and taking people, and burning houfes in Wells, Kittery, and within the bounds of Portfmouth*. A young woman who was taken from Rawling's houfe, made her efcape and came into Cochecho, informing where the enemy lay : Three parties were difpatched to ambufh three places, by one of which they must pass: The enemy appearing at one of these places, were seafonably discovered; but by the too great eagerness of the party to fire on them, they avoided the ambufh and efcaped.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

Soon after this the garrifons at Wells and Black Point were befet, and at the latter place the enemy loft their leader Mogg, who 155

167.7.

Hubbard's MS.

April 22.

7 10.0

May 16.

^{*} The following extract from the before mentioned journal, thews fomething of the fpirit of the times.

[&]quot;April 16. The houfe of John Keniston was burnt and he killed "at Greenland. The Indians are Simon, Andrew, and Peter, "those three we had in prison, and should have killed. The good "Lord pardon us."

May 27.

MS Letter of Mr. Moody.

June 13.

who had proved fo treacherous a negociator. Upon his death they fled in their canoes, fome to the eaftward and others toward York, where they also did some mischief. On a sabbath morning, a party of twenty, under the guidance of Simon, furprized fix of our Indians, who lay drunk in the woods, at a fmall diftance from Portfmouth; they kept all day hovering about the town, and if they had taken advantage of the people's absence from home, in attending the public worfhip, they might eafily have plundered and burned the outmost houses; but they were providentially reftrained. At night they croffed the river at the Long Reach, killed fome fheep at Kittery, and then went toward Wells; but, being afraid of the Mohawks, let their prisoners go. Four men were soon after killed at North Hill, one of whom was Edward Colcott, whofe death was much regretted.

More mifchief being expected, and the eaftern fettlements needing affiftance, the government ordered two hundred Indians of Natick, with forty Englifh foldiers, under Captain Benjamin Swett of Hampton, and Lieutenant Richardfon, to march to the falls of Taconick on Kennebeck river; where it was faid the Indians had fix forts, well furnished with ammunition. The veffels came to an anchor off Black Point; where the captain being informed that fome Indians had been feen, went on flore with a party; and being joined by fome of the inhabitants, fo as to make about ninety in all, marched to feek the enemy; who fhewed them felves on a plain in three parties. Swett divided his men accordingly, and went to meet them. The enemy retreated till they had drawn our people two miles from the fort, and then turning fuddenly and violently upon them, threw them into confusion, they being moftly young and unexperienced foldiers. Swett, with a few of the more refolute, fought bravely on the retreat, till he came near the fort, when he was killed; fixty more were left dead or wounded, and the reft got into the fort. The victorious favages then furprized about twenty fishing veffels, which put into the eaftern harbours by night; the crews, not being apprehenfive of danger on the water, fell an eafy prey to them. Thus the fummer was fpent with terror and perplexity on our part; while the enemy rioted without control, till they had fatiated their vengeance, and greatly reduced the eaftern fettlements.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

157 1677. July.

MS Letter of Mr. Gookin of Hampton.

Hubbard's MS Hift.

At

HISTORY OF

At length, in the month of August, Major Androsse, governor of New-York, fent a floop with fome forces to take poffeffion of the land which had been granted to the Duke of York, and build a fort at Pemaquid, to defend the country against the encroachment of foreigners. Upon their arrival the Indians appeared friendly; and in evidence of their pacific disposition, reftored fifteen prisoners with the fishing vessels. They continued quiet all the succeeding autumn and winter, and lived in harmony with the new garrison.

1678.

MS Journal, April 12.

In the fpring, Major Shapleigh of Kittery, Captain Champernoon and Mr. Fryer of Portfmouth, were appointed commiffioners to fettle a formal treaty of peace with Squando and the other chiefs, which was done at Cafco, whither they brought the remainder of the captives. It was ftipulated in the treaty, that the inhabitants fhould return to their deferted fettlements. on condition of paying one peck of corn annually for each family, by way of acknowledgment to the Indians for the poffeffion of their lands, and one bushel for Major Pendleton, who was a great proprietor. Thus an end was put to a tedious and diftreffing war, which had fubfifted three years. The terms of peace were difgraceful, graceful, but not unjuft, confidering the former irregular conduct of many of the eaftern fettlers, and the native propriety of the Indians in the foil : Certainly they were now mafters of it; and it was entirely at their option, whether the Englifh fhould return to their habitations or not. It was therefore thought better to live peaceably, though in a fort of fubjection, than to leave fuch commodious fettlements and forego the advantages of trade and fifhery, which were very confiderable, and by which the inhabitants of that part of the country had chiefly fubfifted.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

It was a matter of great enquiry and fpeculation how the Indians were fupplied with arms and ammunition to carry on this war. The Dutch at New-York were too near the Mohawks for the eaftern Indians to adventure thither. The French in Canada were too feeble, and too much in fear of the English, to do any thing which might diffurb the tranquility; and there was peace between the two nations. It was therefore fuppofed that the Indians had long premeditated the war, and laid in a flock beforehand. There had formerly been fevere penalties exacted by the government, on the felling of arms and ammunition to the Indians; but ever fince

Hubbard's printed Narrative, p. 82.

1678.

159

Randolph's Narrative in Hutch. col. papers, P. 492. fince 1657, licences had been granted to particular perfons to fupply them occafionally for the purpose of hunting, on paying an acknowledgment to the public treafury. This indulgence, having been much abused by some of the eastern traders, who, far from the feat of government, were impatient of the reftraint of law, was fupposed to be the source of the mischief. But it was afterward difcovered that the Baron de St. Castine, a reduced French officer, who had married a daughter of Madokawando, and kept a trading houfe at Penobfcot, where he confidered himfelf as independent, being out of the limits of any eftablished government, was the perfon from whom they had their fupplies; which needed not to be very great as they always hufbanded their ammunition with much care, and never expended it but when they were certain of doing execution.

The whole burden and expence of this war, on the part of the colonies, were borne by themfelves. It was indeed thought ftrange by their friends in England, and refented by thofe in power, that they made no application to the king for affiftance. It was intimated to them by Lord Anglefey ' that ' his majefty was ready to affift them with ' fhips, troops, ammunition or money, if ' they

Hutchin: Hift. vol. 1. p. 309.

Ihid, p. 562.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

they would but afk it;' and their filence was construed to their disadvantage, as if they were proud, and obstinate, and defired to be confidered as an independent ftate. They had indeed no inclination to ask favours from thence; being well aware of the confequence of laying themfelves under obligations to those who had been feeking to undermine their eftablishment; and remembering how they had been neglected in the late Dutch wars, when they ftood in much greater need of affistance: The king had then fent ammunition to New-York, but had fent word to New-England, ' that they must shift for them-· felves and make the beft defence they ' could.' It was therefore highly injurious to blame them for not making application for help. But if they had not been fo ill treated, they could not be charged with difrespect, fince they really did not need foreign affiftance. Ships of war and regular troops must have been altogether ufelefs; and no one that knew the nature of an Indian war could be ferious in propoling to fend them: Ammunition and money were neceffary, but as they had long enjoyed a free trade, and had coined the bullion which they imported, there was no fcarcity of money, nor of any stores M which 161 which money could purchafe. The method of fighting with Indians could be learned only from themfelves: After a little experience, few men in fcattered parties were of more fervice than the largeft and beft equipped armies which Europe could have afforded. It ought ever to be remembered for the honor of New-England, that as their firft fettlement, fo their prefervation, increafe, and defence, even in their weakeft infancy were not owing to any foreign affiftance, but under God, to their own magnanimity and perfeverance.

1678.

Hutch. col. pap. p. 506.

162

Our gravest historians have recorded many omens, predictions, and other alarming circumftances, during this and the Pequod war, which in a more philosophical and lefs credulous age would not be worthy of notice. When men's minds were rendered gloomy by the horrors of a furrounding wildernefs, and the continual apprehension of danger from its favage inhabitants; when they were ignorant of the caufes of many of the common appearances in nature, and were difpofed to refolve every unufual appearance into prodigy and miracle, it is not to be wondered that they should imagine they heard the noife of drums and guns in the air, and and faw flaming fwords and fpears in the heavens, and fhould even interpret eclipfes as ominous. Some old Indians had intimated their apprehenfions concerning the increase of the English, and the diminution of their own people, which any rational obferver in a courfe of forty or fifty years might eafily have foretold, without the least pretence to a fpirit of prophecy; yet these fayings were recollected, and recorded, as fo many predictions by force of a fupernatural impulse on their minds, and many perfons of the greateft diffinction were difposed to credit them as fuch. Thefe things would not have been mentioned, but to give a just idea of the age : If mankind are now better enlightened, fuperstition is the lefs excufeable in its remaining votaries.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

M 2

CHAP.

163

HISTORY OF

C H A P. VI.

Mafon's renewed efforts. Randolph's miffion and transfactions. Attempts for the trial of Mason's title. New-Hampshire separated from Massachusetts, and made a royal province. Abstract of the commission. Remarks on it.

T J HILE the country was labouring arifing from the war, measures were taking under the perplexity and diffrefs

1675.

May 17.

MS Copy in Superior Court files. in England to increase their difficulties and divide their attention. The fcheme of felling the provinces of New-Hampshire and Maine to the crown being laid afide, Mafon again petitioned the king for the reftoration of his property; and the king referred the matter to his attorney general Sir William Jones, and his folicitor general Sir Francis Winnington, who reported that " John Mafon, efq. grandfather to the pe-" titioner, by virtue of feveral grants from " the council of New-England under their " common feal was inftated in fee in fun-" dry great tracts of land in New-England, " by the name of New-Hampshire; and " that the petitioner being heir at law to " the faid John had a good and legal title 66 to

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

" to faid lands." Whereupon a letter was difpatched to the Maffachufetts colony, requiring them to fend over agents within fix months, fully impowered to anfwer the complaints, which Mafon and the heirs of Gorges had made, of their usurping jurifdiction over the territorics claimed by them; and to receive the royal determination in that matter. Copies of the complaints were inclosed; and Edward Randolph, a kinfman of Mafon, a man of great addrefs and penetration, refolute and indefatigable in bufinefs, was charged with the letters, and directed by the Lords of Trade to make enquiry into the flate of the country. When he arrived, he waited on Governor Leverett, who read the king's letter with the petitions of Mafon and Gorges in council, Randolph being prefent, who could obtain no other answer than that " they would confider it."

He then came into New-Hampfhire, and as he paffed along, freely declared the bufinefs on which he was come, and publicly read a letter which Mafon had fent to the inhabitants. Some of them he found ready to complain of the government, and defirous of a change; but the body of the people were highly enraged againft him; and the inhabitants of Dover in public town1676. March 10.

June 10.

Hutchin. col. pap. p. 504.

July.

Dover Re-

Portfmou. Records, Sept. 1.

Hutchin. col. pap. p. 510.

town-meeting 'protefted against the claim · of Mafon; declared that they had bonâ · fide purchafed their lands of the Indians; recognized their fubjection to the go-' vernment of Maffachufetts, under whom ' they had lived long and happily, and by ' whom they were now affifted in defend-' ing their eftates and families against the ' favage enemy.' They appointed Major Waldron " to petition the king in their " behalf, that he would interpofe his royal " authority and afford them his wonted " favor; that they might not be difturb-" ed by Mafon, or any other perfon, but " continue peaceably in poffeffion of their " rights under the government of Maffa-" chufetts." A fimilar petition was fent by the inhabitants of Portfmouth, who appointed John Cutts and Richard Martyn, efgrs. Captains Daniel and Stileman to draught and forward it.

When Randolph returned to Bofton, he had a fevere reproof from the governor, for publifhing his errand, and endeavouring to raife difcontent among the people. To which he made no other anfwer than that ' if he had done amifs, they might ' complain to the king.'

Afterabout fix weeks ftay, he went back to England and reported to the king, that "he

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

167

1676.

" he had found the whole country com-" plaining of the ufurpation of the magi-" ftrates of Bofton; earneftly hoping and " expecting that his majefty would not " permit them any longer to be oppreffed; " but would give them relief according " to the promifes of the commiffioners in " 1665." With the fame bitternefs of temper, and in the fame ftrain of mifreprefentation, he inveighed againft the government in a long report to the Lords of Trade; which farther inflamed the prejudice that had long been conceived againft the colony, and prepared the way for the feparation which was meditated.

After his departure, a special council being fummoned, at which the elders of the churches were prefent, the queftion was propofed to them " whether the beft " way of making answer to the complaints " of Gorges and Mafon about the extent " of their patent, be by fending agents, " or by writing only ?" To which they answered, " That it was most expedient " to fend agents, to answer by way of in-" formation, provided they were inftruct-" ed with much care and caution to nego-" ciate the affair with fafety to the coun-" try, and loyalty to his majefty, in the " prefervation of their patent liberties." Accordingly

1676. ~~

Hutchin. Hift. vol. 1. p. 311.

1677.

Narrative of Allen's Title, p. 5 Accordingly William Stoughton, afterward lieutenant-governor, and Peter Bulkley then fpeaker of the houfe of deputies, were appointed agents and failed for England.

At their arrival an hearing was ordered before the lords chief juffices of the king's bench and common pleas; when the agents in the name of the colony difclaimed all title to the lands claimed by the petitioner, and to the jurifdiction beyond three miles northward of the river Merrimack, to follow the courfe of the river, fo far as it extended. The judges reported to the king • that they could give no opinion as to the ' right of foil, in the provinces of New-' Hampfhire and Maine, not having the ' proper parties before them; it appearing ' that not the Maffachufetts colony, but ⁴ the ter-tenants had the right of foil, and ' whole benefit thereof, and yet were not fummoned to defend their titles. As to 6 Mafon's right of government within the 6 foil he claimed, their lordships, and indeed his own counfel, agreed he had f none; the great council of Plymouth, ' under whom he claimed, having no power to transfer government to any. It ' was determined that the four towns of · Portfmouth, Dover, Exeter and Hamp-' ton

168

Hutchin. vol. 1. p. 317. ton were out of the bounds of Maffachufetts.' This report was accepted and confirmed by the king in council.

After this, at the requeft of the agents, Sir William Jones the attorney general drew up a complete flate of the cafe to be tranfmitted to the colony; by which it feems that he had altered his opinion fince the report which he gave to the king in 1675, concerning the validity of Mafon's title. It was alfo admitted that the title could be tried only on the place, there being no court in England that had cognizance of it.

It became neceffary then to the eftablishment of Mafon's title, that a new jurifdiction should be erected, in which the king might direct the mode of trial and appeal at his pleafure: This being refolved upon, the colony of Maffachufetts was informed, by a letter from the fecretary of ftate, of the king's intention to feparate New-Hampshire from their government, and required to revoke all commissions which they had granted there, and which were hereby declared to be null and void. To prevent any extravagant demand, the king obliged the claimant to declare, under his hand and feal, that he would require no rents of the inhabitants for the time

1679.

1677.

Sept. 18.

Hutch.vol. I. p. 317.

July 24.

Hutchin. col. pap. 522.

time paffed, before the twenty fourth of June 1679,' nor moleft any in their poffefficients for the time to come; but would make out titles to them and their heirs forever, provided they would pay him fixpence in the pound, according to the yearly value of all houfes which they had built and lands which they had improved.

Things being thus prepared, a commiffion paffed the great feal on the eighteenth of September for the government of New-Hampshire; which ' inhibits and restrains ' the jurifdiction exercifed by the colony · of Maffachufetts over the towns of Portf-' mouth, Dover, Exeter and Hampton, • and all other lands extending from three ' miles to the northward of the river Mer-' rimack and of any and every part there-' of, to the province of Maine; conftitutes ' a prefident and council to govern the pro-' vince; appoints John Cutts, efq. prefident, ' to continue one year and till another be ' appointed by the fame authority; Rich-' ard Martyn, William Vaughan, and ' Thomas Daniel of Portfmouth, John · Gilman of Exeter, Christopher Huffey of · Hampton and Richard Waldron of Do-'ver, efquires, to be of the council, who were ' authorifed to choofe three other qualified ' perfons out of the feveral parts of the · province

Commiffion.

' province to be added to them. The faid · prefident and every fucceeding one to ap-• point a deputy to prefide in his abfence; • the prefident or his deputy with any five ' to be a quorum. They were to meet at · Portfmouth in twenty days after the ar-' rival of the commission and publish it. ' They were conflituted a court of record · for the administration of justice, accord-' ing to the laws of England, fo far as cir-' cumftances would permit; referving a ' right of appeal to the king in council for 'actions of fifty pounds value. They ' were impowered to appoint military offi-' cers, and take all needful meafures for ' defence against enemics. Liberty of ' confcience was allowed to all protestants, ' those of the church of England to be ' particularly encouraged. For the fupport ' of government they were to continue ' the prefent taxes, till an affembly could · be called; to which end they were with-' in three months to iffue writs under the ' province feal, for calling an affembly, ' to whom the prefident fhould recommend · the paffing fuch laws as fhould eftablish ' their allegiance, good order and defence, • and the raifing taxes in fuch manner and ' proportion as they should fee fit. All · laws to be approved by the prefident and · council, council, and then to remain in force till ' the king's pleafure fhould be known, for ' which purpofe they fhould be fent to · England by the first fhips. In cafe of ' the prefident's death, his deputy to fuc-· ceed, and on the death of a counfellor, ' the remainder to elect another, and fend ' over his name, with the names of two • other meet perfons, that the king might · appoint one of the three. The king en-' gaged for himfelf and fucceffors to con-• tinue the privilege of an affembly, in the ' fame manner and form, unlefs by in-· convenience arifing therefrom he or his ' heirs fhould fee caufe to alter the fame. · If any of the inhabitants should refuse • to agree with Mafon or his agents, on • the terms before mentioned, the prefident ' and council were directed to reconcile ' the difference, or fend the cafe flated in • writing with their own opinions, to the ⁶ king, that he with his privy council might · determine it according to equity.'

The form of government defcribed in this commiffion confidered abftractedly from the immediate intentions, characters, and connexions of the perfons concerned, appears to be of as fimple a kind as the nature of a fubordinate government and the liberty of the fubject can admit. The people, people, who are the natural and original fource of power, had a reprefentation in a body chosen by themselves; and the king was reprefented by a prefident and council of his own appointment; each had the right of inftructing their representative, and the king had the fuperior prerogative of difannulling the acts of the whole at his pleafure. The principal blemish in the commiffion was the right claimed by the king of difcontinuing the reprefentation of the people, whenever he fhould find it inconvenient, after he had folemnly engaged to continue this privilege. The claufe, indeed, is artfully worded, and might be conftrued to imply more or lefs at pleafure. Herein Charles was confiftent with himfelf, parliaments being his averfion. However, there was in this plan as much of the fpirit of the British conftitution as there could be any foundation for in fuch a colony; for here was no third branch to form a balance between the king or his reprefentative, and the people. The inftitution of an houfe of peers in Britain was the refult of the feudal fyftem: the barons being lords of the foil and enjoying a fovereignty within their own territories and over their own vaffals; the conftitution was formed by the union of

of these distinct estates under one common fovereign. But there was nothing fimilar to this in New-England. The fettlements began here by an equal division of property among independent freemen. Lordfhip and vaffalage were held in abhorrence. The yeomanry were the proprietors of the foil and the natural defenders of their own rights and property; and they knew no fuperior but the king. A council, whether appointed by him or chofen by the people could not form a diffinct body, becaufe they could not be independent. Had fuch a fimple form of colony government been more generally adopted, and perfeveringly adhered to, and administered only by the most delicate hands, it might have ferved better than any other, to perpetuate the dependence of the colonies on the Britifh crown.

CHAP.

C H A P. VII.

The administration of the first council. Opposition to the acts of trade. Mason's arrival. Opposition to him. His departure. State of trade and navigation.

THE commission was brought to Portfmouth on the first of January by Edward Randolph, than whom there could not be a more unwelcome messenger. It was received with great reluctance by the gentlemen therein named; who, though they were of the first character, interest and influence, and had fustained the principal offices civil and military under the colony government*; yet easily faw that their appointment

* The prefident JOHN CUTTS was a principal merchant, of great prohity and effecem in Portfuouth; but now aged and infirm.

Richard Martyn, was of good character, and great influence. He had been very active in procuring the fettlement of a minifler in the town of Portfmouth.

William Vaughan, was a wealthy merchant, generous and public fpirited, and of undaunted refolution. He was of Welch extraction, but was bred in London under Sir Josiah Child, who had a great regard for him, and whose interest he made use of for the good of the province.

Thomas Daniel was a perfon of fuch note and importance, that when he died in a time of general fickness and mortality, Mr. Moody preached his funeral fermon from 2 Sam. ii. 30. "There "lacked of David's fervants, nineteen men and Afabel." (Fitch's MS.)

John Gilman was a principal man in Exeter, as was Christopher Huffey, in Hampton.

Richard Waldron, was a native of Somerfetshire, and one of the first fettlers in Dover. He was much respected and eminently useful, having fustained divers important offices civil and military, and approved his courage and fidelity in the most hazardous enterprizes.

Council Rec.

Fitch'sMS.

176

pointment was not from any refpect to them or favour to the people; but merely to obtain a more eafy introduction to a new form of government, for a particular purpofe, which they knew would be a fource of perplexity and diffrefs. They would gladly have declined acting in their new capacity; but confidering the temper of the government in England, the unavoidable necessity of fubmitting to the change, and the danger (upon their refufal) of others being appointed who would be inimical to the country, they agreed to qualify themfelves, determining to do what good, and keep off what harm they were able. They therefore published the commission, and took the oaths on the twenty fecond day of January, which was beyond the utmost time limited in the commission. Agreeably to the royal direction they chofe three other gentlemen into the council; Elias Stileman of Great Ifland, who had been a clerk in the county courts, whom they now appointed feeretary, Samuel Dalton of Hampton and Job Clements of Dover. The prefident nominated Waldron to be his deputy or vice prefident, Martyn was appointed treafurer, and John Roberts, marshal.

Council Rec.

This

This change of government gratified the difcontented few, but was greatly difrelifhed by the people in general; as they faw themfelves deprived of the privilege of choosing their own rulers, which was ftill enjoyed by the other colonies of New-England, and as they expected an invasion of their property foon to follow.

When writs were iffued for calling a general affembly the perfons in each town who were judged qualified to vote were named in the writs*; and the oath of allegiance was adminifiered to each voter. A public faft was obferved, to afk the divine bleffing on the approaching affembly and "the continuance of their precious " and pleafant things." The affembly † met at Portfmouth on the fixteenth of March, and was opened with prayer and a fermon by Mr. Moody.

* The number of qualified voters in each town was, In Fortfmouth 71

Portimouth 71 Dover 61 Hampton 57 Exeter 20 209

The deputies in this first affembly were,

For Portfmouth. Robert Eliot, Philip Lewis, John Pickering. Dover. Peter Coffin, Anthony Nutter, Richard Waldron, jun.

Hampton. Anthony Stanyon, Thomas Marflon, Edward Gove. Exeter. Bartholomew Tippin, Ralph Hall. Febru. 26:

1 2.20

HISTORYOF

1680.

178

To express their genuine fentiments of the prefent change, and invalidate the falfe reports which had been raifed against them, as well as to fhew their gratitude and refpect to their former protectors, they wrote to the general court at Bofton, " acknow-" ledging the kindnefs of that colony in " taking them under their protection and " ruling them well; affuring them, that " it was not any diffatisfaction with their " government, but merely their fubmiffion " to divine providence and his majefty's " commands, without any feeking of their "own, which induced them to comply " with the prefent feparation, which they " fhould have been glad had never taken " place; fignifying their defire that a " mutual correspondence might be conti-" nued for defence against the common " enemy, and offering their fervice when " it fhould be neceffary*."

Their next care was to frame a code of laws, of which the first, conceived in a style beccoming freemen, was " that no " act,

* This letter fully fhews the abfurdity of the reafon affigned by Douglas in his Summary, vol. II. page 28, for the crefting this new government. " The proprietors and inhabitants of New-" Hampfhire not capable of protecting themfelves againft the Ca-" nada French and their Indians, defired of the crown to take " them under its immediate protection." A random affertion, unfupported by any proof and contrary to plain fad? The crown could afford them no protection againft Indians. With the Frencls the crown was in alliance, and the nation was at peace.

Council Records. " act, imposition, law or ordinance should " be made or imposed upon them, but " fuch as fhould be made by the affembly " and approved by the prefident and coun-" cil." Idolatry, blafphemy, treafon, rebellion, wilful murder, manflaughter, poifoning, witchcraft, fodomy, beftiality, perjury, man-stealing, curfing and rebelling against parents, rape and arfon were made capital crimes. The other penal laws were in their main principles the fame that are now in force. To prevent contentions that might arife by reafon of the late change of government, all townships and grants of land were confirmed, and ordered to remain as before; and controverfies about the titles of land were to be determined by juries chofen by the feveral towns, according to former cuftom. The prefident and council with the affembly were a supreme court of judicature, with a jury when defired by the parties; and three inferior courts were conftituted at Dover, Hampton and Portfmouth. The military arrangement was, one foot com- LMS Laws. pany in each town, one company of artillery at the fort, and one troop of horfe, all under the command of Major Waldron.

During this administration, things went on as nearly as poffible in the old channel, and 1680. \sim and with the fame fpirit, as before the feparation. A jealous watch was kept over their rights and privileges, and every encroachment upon them was withflood to the utmost. The duties and restrictions eftablished by the acts of trade and navigation were univerfally difguftful, and the more fo as Randolph was appointed collector, furveyor and fearcher of the cuftoms throughout New-England. In the execution of his commiffion he feized a ketch belonging to Portfmouth, but bound from Maryland to Ireland, which had put into this port for a few days. The master Mark Hunking, brought an action against him at a fpecial court before the prefident and council, and recovered damages and cofts to the amount of thirteen pounds. Randolph behaved on this occasion with fuch infolence, that the council obliged him publickly to acknowledge his offence and afk their pardon. He appealed from their judgment to the king; but what the iffue was doth not appear. Having conftituted Captain Walter Barefoote his deputy at this port, an advertifement was published requiring that all veffels should be entered and cleared with him. Upon which Barefoot was brought to examination, and afterward indicted before the prefident

180

March 23.

Council Records & Files. prefident and council, for ' having in an ' high and prefumptuous manner fet up ' his majefty's office of cuftoms without · leave from the prefident and council; in ' contempt of his majefty's authority in ' this place; for diffurbing and obstruct-' ing his majefty's fubjects in paffing from · harbour to harbour, and town to town; ' and for his infolence in making no other ' answer to any question propounded to ' him but "my name is Walter." He was fentenced to pay a fine of ten pounds, and ftand committed till it was paid. But though Randolph's authority was denied, yet they made an order of their own for the observation of the acts of trade, and appointed officers of their own to fee them executed. They had been long under the Maffachufetts government, and learned their political principles from them; and as they had been used to think that all royal authority flowed in the channel of the charter, fo they now thought that no authority derived from the crown could be regularly exercifed in the province but through their commission. In this they reasoned agreeably not only to their former principles, but to their fundamental law, to which they fleadily adhered, though they had no reafon to think it would be allowed allowed by the crown; and though they knew that a rigid adherence to rights, however clear and facred, was not the way to recommend themfelves to royal favour. But they were not fingular in thefe fentiments, nor in their opposition to the laws of trade. Randolph was equally hated, and his commission neglected at Boston; where the notary refused to enter his protest against the proceedings of the court; and he was obliged to post it on the exchange.

1680. March 25.

In the latter end of the year Mafon arrived from England with a mandamus, requiring the council to admit him to a feat at the board, which was accordingly done. He foon entered on the business he came about; endeavouring to perfuade fome of the people to take leafes of him, threatening others if they did not, forbidding them to cut fire-wood and timber, afferting his right to the province and affuming the title of lord-proprietor. His agents, or flewards as they were called, had rendered themielves obnoxious by demanding rents of feveral perfons and threatening to fell their houses for payment. These proceedings raifed a general uneafinefs; and petitions were lent from each town, as well as from divers individuals, to the council for for protection; who taking up the matter judicially published an order prohibiting Mafon or his agents at their peril to repeat fuch irregular proceedings, and declaring their intention to transmit the grievances and complaints of the people to the king. Upon this, Mafon would no longer fit in council, though defired, nor appear when fent for; when they threatened to deal with him as an offender, he threatened to appeal to the king, and published a fummons to the prefident and feveral members of the council, and others to appear before his majefty in three months. This was deemed " an usurpa-" tion over his majefty's authority here " eftablished," and a warrant was issued for apprehending him; but he got out of their reach and went to England.

MSS in files.

Dec. 30.

During thefe transactions prefident Cutts died, and Major Waldron fucceeded him, appointing Captain Stileman for his deputy, who had quitted his place of fecretary upon the appointment of Richard Chamberlayne to that office by royal commission. The vacancy made in the council by the prefident's death was filled by Richard Waldron junior. On the death of Dalton, Anthony Nutter was chosen. Henry March 27. April 5.

Dec. 30. 1680.

1681. Henry Dow was appointed marshal in the room of Roberts who refigned.

1682.

March 10.

During the remainder of the council's administration, the common business went on in the ufual manner, and nothing remarkable is mentioned, excepting another profecution of Barefoote, with his affiftants, William Hafkins and Thomas Thurton for feizing a veffel " under pretence of " his majesty's name, without the know-" ledge of the authority of the province, " and without fhewing any breach of "ftatute though demanded." Barefoote pleaded his deputation from Randolph; but he was amerced twenty pounds to be refpited during his good behaviour, and his two affiftants five pounds each; the complainant being left to the law for his damages. This affair was carried by appeal to the king; but the iffue is not mentioned.

It will be proper to clofe the account of this administration with a view of the state of the province as to its trade, improvements and defence, from a reprefentation thereof made by the council to the lords of trade, pursuant to their order.

"The trade of the province, (fay they) is in mafts, planks, boards and flaves and all other lumber, which at prefent is of little little value in other plantations, to which they are transported; fo that we see no other way for the advantage of the trade, unless his majesty please to make our river a free port.

"Importation by ftrangers is of little value; fhips commonly felling their cargoes in other governments, and if they come here, ufually come empty to fill with lumber: but if haply they are at any time loaded with fifth, it is brought from other ports, there being none made in our province, nor likely to be, until his majefty pleafe to make the fouth part of the Ifles of Shoals part of this government, they not being at prefent under any*.

"In reference to the improvement of lands by tillage, our foil is generally fo barren, and the winters fo extreme cold and long that there is not provision enough raifed to fupply the inhabitants, many of whom were in the late Indian war fo impoverished

* When thefe islands were first fettled is uncertain, but it must have been very early, as they are most commodiously fituated for the fishery, which was a principal object with the first fettlers. While New Hampshire was united to Maffachufetts, they were under the fame jurifdiction, and the town there erected was called Appledore. [Maff. Rec.] They are not named in Cutts's nor Cranfield's commifficit, but under Dudley's prefidency, caufes were brought from thence to Portfmouth, which is faid to be in the fame county. In Allen's and all fuceceding commiffions, they are particularly mentioned; the fouth half of them being in New-Hampshire.

poverifhed, their houfes and effates being deftroyed, and they and others remaining fill fo incapacitated for the improvement of the land, (feveral of the youth being killed alfo) that they even groan under the tax or rate, affeffed for that fervice, which is, great part of it, unpaid to this day*.

"There is at the Great Ifland in Portfmouth, at the harbour's mouth, a fort well enough fituated, but for the prefent too weak and infufficient for the defence of the place; the guns being eleven in number are fmall, none exceeding a facre [fix pounder] nor above twenty one hundred weight, and the people too poor to make defence fuitable to the occafion that may happen for the fort.

"Thefe guns were bought, and the fortification erected, at the proper charge of the towns of Dover and Portfmouth, at the beginning of the first Dutch war, about the year 1665, in obedience to his majesty's

* Taxes were commonly paid in lumber or provisions at flated prices; and whoever paid them in money was abated one-third part. The prices in 1680, were as follows.

Merchantable white pine boards per m 30 f.
White Oak pipe flaves per ditto - 3 f.
Red Oak ditto per ditto 30 f.
Red Oak Hhd. ditto per ditto 25 f.
Indian Corn per bushel 3 f.
Wheat per ditto $ 5f$.
Malt per ditto 4 fe
N. B. Silver was 6 f. and 8 d. per oz.

186

majefty's command in his letter to the government under which this province then was.

"There are five guns more lying at the upper part of Portfmouth, purchafed by private perfons, for their fecurity and defence against the Indians in the late war with them, and whereof the owners may dispose at their pleasure. To supply the foresaid defect and weakness of the guns and fort, we humbly supplicate his majesty to fend us such guns as shall be more ferviceable, with powder and shot."

By an account of the entries in the port annexed to the above, it appears, that from the fifteenth of June 1680, to the twelfth of April 1681, were entered, twenty two fhips, eighteen ketches, two barks, three pinks, one fhallop and one fly-boat; in all forty feven.

Council Records.

CHAP.

1682.

187

C H A P. VIII.

The administration of Cranfield. Violent measures. Infurrection, trial and imprisonment of Gove. Mason's suits. Vaughan's imprisonment. Prosecution of Moody and his imprisonment. Arbitrary proceedings. Complaints. Tumults. Weare's agency in England. Cranfield's removal. Barefoote's administration.

1682.

Jan. 25,

E XPERIENCE having now con-vinced Mafon, that the government which he had procured to be erected, was not likely to be administered in a manner favourable to his views, he made it his bufinefs, on his return to England, to folicit a change; in confequence of which it was determined to commission Edward Cranfield, efq. lieutenant-governor and commander in chief of New-Hampshire. By a deed enrolled in the court of chancery, Mafon furrendered to the king one fifth part of the quit-rents, which had or should become due: These with the fines and forfeitures which had accrued to the crown fince the establishment of the province, and which should afterward arile; were appropriated to the fupport of the governor.

188

governor. But this being deemed too precarious a foundation, Mafon by another deed mortgaged the whole province to Cranfield, for twenty-one years, as fecurity for the payment of one hundred and fifty pounds per annum, for the fpace of feven years. On this encouragement Cranfield relinquifhed a profitable office at home, with the view of bettering his fortune here.

By the commission, which bears date the ninth of May, the governor was im- / powered to call, adjourn, prorogue and diffolve general courts; to have a negative voice in all acts of government; to fuspend any of the council when he should fee just caufe (and every counfellor fo fufpended was declared incapable of being elected into the general affembly ;) to appoint a deputy-governor, judges, justices, and other officers, by his fole authority; and to execute the powers of vice-admiral. The cafe of Mafon was recited nearly in the fame words as in the former commiffion, and the fame directions were given to the governor to reconcile differences, or fend cafes fairly stated to the king in council, for his decifion. The counfellors named in this commission were Mason, who is ftyled proprietor, Waldron, Daniel, Vaughan,

1682.

189

MSS in the files.

Fitch'sMS.

HISTORY OF 1682.

190

Council Records. Vaughan, Martyn, Gilman, Stileman and Clements: Thefe were of the former council, and to them were added Walter Barefoote and Richard Chamberlayne.

Cranfield arrived and published his commiffion on the fourth of October, and within fix days Waldron and Martyn were fuspended from the council, on certain articles exhibited against them by Mason. This early specimen of the exercise of power must have been intended as a public affront to them, in revenge for their former spirited conduct; otherwise their names might have been left out of the commission when it was drawn.

The people now plainly faw the dangerous defigns formed against them. The negative voice of a governor, his right of fufpending counfellors, and appointing officers, by his own authority, were wholly unprecedented in New-England; and they had the fingular mortification to fee the crown not only appointing two branches of their legiflature, but claiming a negative on the election of their representatives, in a particular cafe, which might fometimes be effentially neceffary to their own fecurity. They well knew that the fole defign of these novel and extraordinary powers was to facilitate the entry of the claimant claimant on the lands which fome of them held by virtue of grants from the fame authority, and which had all been fairly purchased of the Indians; a right which they believed to be of more validity than any other. Having by their own labour and expence fubdued a rough wildernefs, defended their families and cftates against the favage enemy, without the least affistance from the claimant, and held poffeffion for above fifty years; they now thought it hard and cruel, that when they had just recovered from the horrors of a bloody war, they fhould have their liberty abridged, and their property demanded, to fatisfy a claim which was at best difputable, and in their opinion groundlefs. On the other hand it was deemed unjust, that grants made under the royal authority fhould be difregarded; and that fo great a fum as had been expended by the anceftor of the claimant, to promote the fettlement of the country, fhould be entirely loft to him ; efpecially as he had foregone fome just claims on the estate as a condition of inheritance. Had the inhabitants by any fraudulent means impeded the defigns of the original grantee, or embezzled his intereft, there might have been a just demand for damages ; but the unfuccefsfulnels fulnefs of that adventure was to be fought for in its own impracticability; or the negligence, inability or inexperience of those into whose hands the management of it fell after Captain Mason's death, and during the minority of his fuccessfor.

Mafon's Will.

192

An affembly, being fummoned, met on the fourteenth of November; with whofe concurrence a new body of laws was enacted, in fome refpects different from the former; the fundamental law being omitted and an alteration made in the appointment of jurors, which was now ordered to be done by the fheriff, after the cuftom in England.

Cranfield, who made no fecret of his intention to enrich himfelf by accepting the government, on the firft day of the affembly reftored Waldron and Martyn to their places in the council; having, as he faid, examined the allegations againft them and found them infufficient. In return for this fhew of complaifance, and taking advantage of his needy fituation, the affembly having ordered an affeffment of five hundred pounds, appropriated one half of it as a prefent to the governor; hoping hereby to detach him from Mafon, who they knew could never comply with his engagements to him. Prefering a certainty

M3 Laws.

Vaughan's Journal.

Council Rec.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

to an uncertainty, he paffed the bill, though it was not prefented to him till after he had given order for adjourning the court, and after Mason, Barefoote and Chamberlayne were withdrawn from the council.

This appearance of good humour was but fhort-lived; for at the next fellion of the affembly, the governor and council having tendered them a bill for the fupport of government, which they did not approve, and they having offered him feveral bills which he faid were contrary to law, he diffolved them; having previoufly fuspended Stileman from the council and difmiffed him from the command of the fort, for fuffering a veffel under feizure to go out of the harbour. Barefoote was made captain of the fort in his room.

The diffolution of the Affembly, a thing before unknown, aggravated the popular difcontent, and kindled the refentment of fome rash perfons in Hampton and Exeter; who, headed by Edward Gove, a member of the diffolved affembly, declared by found of trumpet for " liberty and " reformation." There had been a town meeting at Hampton, when a new clerk was chosen and their records fecured. Gove went from town to town proclaiming what had been done at Hampton, carrying his arms, 1682. Decemb. I.

193

MSS in the Files.

1683. Ian. 20.

Council Rec.

-

arms, declaring that the governor was a traitor and had exceeded his commission. and that he would not lay down his arms till matters were fet right, and endeavouring to excite the principal men in the province to join in a confederacy to overturn the government. His project appeared to them fo wild and dangerous, that they not only difapproved it, but informed against him and affisted in apprehending him. Hearing of their defign, he collected his company, and appeared in arms; but on the perfualion of fome of his friends he furrendered. A fpecial court was immediately commissioned for his trial, of which Major Waldron fat as judge, with William Vaughan and Thomas Daniel affistants. The grand jury presented a bill in which Edward Gove, John Gove, his fon, and William Hely, of Hampton; Jofeph, John and Robert Wadleigh, three brothers, Thomas Rawlins, Mark Baker and John Sleeper, of Exeter, were charged with high-treafon. Gove, who behaved with great infolence before the court, and pretended to justify what he had done, was convicted and received fentence of death in the ufual hideous form ; and his estate was feized, as forfeited to the crown. The others were convicted of being accomplices, Feb. I.

Records of Special Courts,

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

complices, and refpited. The king's pleafure being fignified to the governor that he fhould pardon fuch as he judged objects of mercy; they were all fet at liberty but Gove, who was fent to England, and imprifoned in the tower of London about three years. On his repeated petitions to the king, and by the intereft of Randolph with the Earl of Clarendon, then lord chamberlain, he obtained his pardon and returned home in 1686, with an order to the then prefident and council of New-England to reftore his eftate.

Gove in his petitions to the king pleaded " a diftemper of mind" as the caufe of those actions for which he was profecuted. He alfo fpeaks in fome of his private letters of a drinking match at his houfe, and that he had not flept for twelve days and nights, about that time. When thefe things are confidered, it is not hard to account for his conduct. From a letter which he wrote to the court while in prifon, one would fuppofe him to have been difordered in his mind. His punishment was by much too fevere, and his trial was hurried on too fail, it being only fix days after the commission of his crime. Had he been indicted only for a riot there would have been no difficulty in the proof, nor hardship 0 2

Gove's Papers,

MS in files.

195

1683.

S

hardship in inflicting the legal penalty. Waldron, it is faid, shed tears when pronouncing the sentence of death upon him.

On the fourteenth of February the governor, by advertifement, called upon the inhabitants to take out leafes from Mafon within one month, otherwise he must, purfuant to his instructions, certify the refufal to the king, that Mafon might be discharged of his obligation to grant them. Upon this fummons and within the time fet, Major Waldron, John Wingett and Thomas Roberts, three of the principal landholders in Dover, waited on the governor to know his pleafure, who directed them to agree with Mafon. They then retired into another room where Mafon was, and propofed to refer the matter to the governor, that he might according to his commission, state the matter to the king for his decifion. This propofal Mafon rejected, faying that unlefs they would own his title, he would have nothing to do with them. While they were in difcourfe the governor came in and defired them to depart.

This piece of conduct is difficult to be accounted for, it being directly in the face of the commission. Had the method therein prefcribed, and by these men proposed, been Weare's MS. been adopted, it was natural to expect that the king, who had all along favoured Mafon's pretenfions, would have determined the cafe as much to his wifh as upon an appeal from a judicial court; befides, he had now the fairest opportunity to have it decided in the fhortest way, to which his antagonists must have submitted, it being their own propofal. His refufal to accede to it was a capital mistake, as it left both him and Cranfield exposed to the charge of difobedience. But it afforded a powerful plea in behalf of the people; whofe confidence in the royal juffice would have induced them to comply with the directions in the commission. It being now impoffible to have the controverfy thus decided they determined to hearken to none of his propofals. As he generally met with oppofition and contradiction he was induced to utter many rafh fayings in all companies. He threatened to feize the principal effates, beggar their owners, and provoke them to rebellion by bringing a frigate into the harbour and procuring foldiers to be quartered on the inhabitants. These threats were so far from intimidating the people that they ferved the more firmly to unite them in their determination not to fubmit; and each party was now warm in their opposition and refertment.

Weare's MS.

ty

The governor on fome fresh pretence fuspended Waldron, Martyn and Gilman from the council. The deaths of Daniels and Clements made two other vacancies. Vaughan held his feat the longeft, but was at length thrust out for his non-compliance with fome arbitrary meafures. So that the governor had it in his power to model the council to his mind, which he did by appointing at various times Nathanael Fryer, Robert Eliot, John Hinckes, James Sherlock, Francis Champernoon and Edward Randolph, efquires. The judicial courts were also filled with officers proper for the intended bufinefs. Barefoote, the deputy governor, was judge; Mason was chancellor; Chamberlayne was clerk and prothonotary; Randolph was attorney general, and Sherlock provoft marshal and sheriff. Some who had always been difaffected to the country, and others who had been awed by threats or flattered by promifes took leafes from Mafon; and these served for under sheriffs, jurors, evidences, and other neceffary perfons.

Things being thus prepared, Mafon began his law-fuits by a writ againft Major Waldron, (who had always diftinguished himfelf himfelf in opposition to his claim) for holding lands and felling timber to the amount of four thousand pounds. The major appeared in court, and challenged every one of the jury as interested perfons, fome of them having taken leafes of Mafon, and all of them living upon the lands which he claimed. The judge then caufed the oath of voire dire to be adminiftered to each juror, purporting "that he " was not concerned in the lands in que-" ftion, and that he fhould neither gain " nor lofe by the caufe." Upon which the major faid aloud to the people prefent, " That his was a leading cafe, and that " if he were caft they must all become te-" nants to Mafon; and that all perfons in " the province being interested, none of " them could legally be of the jury." The cafe however went on; but he made no defence, afferted no title, and gave no evidence on his part. Judgment was given against him and at the next court of feffions he was fined five pounds for " muti-" nous and feditious words."

Council Rec.

Suits were then inftituted against all the principal landholders in the province, who, following Waldron's example, never made any defence. Some, chiefly of Hampton, gave in writing their reasons for not joining MS in the files.

1683.

ing iffue; which were, the refufal of Mafon to comply with the directions in the commission; the impropriety of a jury's determining what the king had exprefsly referved to himfelf; and the incompetency of the jury, they being all interested perfons, one of whom had faid that " he " would fpend his eftate to make Mafon's " right good." Thefe reafons were irritating rather than convincing to the court. The jury never hefitated in their verdicts. From feven to twelve caufes were difpatched in a day, and the coft's were multiplied from five to twenty pounds. Executions were iffued, of which two or three only were levied; but Mason could neither keep possession of the premises nor dispose of them by fale, fo that the owners still enjoyed them. Several threatened to appeal to the king but Major Vaughan alone made the experiment.

A fuit was alfo commenced againft Martyn who had been treafurer, for the fines and forfeitures received by him, during the former administration; and judgment was recovered for feventy one pounds with cofts. Martyn petitioned Mafon as chancellor, fetting forth that he had received and difpofed of the money according to the orders of the late prefident and council, and praying that the whole MSS in files, and Weare's MSS. whole burden might not lie upon him. A decree was then iffued for the other furviving members of the late council, and the heirs of thofe who were dead, to bear their proportion. This decree was afterward reverfed by the king in council.

Cranfield with his council had now affumed the whole legiflative power. They prohibited veffels from Maffachufetts to enter the port, becaufe the acts of trade were not obferved in that colony: They fixed the dimensions of merchantable lumber; altered the value of filver money, which had always paffed by weight at fix shillings and eight-pence per ounce; and ordered that dollars fhould be received at fix fhillings each, which was then a great hardship; as many of them were greatly deficient in weight: They alfo changed the bounds of townships; eftablished fees of office; made regulations for the package of fish, and ordered the conftables to forbear collecting any town or parish taxes till the province tax was paid, and the accounts fettled with the treasurer.

The public grievances having become infupportable, the people were driven to the neceffity of making a vigorous fland for their liberties. The only regular way was Council Rec.

201

MSS in files.

was by complaint to the king. Having privately communicated their fentiments to each other, and raifed money by fubfcription, they appointed Nathaniel Weare, elq. of Hampton their agent; and the four towns having drawn and fubfcribed diffinct petitions of the fame tenor, Weare privately withdrew to Bofton from whence he failed for England. Major Vaughan who accompanied him to Bofton, and was appointed to procure depositions to fend after him, was upon his return to Portfmouth, brought to an examination, treated with great infolence and required to find fureties for his good behaviour; which, having broken no law, he refused*; and was by the governor's own warrant immediately committed to prifon; where he was kept nine months to the great damage of his health, and of his own as well as the people's intereft.

1684.

MSS in Files.

> Amidst these multiplied oppressions, Cranfield was still disappointed of the gains he had expected to reap from his office; and found to his great mortification, that there was no way of supplying his wants, but by application to the people, through an

> * In this refufal he is countenanced by the example of the great Selden, and other members of parliament who were imprifoned by order of Charles 1. in 1629.

Macaulay's Hift. Eng. 8vo. Vol. 2. p. 72.

an affembly. He had already abufed them fo much that he could hope nothing from their favour; and was therefore obliged to have recourse to artifice. On a vague rumour of a foreign war, he pretended much concern for the prefervation of the province from invafion; and prefuming that they would fhew the fame concern for themfelves, he called an affembly at Great-Ifland where he refided, to whom he tendered a bill, which in a manner totally unparliamentary, had been drawn and paffed by the council, for raifing money to defray the expence of repairing the fort, and fupplying it with ammunition, and for other neceffary charges of government. The house* debated a while, and adjourned for the night, and the tide ferving, the members went up to the town. In the morning they returned the bill with their negative; at which the governor was highly enraged, and telling them that they had been to confult with Moody, and other declared enemies of the king and Januar. 14.

 The members of this affembly were, For Portfmouth.
 Richard Waldrou, jun. fpeaker, Anti Philip Lewis, Jofey John Pickering. John Dover.
 John Gerrifh, Rob John Woodman, Tho Anthony Nutter.

Hampton. Anthony Stanyon, Jofeph Smith, John Smith. Exeter. Robert Smart, Thomas Wiggen. (Court Records.) 203

1684.

 \sim

Court Rec. Vaughan's Journal. and church of England, he diffolved them; and afterward by his influence with the court of feffions, divers of the members were made conftables for the following: year. Some of them took the oath, and others paid the fine which was ten pounds. Thus by a mean and execrable revenge, he taxed those whom he could not perfuade to tax their conflituents for his purpose.

But Moody was marked as an object. of peculiar vengeance. He had for fome time rendered himfelf obnoxious by the. freedom and plainnefs of his pulpit difcourfes, and his ftrictness in administering the difcipline of the church; one inftance. of which merits particular notice. Randolph having feized a veffel, fhe was in the night carried out of the harbour. The owner, who was a member of the church, fwore that he knew nothing of it; but upon trial there appeared ftrong fufpicions. that he had perjured himfelf. He found means to make up the matter with the governor and collector; but Moody, being concerned for the purity of his church, requested of the governor copies of the evidence, that the offender might be called to account in the way of ecclefiaftical difcipline. Cranfield fternly refused, faying that that he had forgiven him, and that neither the church nor minister should meddle with him; and even threatened Moody in cafe he should. Not intimidated, Moody confulted the church and preached a fermon against false fwearing; then the offender, being called to account, was cenfured, and at length brought to a public confession. This procedure extremely difgufted the governor who had no way then in his power to fhew his refentment. But malice, ever fruitful in expedients to attain its ends, fuggested a method, which, to the fcandal of the English nation, has been too often practifed. The penal laws against nonconformists were at this time executing with great rigour in England; and Cranfield, ambitious to ape his royal mafter, determined to play off the ecclefiaffical artillery here, the direction of which he fuppofed to be deputed to him. with his other powers. He had attempted to impofe upon the people the obfervation of the thirtieth of January as a fast, and restrain them from manual labour at Christmass; but his capital stroke was to iffue an order in council " that af-" ter the first of January, the ministers " fhould admit all perfons of fuitable years " and not vicious, to the Lord's fupper, " and

204

205

1684.

Portf.Chb. Records.

-206

" and their children to baptifm; and that " if any perfon fhould defire baptifm or " the other facrament to be administered " according to the liturgy of the church " of England, it fhould be done, in pur-" fuance of the king's command to the " colony of Maffachuffetts*; and any mi-" nister refusing fo to do should fuffer the " penalty of the statutes of uniformity".

The fame week in which he diffolved the affembly, he fignified to Moody in writing, by the hands of the fheriff, that himfelf, with Mafon and Hinckes, intended to partake of the Lord's fupper the next Sunday; requiring him to adminifler it to them according to the liturgy; and, as they juftly expected, he at once denied them. The way was now opened for a profecution; and the attorney general

* This command was conceived in the following terms :

"And fince the principle and foundation of that charter was and is freedom and liberty of conficience; Wee do hereby charge and require you that freedom and liberty be duely admitted and allowed, fo that they that defire to use the booke of common prayer and perform their devotion in that manner that is established here be not denyed the exercise thereof, or undergoe any prejudice or difadvantage thereby, they using their liberty peaceably without any diffurbance to others; and that all perfons of good and honeft lives and convertations be admitted to the facrament of the Lord's fupper according to faid booke of common prayer, and their children to baptifue."

This command cannot confiftently with the acknowledged principle and first limitation, be confirued any other way, than that the use of the liturgy should be permitted to such ministers and people as defired it. To compete ministers to use it, and leave all others at liberty, was a construction that malice alone could suggest.

King Charles's Letter in Hutchin. col. pap. p. 378.

ral Joseph Rayn, by the governor's order exhibited an information at the next court of seffions, before Walter Barefoote judge, Nathanael Fryer and Henry Greene affiftants, Peter Coffin, Thomas Edgerly and Henry Robie justices, fetting forth, " that " Joshua Moody clerk, being minister of " the town of Portfinouth within the do-" minions of King Charles, was by the " duty of his place and the laws of the " realm, viz. the statutes of the fifth and " fixth of Edward VI, the first of Eliza-" beth, and the thirteenth and fourteenth " of Charles II, required to administer the " Lord's fupper in fuch form as was fet " forth in the book of common prayer, " and no other. But that the faid Moody " in contempt of the laws had wilfully " and obftinately refused to administer the " fame to the Honourable Edward Cran-" field, Robert Mafon, and John Hinckes, " and did obftinately use fome other form." Moody in his defence pleaded that he was not epifcopally ordained as the flatutes required; nor did he receive his maintenance according to them; and therefore was not obliged to the performance of what had been commanded; that the alledged ftatutes were not intended for these plantations, the known and avowed end of their fettlement 207 1684.

MSS in files.

HISTORY OF

1684.

Portf. Chh. Records.

Vaughan's Journal.

fettlement being the enjoyment of freedom from the imposition of those laws; which freedom was allowed and confirmed by the king, in the liberty of confcience granted to all protestants, in the governor's commission. Four of the justices, viz. Greene, Robie, Edgerly and Fryer were at first for acquitting him; but the matter being adjourned till the next day, Cranfield found means before morning to gain Robie and Greene, who then joined with Barefoote and Coffin, in fentencing him to fix months imprisonment, without bail or mainprize. The other two perfifted in their former opinion, and were foon after removed from all their offices. Moody was immediately ordered into cuftody, without being permitted first to fee his family; and he remained under confinement, in company with Major Vaughan, at the house of Captain Stileman, with liberty of the yard, for thirteen weeks; "his bene-" fice" being declared forfeited to the crown. The next week after Moody's trial, the governor in a profane bravado fent word to Seaborn Cotton minister of Hampton, that " when he had prepared " his foul, he would come and demand " the facrament of him as he had done " at Portfmouth." Upon which Cotton withdrew

Yaughan's Journal.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

209

1684.

withdrew to Bofton. The minister of Dover, John Pike, was (so far as I can find) unmolested. Exeter had then no fettled minister.

During Moody's imprifonment, Cranfield would neither fuffer him to go up to the town to preach, nor the people to affemble at the ifland to hear, nor the neighbouring ministers to fupply his place; only the family where he was confined were permitted to be prefent with him at fabbath exercifes. But while the governor was abfent on a tour to New-York, Mafon gave leave for opening the meetinghoufe twice, when they obtained a minifter to officiate; he also allowed both Moody and Vaughan to make a fhort vifit to their families. At length, by the interpolition of friends, Moody obtained a release, though under a strict charge to preach no more within the province, on penalty of farther imprisonment. He then accepted an invitation from the first church in Bofton; where being out of the reach of his perfecutors, he was employed as a preacher, and was fo highly efteemed that upon the death of Prefident Rogers he was invited to take the overfight of the college, which he modeftly declined, and continued his ministrations at Boston, fre-P quently

Vaughan's Journal,

Harvard College Records.

Original MSS. quently vifiting his defitute church at Portfmouth, at their private meetings, till 1692; when, the government being in other hands, and the eaftern country under trouble by the Indians, at the earnest request of his people, and by the advice of an ecclesiastical council, he returned to his charge at Portfmouth, and spent the rest of his days there in usefulness, love, and peace*.

Upon a calm review of this profecution, one can hardly tell which is most detestable, the vindictive temper which gave it birth; or the profaneness and hypocrify with which it was conducted. The pretended zeal of the profecutors was totally inconfistent with a due regard to those laws, and the principles of that church, for which they made themfelves fuch contemptible champions. For it had been long before this time, a received opinion in the church of England, that the validity of all the facramental administrations depends on authority derived from the apostles, by episcopal ordination, in an uninterrupted fucceffion; and one of the statutes on which the profecution was grounded grounded enacts, ' that no perfon shall • prefume to confecrate and administer the · Lord's fupper, before he be ordained a · prieft by epifcopal ordination, on pain · of forfeiting for every offence one hun-' dred pounds.' The ministers then in the province, being deftitute of the grand pre-requifite, were incapable by the act, of doing what was fo peremptorily required of them; and had they complied with the governor's order, must have exposed themselves to the penalty, if he had pleafed to exact it from them. But the extending these penalties to the king's American subjects, who had fled hither from the rod of prelatic tyranny, was a most unwarrantable ftretch of power; fince the last of these acts, and the only one which had been made fince the fettlement of the colonies, was expressly reftricted in its operation, to " the realm of England, domi-" nion of Wales, and town of Berwick " upon Tweed."

* He died at Bofton, being there on a vifit, July 4, 1697, Æt. 65. Dr. Cotton Mather preached his funeral fermon from Acts vi. 15. "They faw his face as it had been the face of an angel." Magnalia, lib. 4. cap. 7.

210

Difappointed in all his fchemes for raifing money by an affembly, Cranfield next ventured on the project of taxing the people without their confent. The pretext for this was a claufe in the commiffion. impowering him, with the council, " to " continue fuch taxes as had been former-P 2 " ly 1684. Stat. 13 & 14 Car. II.

212

1684.

" ly levied, until a general affembly could " be called." This had been done, without offence, at the beginning both of this and the former administration, when the change of government rendered it neceffary. But the council, though too much devoted to him, were not eafily perfuaded into the measure at this time; till fear at length accomplished what reason could not approve : for, letters being received from the eaftward, informing of the difcovery of a plot among the Indians, who were infligated by Caffine the Frenchman to renew the war early in the fpring, the council were fummoned in hafte, and prefently agreed to the governor's propofal, for continuing fuch taxes as had been formerly laid, which he told them was neceffary for the immediate defence and fecurity of the province. This affair, however, was kept fecret for the prefent; and the people were first to be convinced of the governor's paternal care and kindnefs in taking the neceffary precautions for their fafety. It was ordered that the meetinghouses in each town should be fortified, and bye garrifons were eftablished in convenient places: Supplies of ammunition were ordered to be provided : Circular letters were difpatched to the governors of

Feb. 14.

March 13.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

of the neighbouring colonies, informing them of the danger; and, to crown the whole, Cranfield himfelf, at the requeft of the council, undertook a tour to New-York to folicit the governor, Dongan, for a number of the Mohawks to come down and deftroy the eaftern Indians; promifing to pay them for their fervices out of the money which was thus to be raifed.

At his return from this excursion, he found himfelf under fome embarrassment in his favourite views, from a letter of the lords of trade, which directed him to make use of an affembly, in raising money on the people. He could not, therefore, avoid calling one, though he immediately diffolved it, becaufe feveral of the members were those whom he had formerly ordered to be made conftables. At the fame time, in his letters to the fecretary of state, he reprefented the affembly as perfons of fuch a mutinous and rebellious difpolition, that it was not fafe to let them convene; that they had never given any thing toward the fupport of government; that he was obliged to raife money without them; and that it was impoffible for him to ferve his majefty's intereft without a fhip of war to enforce his orders; and finally he defired leave to go to the West-Indies for the recovery

1684.

Council Records.

Vaughan's Journal.

May 27.

1

recovery of his health. When this bufinefs was difpatched, warrants were iffued for collecting the taxes; which caufed frefh murmurings and difcontent among the people.

But however difaffected to the governor and his creatures, they were always ready to teftify their obedience to the royal orders; an inftance of which occurred at this time. The feas of America and the West-Indies being much infested with pirates, the king fent orders to all the governors and colony affemblies, directing acts to be made for the suppressing of piracy and robbery on the high feas. Cranfield, having received this order, fummoned an affembly; and though it confifted almost entirely of the fame perfons who were in the laft; he fuffered them to pafs the act, and then quietly diffolved them : This was the last assembly that ever he called.

The tax-bills were first put into the hands of the newly made constables; who foon returned them, informing the governor that the people were fo averse from the method, that it was impossible to collect the money. The provost, Thomas Thurton, was then commanded to do it, with the affistance of his deputies and the constables.

July 22:

Council Records, and Files.

stables. The people still refusing compliance, their cattle and goods were taken by diffreint and fold by auction: Thofe who would neither pay nor difcover their goods to the officers, were apprehended and imprifoned; and fome of the conftables, who refused to affist, fuffered the fame fate. The more confiderate of the people were difposed to bear these grievances, though highly irritating, till they could know the refult of their applications to the king. But in a country where the love of liberty had ever been the ruling paffion, it could not be expected but that fome forward fpirits would break the reftraints of prudence, and take a fummary method to put a ftop to their oppreffions. Several perfons had declared that they would fooner part with their lives, than fuffer distreints; and affociations were formed for mutual fupport. At Exeter the fheriff was refifted and driven off with clubs: the women having prepared hot fpits and fcalding water to affift in the oppofition, as Thurton testified in his deposition on the occafion. At Hampton he was beaten, and his fword was taken from him; then he was feated on an horfe, and conveyed out of the province to Salifbury with a rope about his neck and his feet tied under

Dec. 29.

Januar. 22.

1684.

215

1684.

Januar. 9.

MSS in files. der the horfe's belly. Juftice Robie attempted to commit fome of the rioters; but they were refcued by the way, and both the juftice and the fheriff were ftruck in the execution of their office. The troop of horfe, under Mafon's command, was then ordered to turn out completely mounted and armed, to affift in fuppreffing the diforders; but when the day came not one trooper appeared. Cranfield thus finding his efforts ineffectual, and his authority contemptible, was obliged to defift.

The agent had been a long time in England, waiting for the depositions, which were to have been transmitted to him, in fupport of the complaint which he was to exhibit. Cranfield and his creatures here did all that they could, to retard the bufinefs; first by imprifoning Vaughan, and then by refufing to fummon and fwear witneffes when applied to by others; who were obliged to go into the neighbouring governments, to get their depositions authenticated; and after all, the proof was defective, as they had not accefs to the public records. The agent, however, exhibited his complaint against Cranfield in general terms, confifting of eight articles. · That he had engroffed the power of erect-. ing courts, and eftablishing fees exclu-· five Jely II.

' five of the affembly: That he had not · followed the directions in his commiffion · refpecting Mafon's controverfy; but had · caufed it to be decided on the fpot by ⁶ courts of his own conftitution, confifting ' wholly of perfons devoted to his inte-' reft: That exorbitant charges had been ' exacted and fome who were unable to · fatisfy them had been imprifoned: That ' others had been obliged to fubmit, for want of money to carry on the fuits: ' That he had altered the value of filver ' money: That he had imprifoned fundry ' perfons without just caufe : That he with · his council had affumed legiflative autho-' rity, without an affembly; and, that he ' had done his utmost to prevent the peo-· ple from laying their complaints before ' the king, and procuring the neceffary · evidence.'

This complaint was, in courfe, referred to the board of trade; who transmitted copies of it, and of the feveral proofs, to Cransfield, and fummoned him to make his defence; directing him to deliver to the adverse party copies of all the affidavits which should be taken in his favour; to let all persons have free access to the records; and to give all needful affistance to them in collecting their evidence against him. When Weare's MSS.

July 23.

lbid.

1684.

When he had received this letter he fufpended Mafon's fuits, till the queftion concerning the legality of the courts fhould be decided. He alfo ordered the fecretary to give copies to thofe who fhould apply for them. At the fame time it was complained that the people, on their part, had been equally referved, in fecreting the records of the feveral towns; fo that Mafon upon enquiry could not find where they were depofited; and the town clerks, when fummoned, had folemnly fworn that they knew neither where the books were concealed, nor who had taken them out of their poffeffion.

MSS in the files.

1685.

The neceffary evidence on both fides being procured, a new complaint was drawn up, confifting of twelve articles, which were. ' That at the first fession of • the affembly Cranfield had challenged • the power of legislation and fettlement · of affairs to himfelf against the words of ' the commiffion: That he had by pur-' chafe or mortgage from Mason, made ' himfelf owner of the province, and fo • was not likely to act impartially between . Mason and the inhabitants: That he had ' made courts, whereof both judges and ' jurors had agreed with Mafon for their ' own lands, and fome had taken deeds of · him

218

· him for other men's lands, fo that they ' were engaged by their intereft to fet up ' Majon's title: That Majon had fued ' forty perfons, and caft all; and that the ' governor's interpolal to flate the cales, ' as by his commiffion he was directed, ' had been refused though defired; and ' that the defendants pleas grounded on ' the laws of England were rejected: That ' they could not reconcile the verdict with ' the attachment, nor the execution with ' the verdict, nor their practice under co-· lour of the execution with either; that • the verdict found the lands fued for ac-· cording to the royal commission and in-· ftructions, and that commiffion only gave • power to state the cafe if Mason and the ' people could not agree; but the execu-• tion took land and all : That the charge · of every action was about fix pounds, · though nothing was done in court, but · reading the commiffion and fome blank ' grants without hand or feal; and thefe • were not read for one cafe in ten : That · court charges were exacted in money, ' which many had not; who though they ' tendered cattle, were committed to pri-' fon for non-payment : That ministers, ' contrary to his majefty's commission, • which granted liberty of confcience to all · protestants, 1685.

?

HISTORY OF

' protestants, had their dues withheld from ' them, even those that were due before · Cranfield came, and were threatened with · fix months imprisonment for not admi-· niftering the facrament according to the · liturgy : That though the general affembly agreed that Spanish money should • pafs by weight, the governor and council • ordered pieces of eight to pass for fix shil-· lings, though under weight : That men • were commonly compelled to enter into · bonds of great penalty, to appear and an-' fwer to what fhould be objected against them, when no crime was alledged : 'That they had few laws but those made ' by the governor and council, when his · commiffion directed the general affembly • to make laws: That the courts were ' kept in a remote corner of the province; ' and the fheriff was a ftranger and had ' no visible estate, and fo was not responsi-· ble for failures.'

Upon this complaint, an hearing was had before the lords of trade on Tuefday the tenth of March; and their lordfhips reported to the king, on three articles only of the complaint viz. 'That Cranfield ' had not purfued his inftructions with re-' gard to Mafon's controverfy; but inftead ' thereof had caufed courts to be held and ' titles

Weare's MSS.

1685.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

⁴ titles to be decided, with exorbitant cofts; ⁴ and that he had exceeded his power in ⁵ regulating the value of coins.' This report was accepted, and the king's pleafure therein fignified to him. At the fame time, his requeft for abfence being granted, he, on receipt of the letters, privately embarked on board a veffel for Jamaica; and from thence went to England, where he obtained the collectorfhip of Barbadoes. At his departure, Barefoote the deputygovernor took the chair; which he held till he was fuperfeded by Dudley's commiffion, as prefident of New-England.

Cranfield's ill conduct must be afcribed in a great meafure to his difappointment of the gains which he expected to acquire, by the establishment of Mason's title; which could be his only inducement to accept of the government. This difappointment inflaming his temper, naturally vindictive and imperious, urged him to actions not only illegal, but cruel and unmanly. A ruler never degrades his character more than when he perverts public justice to gratify perfonal refentment; he should punish none but the enemies of the laws, and diffurbers of the peace of the community over which he prefides. Had there been the least colour, either of zeal or Neal'sHift. & Fitch's M.S.

1685.

or policy, for the feverity exercifed in the 1685.

Neal, vol. 2: p. 39.

Hutchin. vol. 1. pag. 337.

Fitch'sMS.

profecution of Moody, candour would oblige us to make fome allowance for human frailty. His ordering the members of the affembly to be made conftables, was a mode of revenge difgraceful to the character of the fupreme magistrate. From the fame base disposition, he is faid to have employed fpies and pimps, to find matter of accufation against people in their clubs, and private difcourfe. And his deceit was equal to his malice; for, being at Bofton when the charter of that colony was called in queftion, and the people were folicitous to ward off the danger; he advifed them to make a private offer of two thoufand guineas to the king, promifing to reprefent them in a favourable light; but when they, not fuspecting his intention, followed his advice, and fhewed him the letter which they had wrote to their agents for that purpofe, he treacheroufly reprefented them as "difloyal rogues;" and made them appear fo ridiculous that their agents were ashamed to be feen at court. However, when he had quitted the country, and had time for reflection, he grew afhamed of his mifconduct, and while he was collector at Barbadoes, made a point of treating the mafters of veffels, and other perfons perfons who went thither from Pascataqua, with particular respect.

Although the decision of titles in Cranfield's courts had been reprefented, in the report of the lords, as extrajudicial, and a royal order had been thereupon iffued to fuspend any farther proceedings in the cafe of Mason, till the matter should be brought before the king in council, purfuant to the directions in the commission; yet Barefoote fuffered executions which had before been iffued to be extended, and perfons to be imprifoned at Mafon's fuit. This occafioned a fresh complaint and petition to the king, which was fent by Weare, who about this time made a fecond voyage to England, as agent for the province and attorney to Vaughan, to manage an appeal from feveral verdicts, judgments, decrees and fines which had been given against him in the courts here, one of which was on the title to his effate. An attempt being made to levy one of the executions in Dover, a number of perfons forcibly refifted the officer, and obliged him to relinquish his defign. Warrants were then iffued against the rioters, and the sheriff with his attendants attempted to feize them, while the people were affembled for divine fervice. This caufed an uproar in the 1685.

223

Weare's MSS.

MSS in files.

224

MSS in files.

Dec. 30.

the congregation, in which a young heroine diffinguished herself by knocking down one of the officers with her bible. They were all so roughly handled that they were glad to escape with their lives.

That nothing might be wanting to fhew the enmity of the people to thefe meafures, and their hatred and contempt for the authors of them; there are still preferved the original depositions on oath, of Barefoote and Mafon, relating to an affault made on their perfons by Thomas Wiggen and Anthony Nutter, who had been members of the affembly. These two men came to Barefoote's houfe where Mafon lodged, and entered into difcourfe with him about his proceedings; denying his claim, and using fuch language as provoked him to take hold of Wiggen, with an intention to thrust him out at the door. But Wiggen being a ftronger man feized him by his cravat, and threw him into the fire; where his clothes and one of his legs were burned. Barefoote, attempting to help him, met with the fame fate, and had two of his ribs broken and one of his teeth beaten out in the ftruggle. The noife alarmed the fervants, who at Mafon's command brought his fword, which Nutter ter took away, making sport of their mifery*.

Nothing elfe occured during Barefoote's thort administration, except a treaty of friendship, between the Indians of Penacook and Saco, on the one part; and the people of New-Hampshire and Maine on the other. The foundation of this treaty feems to have been laid in Cranfield's project of bringing down the Mohawks on the eastern Indians; which had once before proved a pernicious measure; as they made no diffinction between those tribes which were at peace with the English, and those which were at war. Some of the Penacook Indians who had been at Albany after Cranfield's journey to New-York, reported on their return, that the Mohawks threatened destruction to all the eastern Indians.

* A farther specimen of the contempt in which these men were held, even by the lower class of people, expressed in their own genuine language, may be seen in the following affidavit :

"Mary Rann, aged thirty years or thereabout, witneffeth, that the 21 day of March 84, being in company with Seabank Hog, I heard her fay; it was very hard for the governor of this province to firike Sam. Seavy before he fpoke; the faid Hog faidalfo that it was well the faid Seavy's mother was not there for the governor, for if the had, there had been bloody work for him. I heard the faid Hog fay alfo, that the governor and thereft of the gentlemen were a crew of pitiful curs, and did they want earthly honour ? if they did, the would pull off her head clothes and come in her hair to them, like a parcel of pitiful beggally curs as they were; come to undo us both hody and foul; they could not be contented to take our eflates from us, but they have taken away the gofpel alfo, which the devil would have them for it."

"Sworn in the court of pleas held at Great Island the 7 of Nov. 1684. R. Chamberlain, Prothon." 1685.

. 1685.

. 226

Indians, from Narrhaganfet to Pechypicot. Hagkins, a chief of the tribe, had informed Cranfield in the fpring of the danger he apprehended, and had implored affistance and protection, but had been treated with neglect. In August the Penacook and Saco Indians gathered their corn, and removed their families; which gave an alarm to their English neighbours, as if they were preparing for war. Meffengers being fent to demand the reafon of their movement, were informed that it was the fear of the Mohawks, whom they daily expected to deftroy them; and being afked why they did not come in among the English for protection, they answered, left the Mohawks fhould hurt the English on their account. Upon this they were perfuaded to enter into an agreement; and accordingly their chiefs being affembled with the council of New-Hampshire, and a deputation from the province of Maine, a treaty was concluded, wherein it was ftipulated, that all future perfonal injuries on either fide fhould, upon complaint, be immediately redreffed; that information should be given of approaching danger from enemies; that the Indians should not remove their families from the neighbourhood of the English without giving timely timely notice, and if they did that it fhould be taken for a declaration of war; and, that while these articles were observed the English would affist and protect them against the Mohawks and all other enemies. The danger was but imaginary, and the peace continued about four years.

Septemb.8.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

Though Mafon was hitherto difppointed in his views of recovering the inhabited part of the province, he endeavoured to lay a foundation for realizing his claim to the wafte lands. A purchase having been made from the Indians, by Jonathan Tyng and nineteen others, of a tract of land on both fides the river Merrimack, fix miles in breadth, from Souhegan river to Winnipifcogee lake; Mafon by deed confirmed the fame, referving to himfelf and his heirs the yearly rent of ten shillings. This was called the million acre purchafe. About the fame time he farmed out to Hezckiah Ufher and his heirs, the mines, minerals, and ores within the limits of New-Hampfhire, for the term of one thousand years; referving to himfelf one quarter part of the royal ores, and one feventeenth of the bafer forts; and having put his affairs here in the beft order that the times would admit, he failed for England, to attend the hearing of Vaughan's appeal to the king. CHAP. O_2

1685.

227

Original MSS in files.

1686.

April 15.

Douglas, vol. 1. p. 419.

May 15.

Records of Deeds.

C H A P. IX.

The administration of Dudley as president, and Androsse as governor of New-England. Mason's farther attempt. His disappointment and death. Revolution-Sale to Allen. His commission for the government.

T T HEN an arbitrary government is determined to infringe the liberty of the people, it is eafy to find pretences to fupport the most unrighteous claims. King Charles the fecond in the latter part of his reign was making large strides toward despotism. Charters, which obstructed his pernicious views, were by a perversion of the law decreed forfeited. The city of London, and most of the corporations in England, either fuffered the execution of these fentences, or tamely furrendered their franchifes to the allgrafping hand of power. It could not be expected that in this general wreck of privileges the colonies of New-England could escape. The people of Massachufetts had long been viewed with a jealous eye. Though the king had repeatedly affured them of his protection, and folemnly

Hutch. col. pap. F- 377lemnly confirmed their charter privileges; yet their fpirit and principles were fo totally diffonant to the corrupt views of the court, that intriguing men found eafy accefs to the royal ear, with complaints against them. Of these the most inveterate and indefatigable was Randolph, who made no lefs than eight voyages in nine years acrofs the Atlantic, on this mifchievous bufinefs. They were accufed of extending their jurifdiction beyond the bounds of their patent; of invading the prerogative by coining money; of not allowing appeals to the king from their courts; and, of obstrusting the execution of the navigation and trade laws. By the king's command agents were fent over to answer to these complaints. They found the prejudice against the colony fo ftrong, that it was in vain to withftand it; and folicited inftructions whether to fubmit to the king's pleafure, or to let the proceedings against them be issued in form of law. A folemn confultation being held, at which the clergy affifted, it was determined " to " die by the hands of others rather than " by their own." Upon notice of this, the agents quitted England; and Randolph, as the angel of death foon followed them, bringing a writ of quo warranto from

Hutch. vol. 1. p. 329.

1683. October.

1685.

Feb. 6.

from the king's bench; but the fcire facias which iffued from the chancery did not arrive till the time fixed for their appearance was elapfed: This however was deemed too trivial an error to ftop the proceedings; judgment was entered againft them, and the charter declared forfeited.

The king died before a new form of government was fettled; but there could be no hope of favour from his fucceffor, who inherited the arbitrary principles of his brother, and was publickly known to be a bigoted papift.

The intended alteration in the government was introduced in the fame gradual manner aș it had been in New-Hampshire. A commission was iffued, in which Joseph Dudley, efquire, was appointed prefident of his majefty's territory and dominion of New-England; William Stoughton deputy prefident; Simon Bradstreet, Robert Mafon, John Fitz Winthrop, John Pynchon, Peter Bulkley, Edward Randolph, Wait Winthrop, Richard Warton, John Usher, Nathaniel Saltonstall, Bartholomew Gedney, Jonathan Tyng, Dudley Bradstreet, John Hinckes, and Edward Tyng, counfellors. Their jurifdiction extended over Maffachufetts, New-Hampshire, Maine and the Narrhaganfet or King's province. These gentlemen men were mostly natives of the country, fome of them had been magistrates, and one of them governor under the charter. No house of deputies was mentioned in the commission.

The new form of government took place on the twenty fifth day of May; and on the tenth of June an order of council was iffued for fettling the county courts, which confifted of fuch members of the council as refided in each county, and any others of them who might be prefent; with fuch juffices as were commissioned for the purpofe. Thefe courts had the power of trying and iffuing all civil caufes, and all criminal matters under life or limb; from them an appeal was allowed to a fuperior court held three times in the year at Bofton, for the whole territory; and from thence appeals, in certain cafes, might be had to the king in council. Juries were pricked by the marshal and one justice of each county, in a lift given them by the felectmen of the towns. A probate court was held at Bofton, by the prefident, and " in " the other provinces and remote counties" by a judge and clerk appointed by the prefident. The territory was divided into four counties, viz. Suffolk, Middlefex, Effex and Hampshire ; and three provinces, viz. New-Hampfhire, Maine, and King's 1686.

1686. Printed orders in the files. King's province. By another order of the fame date, town-taxes could not be affeffed but by allowance of two juffices; and the members of the council were exempted from paying any part thereof.

Things were conducted with tolerable decency, and the innovations were rendered as little grievous as poffible; that the people might be induced more readily to fubmit to the long meditated introduction of a governor-general.

In December following, Sir Edmund Androffe who had been governor of New-York, arrived at Bofton with a commiffion, appointing him captain-general and governor in chief of the territory and dominion of New-England, in which the colony of Plymouth was now included. By this commission, the governor with his council, five of whom were a quorum, were impowered to make fuch laws, impofe fuch taxes, and apply them to fuch purpofes as they fhould think proper. They were also empowered to grant lands on fuch terms, and fubject to fuch quitrents, as fhould be appointed by the king. Invefted with fuch powers, thefe men were capable of the most extravagant actions. Though Androffe, like his mafter, began his administration with the fairest profeffions,

Dec. 30,

MS Copy of the Commiffion. fions, yet like him, he foon violated them, and proved himfelf a fit inftrument for accomplifning the moft execrable defigns. Thofe of his council who were backward in aiding his rapacious intentions were neglected. Seven being fufficient for a full board, he felected fuch only as were devoted to him, and with their concurrence did what he pleafed. Randolph and Mafon were at firft among his confidents; but afterward when New-York was annexed to his government, the members from that quarter were moft in his favour.

To particularize the many inflances of tyranny and oppreffion which the country fuffered from these men, is not within the defign of this work. Let it fuffice to obferve, that the prefs was reftrained ; liberty of confcience infringed; exorbitant fees and taxes demanded, without the voice or confent of the people, who had no privilege of reprefentation. The charter being vacated, it was pretended that all titles to land were annulled; and as to Indian deeds, Androffe declared them no better than "the fcratch of a bear's paw." Landholders were obliged to take out patents for their eftates which they had poffeffed forty or fifty years; for these patents extravagant fees were exacted, and those who would Hutchin, vol. 1, p. 344. Collect. pap. p 564.

1687.

Revolution in N. Frg. justified, p. 21.

234 would not fubmit to this impofition had writs of intrusion brought against them, and their land patented to others. To hinder the people from confulting about the redrefs of their grievances, townmeetings were prohibited, except one in the month of May for the choice of town officers; and to prevent complaints being carried to England, no perfon was permitted to go out of the country without exprefs leave from the governor. But notwithftanding all the vigilance of the governor, his emiffaries and his guards, the refolute and indefatigable Increase Mather, minister of the second church in Boston, and prefident of the college, got on board a fhip and failed for England, with complaints in the name of the people against the governor, which he delivered with his own hand to the king; but finding no hope of redrefs, he waited the event of the revolution which was then expected.

I. Mather's life, p.107.

Revolution justified, p. 29, 40. When the people groaned under fo many real grievances, it is no wonder that their fears and jealoufies fuggefted fome that were imaginary. They believed Androffe to be a papift; that he had hired the Indians, and fupplied them with ammunition to defiroy their frontier fettlements; and that he was preparing to betray the country country into the hands of the French. At the fame time, the large ftrides that King James the fecond was making toward the eftablishment of popery and despotisin, raifed the most terrible apprehensions; fo that the report of the landing of the Prince of Orange in England was received here with the greatest joy. Androsse was fo alarmed at the news, that he imprifoned the man who brought a copy of the prince's declaration, and published a proclamation commanding all perfons to be in readinefs to oppofe " any invation from Holland," which met with as much difregard as one he had iffued before, appointing a day of thankfgiving for the birth of a Prince of Wales.

The people had now borne thefe innovations and impositions for about three years: Their patience was worn out, and their native love of freedom kindled at the prospect of deliverance. The news of a complete revolution in England had not reached them; yet fo fanguine were their expectations, fo eager were they to prove that they were animated by the fame spirit with their brethren at home, that upon the rumour of an intended massace in the town of Boston by the governor's guards, they were wrought up to a degree of fury. On 1683.

1689.

235

On the morning of the eighteenth of April the town was in arms, and the country flocking in to their affiftance. The governor, and thofe who had fled with him to the fort, were feized and committed to prifon. The gentlemen who had been magiftrates under the charter, with Bradftreet, the late governor, at their head, affumed the name of a council of fafety, and kept up a form of government, in the exigency of affairs, till orders arrived from England; when Androffe and his accomplices were fent home as prifoners of flate, to be difpofed of according to the king's pleafure.

The people of New-Hampshire had their fhare of fufferings under this rapacious administration; and Mason himself did not escape. Having attended the hearing of Vaughan's appeal to the king which was decided in Mafon's favour; the judgment obtained here, being affirmed; and having now the fairest prospect of realizing his claim, he returned hither in the fpring of 1687, but found his views obftructed in a manner which he little expected. The government was in the hands of a fet of hungry harpies, who looked with envy on the large fhare of territory which Mafon claimed, and were for parceling

Nov. 6. 1686.

Hutchin. collect. pa. p. 564.

2'

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

celing it out among themfelves. The new judges delayed iffuing executions on the judgments which he had formerly recovered, and the attorney-general, Graham, would not allow that he had power to grant lands by leafes. This confirmed the people in their opinion of the invalidity of his claim, and rendered them (if poffible) more averse from him than ever they had been. At length, however, he obtained from Dudley the chief justice, a writ of certiorari, directed to the late judges of New-Hampshire, by which his caufes were to be removed to the fupreme court of the whole territory, then held at Bofton; but before this could be done, death put an end to his hopes and relieved the people for a time of their fears. Being one of Sir Edmund's council, and attending him on a journey from New-York to Albany; he died at Esopus, in the fifty ninth year of his age; leaving two fons, John and Robert, the heirs of his claim and controverfy.

The revolution at Bofton, though extremely pleafing to the people of New-Hampfhire, left them in an unfettled flate. They waited the arrival of orders from England; but none arriving, and the people's minds being uneafy, it was propofed by ²37 1689.

MS in Sup. Court files.

July 13, 1683.

Aug. or Sept. 1688. Hutchin. vol. 1. p. 365. Collect. papers, p. 556.

HISTORY OF

1690. January. Maffa.Rec. Portímou. Dover and Exeter Records.

March 12,

by fome of the principal gentlemen, that a convention of deputies from each of the towns fhould confider what was beft to be done. The convention-parliament in England was a fufficient precedent to authorize this proceeding. Deputies were accordingly chosen* and instructed to refolve upon fome method of government. At their first meeting they came to no conclusion; but afterward they thought it beft to return to their ancient union with Maffachufetts. A petition for this purpofe being prefented, they were readily admitted; till the king's pleafure fhould be known and members were fent to the general court which met there in this and the two following years. The gentlemen who had formerly been in commission for the peace, the militia and the civil offices, were by town votes, approved by the general court, reftored to their places, and ancient

* The members of this convention were,

For Portfinouth. Major William Vaughan, Richard Waldron, Nathaniel Fryer, Robert Eliot, Thomas Cobbett, Capt. John Pickering, For Dover. Capt. John Woodman, Capt. John Gerrifh, John Tuttle, John Roberts, Thomas Edgerly, Nicholas Follet. For Exeter. Robert Walley, William More, Samuel Leavitt. [Potfm. Dover and Exeter Records.]

It does not appear from Hampton records whether they joined in this convention, or returned immediately to the government of Maffachufetts.

238

ancient laws and cuftoms continued to be obferved.

Had the inclination of the people been confulted, they would gladly have been annexed to that government. This was well known to Mather and the other agents, who when foliciting for a new charter, earneftly requested that New-Hampshire might be included in it. But it was anfwered that the people had expressed an averfion from it and defired to be under a distinct government. This could be founded only on the reports which had been made by the commissioners in 1665, and by Randolph in his narrative. The true reafon for denying the request was; that Mafon's two heirs had fold their title to the lands in New-Hampshire to Samuel Allen of London, merchant; for feven hundred and fifty pounds, the entail having been previoufly docked by a fine and recovery in the court of king's bench; and · Allen was now foliciting a recognition of his title from the crown, and a commission for the government of the province. When the inhabitants were informed of what was doing, they again affembled by deputies in convention, and fent over a petition to the king, praying that they might be annexed to Maflachufetts. The petition was 239 1690. ~~ 1691. ~~

I Mather's Life, pag. 136.

Hutchin. vol. 1. p. 412.

April 27.

MS in Sup. Court files. 1691. Hutchin. vol. 2. p.6.

1692. March I. was prefented by Sir Henry Ashurst, and they were amufed with fome equivocal promifes of fuccefs by the earl of Nottingham; but Allen's importunity co-inciding with the king's inclination, effectually frustrated their attempt. The claim which Allen had to the lands from Naumkeag to three miles northward of Merrimack, was noticed in the Maffachufetts charter: and he obtained a commission for the government of New-Hampshire, in which his fon in law John Usher, then in London, was appointed lieutenant governor, with power to execute the commission in Allen's abience. The counfellors named in the governor's inftructions were John Usher lieutenant governor, John Hinckes, Nathaniel Fryer, Thomas Gratfort, Peter Coffin, Henry Green, Robert Eliot, John Gerrish, John Walford and John Love. The governor was inftructed to fend to the fecretary of state the names of fix other perfons fuitable for counfellors. Three were a quorum, but the inftructions were that nothing fhould be done unlefs five were prefent except in extraordinary emergencies. Major Vaughan, Nathaniel Weare and Richard Waldron, were afterward added to the number.

M8 copy of Com. &c. Council minutes.

The

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

The council was composed of men who, in general, had the confidence of the people; but Ufher was very difagreeable, not only as he had an interest in Allen's claim to the lands, but as he had been one of Sir Edmund Androsse's adherents, and an active instrument in the late oppressive government. He arrived with the commisfion and took upon him the command, on the thirteenth day of August. The people again submitted, with extreme reluctance, to the unavoidable necessity of being under a government distinct from Massace.

The year 1692 was remarkable for a great mortality in Portfmouth and Greenland by the finall pox. The infection was brought in bags of cotton from the Weft Indies, and there being but few people who were acquainted with it, the patients fuffered greatly, and but few recovered. Council minutes,

MS Letter.

CHAP.

241

HISTORY OF

C H A P. X.

The war with the French and Indians, commonly called King William's war.

T was the misfortune of this country to have enemies of different kinds to contend with at the fame time. While the changes above related were taking place in their government, a fresh war broke out on their frontiers, which, though afcribed to divers causes, was really kindled by the rashness of the same perfors who were making havock of their liberties.

The lands from Penoblcot to Nova-Scotia had been ceded to the French, by the treaty of Breda, in exchange for the illand of St. Chriftopher. On these lands the Baron de St. Castine had for many years refided, and carried on a large trade with the Indians; with whom he was intimately connected; having feveral of their women, beside a daughter of the fachem Madokawando, for his wives. The lands which had been granted by the crown of England to the duke of York (now King James the fecond) interfered with Caffine's plantation, as the duke claimed to the river St. Croix. A fort had been built by his his order at Pemaquid, and a garrifon ftationed there to prevent any intrufion on his property. In 1686 a fhip belonging to Pafcataqua landed fome wines at Penobfcot, fuppofing it to be within the French territory. Palmer and Weft, the duke's agents at Pemaquid, went and feized the wines; but by the influence of the French ambaffador in England an order was obtained for the reftoration of them. Hereupon a new line was run which took Caftine's plantation into the duke's territory. In the fpring of 1688, Androffe went in the Rofe frigate, and plundered Caftine's houfe and fort; leaving only the ornaments of his chapel to confole him for the lofs of his arms and goods. This bafe action provoked Castine to excite the Indidians to a new war, pretences for which were not wanting on their part. They complained that the tribute of corn which had been promifed by the treaty of 1678, had been withheld; that the fishery of the river Saco had been obstructed by feines; that their flanding corn had been devoured by cattle belonging to the English; that their lands at Pemaquid had been patented without their confent; and that they had been fraudulently dealt with in trade. Some of these complaints were doubtless well'

Hutchin. coll. pap. p. 548.

1688. \sim

Hutchin. coll. pap. p. 562.

R 2

244

well grounded; but none of them were ever enquired into or redreffed.

They began to make reprifals at North Yarmouth by killing cattle. Juffice Blackman ordered fixteen of them to be feized and kept under guard at Falmouth; but others continued to rob and captivate the inhabitants. Androffe, who pretended to treat the Indians with mildnefs, commanded those whom Blackman had feized to be fet at liberty. But this mildnefs had not the defired effect; the Indians kept their prifoners, and murdered fome of them in their barbarous frolicks. Androffe then changed his meafures, and thought to frighten them, with an army of feven hundred men, which he led into their country in the month of November. The rigor of the feafon proved fatal to fome of his men; but he never faw an Indian in his whole march. The enemy were quiet during the winter.

1689.

Hutchinfon, Neal, and Mather. After the revolution, the gentlemen who affumed the government took fome precautions to prevent the renewal of hoftilities. They fent meffengers and prefents to feveral tribes of Indians, who anfwered them with fair promifes; but their prejudice against the English was too inveterate to be allayed by fuch means as thefe. Thirteen

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

Thirteen years had almost elapsed fince the feizure of the four hundred Indians, at Cochecho, by Major Waldron; during all which time, an inextinguishable thirst of revenge had been cherifhed among them, which never till now found opportunity for gratification*. Wonolanfet, one of the fachems of Penacook, who was difmiffed with his people at the time of the feizure, always obferved his father's dying charge not to quarrel with the English; but Hagkins, another fachem, who had been treated with neglect by Cranfield, was more ready to liften to the feducing invitations of Caffine's emiflaries. Some of those Indians, who were then feized and fold into flavery abroad, had found their way home, and could not reft till they had revenge. Accordingly a confederacy being formed between the tribes of Penacook and Pigwacket, and the ftrange Indians (as they were called) who were incorporated with them, it was determined to furprife the major and his neighbours, among whom they had all this time been peaceably converfant. In

* The inveteracy of their hatred to Major Waldron on account of that transaction, appears from what is related by Mr. Williams in the narrative of his captivity, which happened in 1704. When he was in Canada, a jefuit difcourfing with him on the caufes of their wars with New-England, "jufified the Indians in what they did "againft us; rehearfing fome things done by Major Waldron 'above 30 years ago, and how juftly God retaliated them.' pa. 18.

246

In that part of the town of Dover which lies about the first falls in the river Cochecho, were five garrifoned houfes; three on the North fide, viz. Waldron's, Otis's and Heard's; and two on the fouth fide, viz. Peter Coffin's and his fon's. Thefe houses were furrounded with timber-walls, the gates of which, as well as the house doors, were fecured with bolts and bars. The neighbouring families retired to these houfes by night; but by an unaccountable negligence, no watch was kept. The Indians who were daily paffing through the town visiting and trading with the inhabitants, as usual in time of peace, viewed their fituation with an attentive eye. Some hints of a mischievous defign had been given out by their fquaws; but in fuch dark and ambiguous terms that no one could comprehend their meaning. Some of the people were uneafy; but Waldron who, from a long courfe of experience, was intimately acquainted with the Indians, and on other occafions had been ready enough to fuspect them, was now fo thoroughly fecure, that when fome of the people hinted their fears to him, he merrily bad them to go and plant their pumpkins, faying that he would tell them when the Indians would break out. The very evening ing before the mifchief was done, being told by a young man that the town was full of Indians and the people were much concerned; he anfwered that he knew the Indians very well and there was no danger.

The plan which the Indians had preconcerted was, that two fquaws fhould go to each of the garrifoned houfes in the evening, and afk leave to lodge by the fire; that in the night when the people were afleep they fhould open the doors and gates, and give the fignal by a whiftle; upon which the firange Indians, who were to be within hearing, fhould rufh in, and take their long meditated revenge. This plan being ripe for execution, on the evening of Thursday the twenty seventh of June, two fquaws applied to each of the garrifons for lodging, as they frequently did in time of peace. They were admitted into all but the younger Coffin's, and the people, at their request, shewed them how to open the doors, in cafe they should have occasion to goout in the night. Mefandowit, one of their chiefs, went to Waldron's garrifon, and was kindly entertained, as he had often been before. The fquaws told the major, that a number of Indians were coming to trade with him the next day, and Mefandowit while at fupper, fupper, with his ufual familiarity, faid, ⁶ Brother Waldron, what would you do if ⁶ the ftrange Indians fhould come ?' The major carelefsly anfwered, that he could affemble an hundred men, by lifting up his finger. In this unfufpecting confidence the family retired to reft.

When all was quiet, the gates were opened and the fignal given. The Indians entered, fet a guard at the door, and rufhed into the major's apartment, which was an inner room. Awakened by the noife, he jumped out of bed, and though now advanced in life to the age of eighty years, he retained fo much vigour as to drive them with his fword, through two or three doors; but as he was returning for his other arms, they came behind him, ftunned him with an hatchet, drew him into his hall, and feating him in an elbow chair on a long table infultingly afked him, "Who fhall judge Indians now ?" They then obliged the people in the houfe to get them fome victuals; and when they had done eating, they cut the major acrofs the breaft and belly with knives, each one with a ftroke, faying, " I crofs out my ac-" count." They then cut off his nofe and ears, forcing them into his mouth; and when fpent with the lofs of blood, he was falling falling down from the table, one of them held his own fword under him, which put an end to his mifery. They also killed his fon in law Abraham Lee; but took his daughter Lee with feveral others, and having pillaged the house, left it on fire. Otis's garrifon, which was next to the major's, met with the fame fate; he was killed, with feveral others, and his wife and child were captivated. Heard's was faved by the barking of a dog just as the Indians were entering: Elder Wentworth, who was awakened by the noife pushed them out, and falling on his back, fet his feet against the gate and held it till he had alarmed the people; two balls were fired through it, but both miffed him. Coffin's house was surprized, but as the Indians had no particular enmity to him, they fpared his life, and the lives of his family, and contented themfelves with pillaging the houfe. Finding a bag of money, they made him throw it by handfuls on the floor, while they amufed themfelves in fcrambling for it. They then went to the house of his fon who would not admit the fquaws in the evening, and fummoned him to furrender, promifing him quarter : He declined their offer and determined to defend his houfe, till they brought out his father father and threatened to kill him before his eyes: Filial affection then overcame his refolution, and he furrendered. They put both families together into a deferted houfe, intending to referve them for prifoners; but while the Indians were bufy in plundering, they all efcaped.

249

Twenty three people were killed in this furprifal, and twenty nine were captivated; five or fix houfes, with the mills, were burned; and fo expeditious were the Indians in the execution of their plot, that before the people could be collected from the other parts of the town to oppofe them, they fled with their prifoners and booty. As they paffed by Heard's garrifon in their retreat, they fired upon it; but the people being prepared and refolved to defend it, and the enemy being in hafte, it was preferved. The prefervation of its owner was more remarkable.

Elizabeth Heard, with her three fons and a daughter, and fome others, were returning in the night from Portfmouth. They paffed up the river in their boat unperceived by the Indians, who were then in poffeffion of the houfes; but fufpecting danger by the noife which they heard, after they had landed they betook themfelves to Waldron's garrifon, where they they faw lights, which they imagined were fet up for direction to those who might be feeking a refuge. They knocked and begged earneftly for admiffion; but no anfwer being given, a young man of the company climbed up the wall, and faw, to his inexpreffible furprize, an Indian standing in the door of the house, with his gun. The woman was fo overcome with the fright that fhe was unable to fly; but begged her children to fhift for themfelves; and they with heavy hearts, left her. When she had a little recovered fhe crawled into fome bufhes, and lay there till day-light. She then perceived an Indian coming toward her with a piftol in his hand; he looked at her and went away: returning, he looked at her again; and fhe afked him what he would have; he made no anfwer, but ran yelling to the house, and she faw him no more. She kept her place till the houfe was burned, and the Indians were gone; and then returning home, found her own house fafe. Her prefervation in thefe dangerous circumstances was the more remarkable, if (as it is fuppofed) it was an inftance of juffice and gratitude in the Indians. For at the time when the four hundred were feized in 1676, a young Indian escaped and

250

251

and took refuge in her houfe, where fhe concealed him; in return for which kindnefs he promifed her that he would never kill her, nor any of her family in any future war, and that he would ufe his influence with the other Indians to the fame purpofe. This Indian was one of the party who furprized the place, and fhe was well known to the most of them.

The fame day, after the mifchief was done, a letter from Secretary Addington, written by order of the government, directed to Major Waldron, giving him notice of the intention of the Indians to furprize him under pretence of trade, fell into the hands of his fon. This defign was communicated to Governor Bradftreet by Major Henchman of Chelmsford, who had learned it of the Indians. The letter was difpatched from Bofton, the day before, by Mr. Weare; but fome delay which he met with at Newbury ferry prevented its arrival in feafon.

The prifoners taken at this time were moftly carried to Canada, and fold to the French; and thefe, fo far as I can learn, were the first that ever were carried thither*. The

* One of thefe prifoners was Sarah Gerrifh, a remarkably fine child of feven years old, and grand-daughter of Major Waldron, in whofe house the lodged that fatal night. Some circumstances the attending Maff. Rec.

Original Letter.

The Indians had been feduced to the 1689. French interest by popish emissaries, who had attending her captivity are truly affecting. When the was awakened by the noife of the Indians in the houfe, flic crept into another bed and hid herfelf under the clothes to efcape their fearch. She remained in their hands till the next winter, and was fold from one to another feveral times. An Indian girl once pushed her into a river; but, catching by the bufhes, the efcaped drowning, yet durft not tell how the came to be wet. Once the was fo weary with travelling that fhe did not awake in the morning till the Indians were gone, and then found heifelf alone in the woods, covered with fnow, and without any food ; having found their tracks the went crying after them till they heard her and took her with them. At another time they kindled a great fire, and the young Indians told her fhe was to be roafted. She burft into tears, threw her arms round her mafter's neck, and begged him to fave her, which he promifed to do if the would behave well. Being arrived in Canada, the was bought by the Intendant's lady, who treated her courtcoufly, and fent her to a nunnery for education. But when Sir William Phips was at Quebec fhe was exchanged, and returned to her friends, with whom the lived till the was fixteen years old.

The wife of Richard Otis was taken at the fame time, with an infant daughter of three months old. The French prichs took this child under their care, baptized her by the name of Christina, and educated her in the Romifh religion. She paffed fome time in a nunnery, but declined taking the veil, and was married to a Frenchman, by whom the had two children. But her defire to fee New-England was fo ftrong, that upon an exchange of prifoners in 1714, being then a widow, the left both her children, who were not permitted to come with her, and returned home, where the abjured the Romifh faith. M. Siguenot, her former confessor, wrote her a flattering letter, warning her of her danger, inviting her to return to the bofom of the catholic church, and repeating many grofs calumnies which had formerly been vented againft Luther and the other reformers. This letter being shewn to Governor Burnet, he wrote her a fensible and mafterly anfwer, refuting the arguments, and detecting the falfehoods it contained : Both thefe letters were printed. She was married afterward to Capt. Thomas Baker, who had been taken at Deerfield in 1704, and lived in Dover, where the was born, till the year 1773.

Mr. John Emerfon, by declining to lodge at Major Waldron's on the fatal night, though flrongly urged, met with an happy efcape. He was afterward a minifter at New-Cafile and Portfmouth.

$7 Some of the circumflances relating to the defination of Cochecho are taken from Mather's Magnalia. The others from the tradition of the fufferers and their defeendants.

254

had began to fafcinate them with their religious and national prejudices. They had now learned to call the English hereticks, and that to extirpate them as such was meritorious in the fight of heaven. When their minds were filled with religious phrenzy, they became more bitter and implacable enemies than before; and finding the fale of scalps and prisoners turn to good account in Canada, they had still farther incitement to continue their depredations, and prosecute their vengeance.

The neceffity of vigorous meafures was now fo preffing, that parties were immediately difpatched, one under Captain Noyes to Penacook, where they deftroyed the corn, but the Indians efcaped; another from Pafcataqua, under Captain Wincal, to Winnipifeogee, whither the Indians had retired, as John Church, who had been taken at Cochecho and efcaped from them, reported: One or two Indians were killed there, and their corn cut down. But thefe excursions proved of fmall fervice, as the Indians had little to lofe, and could find an home wherever they could find game and fifh.

In the month of August Major Swaine, with feven or eight companies raifed by the Massachusetts government, marched to the eaftward; and Major Church, with another party, confifting of English and Indians, from the colony of Plymouth, foon followed them. While these forces were on their march, the Indians, who lay in the woods about Oyster river, observed how many men belonged to Hucking's garrifon; and feeing them all go out one morning to work, nimbly ran between them and the houfe, and killed them all (being in number eighteen) except one who had paffed the brook. They then attacked the houfe, in which were only two boys (one of whom was lame) with fome women and children. The boys kept them off for fome time and wounded feveral of them. At length the Indians fet the houfe on fire, and even then the boys would not furrender till they had promifed them to spare their lives. They perfidioully murdered three or four of the children; one of them was fet on a sharp stake, in the view of its distressed mother, who with the other women and the boys were carried captive. One of the boys escaped the next day. Captain Garner with his company purfued the enemy, but did not come up with them.

to

The Maffachufetts and Plymouth companies proceeded to the eaftward, fettled garrifons 1689.

Magnalia,

lib. 7. p.

67.

256

garrifons in convenient places, and had fome fkirmishes with the enemy at Casco and Blue Point. On their return, Major Swaine fent a party of the Indian auxiliaries under Lieutenant Flagg toward Winnipifeogee to make discoveries. These Indians held a confultation in their own language; and having perfuaded their lieutenant with two men to return, nineteen of them tarried out eleven days longer; in which time they found the enemy, flaid with them two nights, and informed them of everything which they defired to know; upon which the enemy retired to their inacceffible deferts, and the forces returned without finding them, and in November were difbanded.

Nothing was more welcome to the diftreffed inhabitants of the frontiers than the approach of winter, as they then expected a refpite from their fufferings. The deep fnows and cold weather were commonly a good fecurity against an attack from the Indians; but when resolutely fet on mischief, and instigated by popish enthusias, no obstacles could prevent the execution of their purposes.

1690. ~~ The Count de Frontenac, now governor of Canada, was fond of diftinguishing himself by some enterprizes against the American

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

257

1690.

American fubjects of King William, with whom his mafter was at war in Europe. For this purpose he detached three parties of French and Indians from Canada in the winter, who were to take three different routes into the English territories. One of thefe parties marched from Montreal and deftroyed Schenectada, a Dutch village on the Mohawk river, in the province of New-York. This action which happened at an unufual time of the year, in the month of February, alarmed the whole country; and the eastern fettlements were ordered to be on their guard. On the eighteenth day of March, another party which came from Trois Rivieres, under the command of the Sieur Hertel, an officer of great repute in Canada, found their way to Salmon falls, a fettlement on the river which divides New-Hampshire from the province of Maine. This party confifted of fifty two men, of whom twenty five were Indians under Hoophood a noted warrior. They began the attack at day-break, in three different places. The people were furprized; but flew to arms and defended themfelves in the garrifoned houfes, with a bravery which the enemy themfelves applauded. But as in all fuch onfets the affailants have the greateft advantage, fo S they they here proved too ftrong for the defendants; about thirty of the bravest were killed, and the reft furrendered at difcretion, to the number of fifty four, of whom the greater part were women and children. After plundering, the enemy burned the houses, mills and barns, with the cattle* which were within doors, and then retreated into the woods, whither they were purfued by about one hundred and forty men, fuddenly collected from the neighbouring towns, who came up with them in the afternoon at a narrow bridge on Woofter's river. Hertel expecting a purfuit, had posted his men advantageously on the oppofite bank. The purfuers advanced with great intrepidity, and a warm engagement enfued, which lasted till night, when they retired with the lofs of four or five killed; the enemy by their own account loft two, one of whom was Hertel's nephew; his fon was wounded in the knee; another Frenchman was taken prifoner, who was fo tenderly treated that he embraced the protestant faith, and remained in the country. Hertel on his way homeward met with a third party who had marched

* Charlevoix fays they burned "twenty feven houfes and two thoufand head of cattle in the barns." The number of buildings, including mills, barns and other outhoufes, might amount to near twenty; but the number of cattle as he gives it, is incredible.

Charlevoix liv. 7. p. 74.

Magnalia, lib. 7. p.68. marched from Quebec, and joining his company to them attacked and deftroyed the fort and fettlement at Cafco, the next May. Thus the three expeditions planned by Count Frontenac proved fuccefsful; but the glory of them was much tarnifhed by acts of cruelty, which chriftians fhould be afhamed to countenance, though perpetrated by favages^{*}.

• The following inflances of cruelty exercised towards the prifoners taken at Salmon falls are mentioned by Dr. Mather.

Robert Rogers, a corpulent man, being unable to carry the burden which the Indians imposed upon him, threwit in the path and went afide in the woods to conceal himfelf. They found him by his track, flripped, beat and pricked him with their fwords y then tied him to a tree and danced round him till they had kindled a fire. They gave him time to pray, and take leave of his fellowprifoners who were placed round the fire to fee his death. They puthed the fire toward him, and when he was almost flifted, took it away to give him time to breathe, and thus prolong his mifery ; they drowned his dying groans with their hideous finging and yelling'; all the while dancing round the fire, cutting off pieces of his fielh and throwing them in his face. When he was dead they left his body broiling on the coals, in which flate it was found by his friends, and buried.

Mehetabel Goodwin was taken with a child of five months old. When it cried they threatened to kill it, which made the mother go afide and fit for hours together in the fnow to lull it to fleep; her mafter feeing that this lindered her from travelling, took the child, ftruck its head againft a tree, and hung it on one of the branches; the would have buried it but he would not let her, telling her that if the came again that way the might have the pleafure of feeing it. She was carried to Canada, and after five years returned home.

Mary Plaifted was taken out of her bed, having lain in but three weeks. They made her travel with them through the fnow, and " to eafe her of her burden," as they faid, ftruck the child's head against a tree, and threw it into a river.

An anecdote of another kind may relieve the reader after these tragical accounts. Thomas Toogood was purfued by three Indians and overtaken by one of them, who having enquired his name,

HISTORY OF

ern fettlements were all deferted, and the

After the destruction of Cafco the east-1690.

people retired to the fort at Wells. The Indians then came up weftward, and a party of them under Hoophood fometime in May made an affault on Fox Point, [in Newington] where they burned feveral houfes, killed about fourteen people, and carried away fix. They were purfued by the Captains Floyd and Greenleaf, who came up with them and recovered fome of the captives and fpoil, after a fkirmish in which Hoophood was wounded and loft his gun. This fellow was foon after killed by a party of Canada Indians who mistook him for one of the Iroquois, with whom they were at war. On the fourth day of July eight perfons were killed as they were mowing in a field near Lamprey river, and a lad was carried captive. The next day they attacked Captain Hilton's garrifon at Exeter, which was relieved by Lieutenant Bancroft with the lofs of a few of his men; one of them, Simon Stone, was preparing firings to bind him, holding his gun under his arm, which Toogood feized and went backward, keeping the gun precented at him, and protefling that he would fhoot him if he alarmid the others who had flopped on the oppofite fide of the hill. By this dexterity he efcaped and got fafe into Cocheeho; while his adverfary had no recompence in his power but to call after him by the name of No good. When he returned to his companions without gun or prifoner, their derifion made his mifadventure the more grievous.

Mag. lib.7. p. 73,

260

Stone, received nine wounds with fact, and two flokes of a hatchet; when his friends came to bury him they perceived life in him, and by the application of cordials he revived, to the amazement of all.

Two companies under the Captains Floyd and Wifwal were now fcouting, and on the fixth day of July difcovered an Indian track, which they purfued till they came up with the enemy at Whelewright's Pond, [in Lee] where a bloody engagement enfued for fome hours; in which Wifwal, his lieutenant, Flagg, and ferjeant Walker, with twelve more, were killed, and feveral wounded. It was not known how many of the enemy fell, as they always carried off their dead. Floyd maintained the fight after Wifwal's death, till his men, fatigued and wounded, drew off; which obliged him to follow. The enemy retreated at the fame time; for when Captain Convers went to look after the wounded, he found feven alive, whom he brought in by funrife the next morning, and then returned to bury the dead. The enemy then went weftward, and in the courfe of one week killed, between Lamprey river and Almfbury, not lefs than forty people.

Mag. lib. 7. P. 74.

The

HISTORY OF 1690.

262

The cruelties exercifed upon the captives in this war exceeded, both in number and degree, any in former times. The most healthy and vigorous of them were fold in Canada, the weaker were facrificed and fcalped; and for every fcalp they had a premium. Two inftances only are remembered of their releafing any without a ranfom; one was a woman taken from Fox Point, who obtained her liberty by procuring them fome of the neceffaries of life; the other was at York; where, after they had taken many of the people, they reftored two aged women and five children, in return for a generous action of Major Church, who had fpared the lives of as many women and children when they fell into his hands at Amarifcogin.

MS Letter.

Mag. 73.

The people of New-England now looked on Canada as the fource of their troubles, and formed a defign to reduce it to fubjection to the crown of England. The enterprize was bold and hazardous; and had their ability been equal to the ardour of their patriotifm, it might probably have been accomplifhed. Straining every nerve, they equipped an armament in fome degree equal to the fervice. What was wanting in military and naval difcipline was made up in refolution; and the command was given to Sir William Phips, an honeft man, and a friend to his country; but by no means qualified for fuch an enterprife. Unavoidable accidents retarded the expedition, fo that the fleet did not arrive before Quebec till October; when it was more than time to return. It being impoffible to continue there to any purpole; and the troops growing fickly and difcouraged, after fome ineffectual parade, they abandoned the enterprize.

to

This difappointment was feverely felt. The equipment of the fleet and army required a fupply of money which could not readily be collected, and occafioned a paper currency; which had often been drawn into precedent on like occafions, and has proved a fatal fource of the most complicated and extensive mischief. The people were almost dispirited with the profpect of poverty and ruin. In this melancholy flate of the country, it was an happy circumftance that the Indians voluntarily came in with a flag of truce, and de- Nov. 29. fired a ceffation of hostilities. A conference being held at Sagadahock, they brought in ten captives, and fettled a truce till the first day of May, which they observed till the ninth of June; when they attacked Storer's garrifon at Wells, but were bravely

1691.

1691. Mag. 78.

MS Letter of Morril to Prince.

Fitch'sMS.

1692. Januar. 25. ly repulfed. About the fame time they killed two men at Exeter, and on the twenty ninth of September, a party of them came from the eaftward in canoes to Sandy Beach, [Rye] where they killed and captivated twenty one perfons. Captain Sherburne of Portfmouth, a worthy officer, was this year killed at Macquoit.

The next winter, the country being alarmed with the deftruction of York, fome new regulations were made for the general defence. Major Elisha Hutchinson was appointed commander in chief of the militia; by whofe prudent conduct the frontiers were well guarded, and fo conftant a communication was kept up, by ranging parties, from one post to another, that it became impoffible for the enemy to attack in their ufual way by furprife. The good effect of this regulation was prefently feen. A young man being in the woods near Cochecho, was fired at by fome Indians. Lieutenant Wilfon immediately went out with eighteen men; and finding the Indians, killed or wounded the whole party excepting one. This ftruck a terror, and kept them quiet the remainder of the winter and fpring. But on the tenth day of June, an army of French and Indians made a furious attack on on Storer's garrifon at Wells, where Captain Convers commanded; who after a brave and refolute defence, was fo happy as to drive them off with great lofs.

264

Sir William Phips, being now governor of Maffachufetts, continued the fame method of defence; keeping out continual fcouts under brave and experienced officers. This kept the Indians fo quiet that, except one poor family which they took at Oyfter river, and fome finall mifchief at Quaboag, there is no mention of any deftruction made by them during the year 1603. Their animofity againft New-England was not quelled; but they needed a fpace to recruit; fome of their principal men were in captivity, and they could not hope to redeem them without a peace. To obtain it, they came into the fort at Pemaquid; and there entered into a folemn covenant; wherein they acknowledged fubjection to the crown of England; engaged to abandon the French intereft; promifed perpetual peace; to forbear private revenge; to reftore all captives; and even went fo far as to deliver hoftages for the due performance of their engagements. This peace, or rather truce, gave both fides a refpite, which both earneftly defired.

The people of New-Hampshire were much reduced; their lumber trade and husbandry 1693.

Aug. II.

Mag.p.85.

hufbandry being greatly impeded by the war. Frequent complaints were made of the burden of the war, the fcarcity of provisions, and the dispiritedness of the people. Once it is faid in the council minutes that they were even ready to quit the province. The governor was obliged to imprefs men to guard the outpofts; they were fometimes difmiffed for want of provisions, and then the garrifon officers called to account and feverely punished: Yet all this time the public debt did not exceed four hundred pounds. In this fituation they were obliged to apply to their neighbours for affistance; but this was granted with a fparing hand. The people of Maffachufetts were much divided and at variance among themfelves, both on account of the new charter which they had received from King William, and the pretended witchcrafts which have made fo loud a noife in the world. Party and paffion had usurped the place of patriotifm; and the defence, not only of their neighbours, but of themfelves was neglected to gratify their malignant humours. Their governor too had been affronted in this province, on the following occafion.

Sir William Phips, having had a quarrel with Captain Short of the Nonfuch frigate gate about the extent of his power as vice admiral, arrefted Short at Bofton, and put him on board a merchant ship bound for England, commanded by one Tay, with a warrant to deliver him to the fecretary of state. The ship put into Pascataqua, and the Nonfuch came in after her. The lieutenant, Cary, fent a letter to Hinckes, prefident of the council threatening to impress seamen if Short was not released. Cary was arrefted and brought before the council, where he received a reprimand for his infolence. At the fame time Sir William came hither by land, went on board Tay's fhip, and fent the cabbin-boy with a meffage to the prefident to come to him there; which Hinckes highly refented and refused. Phips then demanded of Tay his former warrant, and isfued another commanding the re-delivery of Short to him, broke open Short's cheft, and feized his papers. This action was looked upon by fome as an exertion of power to which he had no right, and it was propofed to cite him before the council to anfwer for affuming authority out of his jurifdiction. The prefident was warm; but a majority of the council, confidering Sir William's opinion that his vice admiral's commission extended to this province, (though

March 30

1693. ~~ MS in files.

(though Ufher had one, but was not prefent) and that no perion belonging to the province had been injured, advifed the prefident to take no farther notice of the matter. Soon after this Sir William drew off the men whom he had flationed in this province as foldiers; and the council advifed the lieutenant governor to apply to the colony of Connecticut for men and provifions; but whether this requeft was granted does not appear.

The towns of Dover and Exeter being more exposed than Portfmouth or Hampton fuffered the greatest fhare in the common calamity. Nothing but the hope of better times kept alive their fortitude. When many of the eastern fettlements were wholly broken up, they flood their ground, and thus gained to themfelves a reputation which their posterity boast of to this day.

1694.

The engagements made by the Indians in the treaty of Pemaquid, might have been performed if they had been left to their own choice. But the French miffionaries had been for fome years very affiduous in propagating their tenets among them, one of which was ' that to break ' faith with hereticks was no fin.' The Sieur de Villieu, who had diftinguifhed himfelf himfelf in defence of Quebec when Phips was before it, and had contracted a ftrong antipathy to the New-Englanders, being now in command at Penobfcot, he with M. Thury, the miffionary, diverted Madokawando and the other fachems from complying with their engagements; fo that pretences were found for detaining the English captives, who were more in number, and of more confequence than the hoftages whom the Indians had given. Influenced by the fame pernicious councils, they kept a watchful eye on the frontier towns, to fee what place was most fecure and might be attacked to the greateft advantage. The fettlement at Oyfter river, within the town of Dover, was pitched upon as the most likely place; and it is faid that the defign of furprizing it was publickly talked of at Quebec two months before it was put in execution. Rumours of Indians lurking in the woods thereabout made fome of the people apprehend danger; but no mischief being attempted, they imagined them to be hunting parties, and returned to their fecurity. At length, the neceffary preparations being made, Villieu, with a body of two hundred and fifty Indians, collected from the tribes of St. John, Penobfcot and Norridgwog, attended tended by a French prieft, marched for the devoted place.

268

Magnalia, lib. 7.p.86.

Charlevoix liv. 15. p. 210.

270

Oyfter river is a ftream which runs into the western branch of Pascataqua; the fettlements were on both fides of it, and the houfes chiefly near the water. Here were twelve garrifoned houfes fufficient for the defence of the inhabitants. but apprehending no danger, fome families remained at their own unfortified houfes, and those who were in the garrifons were but indifferently provided for defence fome being even deftitute of powder. The enemy approached the place undiscovered, and halted near the falls on Tuefday evening, the feventeenth of July. Here they formed into two divisions, one of which was to go on each fide of the river and plant themfelves in ambufh, in fmall parties, near every houfe, fo as to be ready for the attack at the rifing of the fun; the first gun to be the fignal. John Dean, whofe houfe ftood by the faw-mill at the falls, intending to go from home very early, arofe before the dawn of day, and was shot as he came out of his door. This firing, in part, difconcerted their plan; feveral parties who had fome diffance to go, had not then arrived at their flations; the people in general were immediately alarmed, alarmed, fome of them had time to make their efcape, and others to prepare for their defence. The fignal being given, the attack began in all parts where the enemy was ready.

Of the twelve garrifoned houfes five were destroyed, viz. Adams's, Drew's, Edgerly's, Medar's and Beard's. They entered Adams's without refistance, where they killed fourteen perfons; one of them, being a woman with child, they ripped open. The grave is still to be feen in which they were all buried. Drew furrendered his garrifon on the promife of fecurity, but was murdered when he fell into their hands; one of his children, a boy of nine years old, was made to run through a lane of Indians as a mark for them to throw their hatchets at, till they had difpatched him. Edgerly's was evacuated; the people took to their boat, and one of them was mortally wounded before they got out of reach of the enemy's fhot. Beard's and Medar's were alfo evacuated and the people efcaped.

The defencelefs houfes were nearly all fet on fire, the inhabitants being either killed or taken in them, or elfe in endeavouring to fly to the garrifons. Some efcaped by hiding in the buffles and other fecret fecret places. Thomas Edgerly, by concealing himfelf in his cellar, preferved his house, though twice set on fire. The houfe of John Bufs, the minister, was deftroyed with a valuable library. He was absent, his wife and family fled to the woods and escaped. The wife of John Dean, at whom the first gun was fired was taken with her daughter, and carried about two miles up the river, where they were left under the care of an old Indian while the others returned to their bloody work. The Indian complained of a pain in his head, and afked the woman what would be a proper remedy : fhe anfwered, Occapee, which is the Indian word for rum, of which fhe knew he had taken a bottle from her houfe. The remedy being agreeable, he took a large dofe and fell afleep; and fhe took that opportunity to make her efcape, with her child, into the woods, and kept concealed till they were gone.

The other feven garrifons, viz. Burnham's, Bickford's, Smith's, Bunker's, Davis's, Jones's and Woodman's were refolutely and fuccefsfully defended. At Burnham's the gate was left open: The Indians, ten in number, who were appointed to furprize it, were afleep under the the bank of the river, at the time that the alarm was given. A man within, who had been kept awake by the tooth-ach, hearing the first gun, roufed the people and fecured the gate, just as the Indians who were awakened by the fame noife were entering. Finding themfelves difappointed, they ran to Pitman's, a defencelefs house, and forced the door at the moment that he had burft a way through that end of the house which was next to the garrifon, to which he with his family, taking advantage of the fhade of fome trees, it being moonlight, happily efcaped. Still defeated, they attacked the houfe of John Davis, which after fome refistance he furrendered on terms; but the terms were violated, and the whole family either killed or made captives. Thomas Bickford preferved his houfe in a fingular manner. It was fituated near the river, and furrounded with a palifade. Being alarmed before the enemy had reached the houfe, he fent off his family in a boat, and then shutting his gate, betook himself alone to the defence of his fortrefs. Defpifing alike the promifes and threats by which the Indians would have perfuaded him to furrender, he kept up a conftant fire at them, changing his drefs as often as he could, T could, fhewing himfelf with a different cap, hat or coat, and fometimes without either, and giving directions aloud as if he had had a number of men with him. Finding their attempt vain, the enemy withdrew, and left him fole mafter of the house which he had defended with such admirable addrefs. Smith's, Bunker's, and Davis's garrifons, being feafonably apprized of the danger, were refolutely defended, one Indian was fuppofed to be killed and another wounded by a fhot from Davis's. Jones's garrifon was befet before day; Capt. Jones hearing his dogs bark, and imagining wolves might be near, went out to fecure fome fwine and returned unmolested. He then went up into the flankart and fat on the wall. Difcerning the flash of a gun, he dropped backward; the ball entered the place from whence he had withdrawn his legs. The enemy from behind a rock kept firing on the house for fome time and then guitted it. During thefe tranfactions the French prieft took poffeffion of the meeting-houfe, and employed himfelf in writing on the pulpit with chalk; but the houfe received no damage.

273

274

Those parties of the enemy who were on the fouth fide of the river having completed their deftructive work, collected in a field a field adjoining to Burnham's garrifon, where they infultingly fhewed their prifoners, and derided the people, thinking themfelves out of reach of their flot. A young man from the centry-box fired at one who was making fome indecent figns of defiance, and wounded him in the heel: Him they placed on a horfe and carried away. Both divisions then met at the falls, where they had parted the evening before, and proceeded together to Capt. Woodman's garrifon. The ground being uneven, they approached without danger, and from behind a hill kept up a long and fevere fire at the hats and caps which the people within held up on flicks above the walls, without any other damage than galling the roof of the houfe. At length, apprehending it was time for the people in the neighbouring fettlements to be collected in purfuit of them, they finally withdrew; having killed and captivated between ninety and an hundred perfons, and burned about twenty houses, of which five were garrifons*. The main body of them retreated over Winnipifeogee lake, where they divided their prifoners, feparating those in particular who were most T 2 intimately intimately connected, in which they often took a pleafure fuited to their favage nature[†].

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

* Charlevoix with his ufual parade boafts of their having killed two hundred and thirty people, and burned fifty or fixty houfes. He fpeaks of only two forts, both of which were flormed. 275

About forty of the enemy under Toxus, a Norridgwog chief, refolving on farther mifchief, went weftward and did execution as far as Groton. A finaller party having croffed the river Pafcataqua, came to a farm where Urfula Cutts, widow of the deceafed prefident, refided, who imagining the enemy had done what mifchief they intended for that time, could not be perfuaded to remove into town till her haymaking fhould be finifhed. As fhe was in the field with her labourers, the enemy fired from an ambufh and killed her, with three others. Colonel Richard Waldron † Among these prisoners were Thomas Drew and his wife who were newly married. He was carried to Canada, where he continued two years and was redeemed. She to Norridgwog, and was gone four years, in which the endured every thing but death. She was delivered of a child in the winter, in the open air, and in a violent fnow florm. Being unable to fuckle her child, or provide it any food, the Indians killed it. She lived fourteen days on a decoction of the bark of trees. Once they fet her to draw a fled up a river against a piercing north-west wind, and left her. She was fo overcome with the cold that the grew fleepy, laid down and was nearly dead, when they returned; they carried her fenfelefs to a wigwam, and poured warm water down her throat, which recovered her. After her return to her husband, she had fourteen children; they lived together till he was ninety three and she eighty nine years of age; they died within two days of each other and were buried in one grave.

These particular circumflances of the defiruction at Oyfler river were at my defire collected from the information of aged people by John Smith, Efq. a defeendant of one of the fuffering families.

Magnalia, lib. 7. p. 86. Waldron and his wife with their infant fon (afterward fecretary) had almoft fhared the fame fate; they were taking boat to go and dine with this lady, when they were ftopped by the arrival of fome friends at their houfe; while at dinner they were informed of her death. She lived about two miles above the town of Portfmouth, and had laid out her farm with much elegance. The fcalps taken in this whole expedition were carried to Canada by Madokawando, and prefented to Count Frontenac, from whom he received the reward of his treacherous adventure.

There is no mention of any more mifchief by the Indians within this province till the next year, when, in the month of July, two men were killed at Exeter. The following year, on the feventh day of May, John Church, who had been taken and efcaped from them feven years before, was killed and fcalped at Cochecho, near his own house. On the twenty-fixth of June an attack was made at Portfmouth plain, about two miles from the town. The enemy came from York-nubble to Sandy-beach in canoes, which they hid there among the bufhes near the fhore. Some fufpicion was formed the day before by reafon of the cattle running out of the woods woods at Little-harbour; but falfe alarms were frequent and this was not much regarded. Early in the morning the attack was made on five houfes at once; fourteen perfons were killed on the fpot, one was fcalped and left for dead, but recovered, and four were taken. The enemy having plundered the houfes of what they could carry, fet them on fire, and made a precipitate retreat through the great fwamp. A company of militia under Captain Shackford and Lieutenant Libbey purfued, and difcovered them cooking their breakfast, at a place ever fince called Breakfasthill. The Indians were on the farther fide, having placed their captives between themfelves and the top of the hill, that in cafe of an attack they might first receive the fire. The lieutenant urged to go round the hill, and come upon them below to cut off their retreat; but the captain fearing that in that cafe they would, according to their cuftom, kill the prifoners, ruthed upon them from the top of the hill, by which means they retook the captives and plunder, but the Indians, rolling down the hill, efcaped into the fwamp and got to their canoes. Another party, under another commander, was then fent out in fhallops to intercept them as they fhould crofs crofs over to the eastward by night. The captain ranged his boats in a line, and ordered his men to referve their fire till he gave the watch-word. It being a calm night the Indians were heard as they advanced; but the captain, unhappily giving the word before they had come within gun-fhot, they tacked about to the fouthward, and going round the Isles of Shoals, by the favour of their light canoes efcaped. The watch-word was Crambo, which the captain ever after bore as an appendage to his title*. On the twenty fixth day of July, the people of Dover were waylaid as they were returning from the public worfhip, when three were killed, three wounded, and three carried to Penobfcot, from whence they foon found their way home.

277 1694.

1695.

278

The next year on the tenth of June, the town of Exeter was remarkably preferved from deftruction. A body of the enemy had placed themfelves near the town, intending to make an affault in the morning of the next day. A number of women and children contrary to the advice of their friends went into the fields, without a guard, to gather flrawberries. When they

* The account of this transaction I had from the late Judge Parker, who had taken pains to preferve it. It is mentioned, but not circumstantially, by Dr. Mather. Magnalia, lib. 7. p. 89. Magnalia, lib. 7.p.89.

1697.

they were gone fome perfons, to frighten them, fired an alarm; which quickly fpread through the town, and brought the people together in arms. The Indians fuppofing that they were difcovered, and quickened by fear, after killing one, wounding another, and taking a child, made a hafty retreat and were feen no more there. But on the fourth day of July they waylaid and killed the worthy Major Froft at Kittery, to whom they had owed revenge ever fince the feizure of the four hundred at Cochecho, in which he was concerned.

The fame year an invafion of the country was projected by the French. A fleet was to fail from France to Newfoundland and thence to Penobfcot, where being joined by an army from Canada, an attempt was to be made on Bofton, and the feacoaft ravaged from thence to Pafcataqua. The plan was too extensive and complicated to be executed in one fummer. The fleet came no further than Newfoundland; when the advanced feafon, and fcantinefs of provisions obliged them to give over the defign. The people of New-England were apprized of the danger, and made the best preparations in their power. They ftrengthened their fortifications on the coaft, and raifed a body of men to defend Mag. lib. 7. p. 91. MS Journal. fend the frontiers against the Indians who were expected to cooperate with the French. Some mischief was done by lurking parties at the eastward; but New-Hampshire was unmolessed by them during the remainder of this, and the whole of the following year.

After the peace of Ryfwick, Count Frontenac informed the Indians that he could not any longer fupport them in a war with the English, with whom his nation was now at peace. He therefore advifed them to bury the hatchet and reftore their captives. Having fuffered much by famine, and being divided in their opinions about profecuting the war, after a long time they were brought to a treaty at Cafco; where they ratified their former engagements; acknowledged fubjection to the crown of England; lamented their former perfidy, and promifed future peace and good behaviour in fuch terms as the commiffioners dictated, and with as much fincerity as could be expected. At the fame time they reftored those captives who were able to travel from the places of their detention to Cafco in that unfavourable feason of the year; giving affurance for the return of the others in the fpring ; but many of the younger fort, both males and females.

1698.

Mag. 115.7. p. 94.

1699. Hutchin. vol. 2. p. 110. females, were detained ; who, mingling with the Indians, contributed to a fucceffion of enemies in future wars against their own country.

A general view of an Indian war will give a just idea of these distressing times, and be a proper close to this narration.

The Indians were feldom or never feen before they did execution. They appeared not in the open field, nor gave proofs of a truly mafculine courage; but did their exploits by furprize, chiefly in the morning, keeping themfelves hid behind logs and bushes, near the paths in the woods, or the fences contiguous to the doors of houfes; and their lurking holes could be known only by the report of their guns, which was indeed but feeble, as they were fparing of ammunition, and as near as poffible to their object before they fired. They rarely affaulted an houfe unlefs they knew there would be but little refiftance, and it has been afterward known that they have lain in ambush for days together, watching the motions of the people at their work, without daring to difcover. themfelves. One of their chiefs who had got a woman's riding-hood among his plunder would put it on, in an evening, and walk into the ftreets of Portfmouth, looking looking into the windows of houfes and liftening to the conversation of the people.

Their cruelty was chiefly exercifed upon children, and fuch aged, infirm, or corpulent perfons as could not bear the hardfhips of a journey through the wildernefs. If they took a woman far advanced in pregnancy their knives were plunged into her bowels. An infant when it became troublefome had its brains dashed out against the next tree or stone. Sometimes to torment the wretched mother, they would whip and beat the child till almost dead, or hold it under water till its breath was just gone, and then throw it to her to. comfort and quiet it. If the mother could not readily still its weeping, the hatchet was buried in its fkull. A captive wearied with his burden laid on his fhoulders was often fent to reft the fame way. If any one proved refractory, or was known to have been inftrumental of the death of an Indian, or related to one who had been fo, he was tortured with a lingering punishment, generally at the ftake, while the other captives were infulted with the fight of his miseries. Sometimes a fire would be kindled and a threatening given out against one or more, though there was no intention of facrificing them, only to make iport fport of their terrors. The young Indians often fignalized their cruelty in treating captives inhumanly out of fight of the elder, and when inquiry was made into the matter, the infulted captive muft either be filent or put the beft face on it, to prevent worfe treatment for the future. If a captive appeared fad and dejected he was fure to meet with infult; but if he could fing and dance and laugh with his mafters, he was careffed as a brother. They had a ftrong averfion to Negroes, and generally killed them when they fell into their hands.

Famine was a common attendant on these doleful captivities; the Indians when they caught any game devoured it all at one fitting, and then girding themfelves round the waift, travelled without fuftenance till chance threw more in their way. The captives, unuled to fuch canine repafts and abstinences, could not support the furfeit of the one nor the craving of the other. A change of masters, though it fometimes proved a relief from mifery, vet rendered the profpect of a return to their home more diftant. If an Indian had loft a relative, a prifoner bought for a gun, a hatchet, or a few skins, must supply the place of the deceased, and be the father brother, or fon of the purchaser; and those who who could accommodate them felves to fuch barbarous adoption, were treated with the fame kindnefs as the perfons in whofe place they were fubftituted. A fale among the French of Canada was the most happy event to a captive, especially if he became a fervant in a family; though fometimes even there a prifon was their lot, till opportunity prefented for their redemption; while the priefts employed every feducing art to pervert them to the popifh religion, and induce them to abandon their country. These circumstances, joined with the more obvious hardfhips of travelling half naked and barefoot through pathlefs deferts, over craggy mountains and deep fwamps, through froft, rain and fnow, exposed by day and night to the inclemency of the weather, and in fummer to the venomous flings of those numberless infects with which the woods abound; the reftlefs anxiety of mind, the retrofpect of paft scenes of pleasure, the remembrance of distant friends, the bereavements experienced at the beginning or during the progrefs of the captivity, and the daily apprehenfion of death either by famine or the favage enemy; thefe were the horrors of an Indian captivity.

On

On the other hand, it must be acknowledged that there have been inftances of juffice, generofity and tendernefs during thefe wars, which would have done honor to a civilized people. A kindnefs fhewn to an Indian was remembered as long as an injury; and perfons have had their lives fpared for acts of humanity done to .the anceftors of those Indians into whose hands they have fallen*. They would fometimes " carry children on their arms and fhoul-" ders, feed their prifoners with the beft " of their provision, and pinch themfelves " rather than their captives fhould want " food." When fick or wounded they would afford them proper means for their recovery, which they were very well able to do by their knowledge of fimples. In thus preferving the lives and health of their prifoners, they doubtlefs had a view of gain. But the most remarkably favourable circumstance in an Indian captivity, was their decent behaviour to women. I have never read, nor heard, nor could find by enquiry, that any woman who fell into

* Several inflances to this purpofe have been occafionally mentioned in the courfe of this narrative. The following additional one is taken from Capt. Hammond's MS Journal. "April 13, "1677. The Indians Simon, Andrew and Peter burnt the houfe "of Edward Weymouth at Sturgeon creek. They plundered the "honfe of one Crawley but did not kill him, becaufe of fome kind-"neffes done to Simon's grandmother." into their hands was ever treated with the leaft immodefly; but teftimonies to the contrary are very frequent[†]. Whether this negative virtue is to be afcribed to a natural frigidity of conflitution, let philofophers enquire: The fact is certain; and it was a most happy circumflance for our female captives, that in the midst of all their diffress, they had no reason to fear from a favage foe, the perpetration of a crime, which has too frequently difgraced not only the perfonal but the national character of those who make large pretences to civilization and humanity.

+ Mary Rowlandfon who was captured at Lancaster, in 1675, has this passage in her narrative, (p. 55.) "I have been in the midft of these roaring lions and favage bears, that feared neither God nor man nor the devil, by day and night, alone and in company; steeping all forts together, and yet not one of them ever offered me the least abuse of unchastity in word or action."

Elizabeth Hanfon who was taken from Dover in 1724, teflifies in her narrative, (p. 28.) that " the Indians are very civil toward their captive women, not offering any incivility by any indecent carriage."

William Fleming, who was taken in Pennfylvania, in 1755, fays the Indians told him "he need not he afraid of their abufing his wife, for they would not do it, for fear of offending their God (pointing their hands toward heaven) for the man that affronts his God will furely be killed when he goes to war." He farther fays, that one of them gave his wife a fhift and petiteoat which he had among his plunder, and though he was alone with her, yet "he turned his back, and went to fome diftance while the put them on." (p. 10.)

Charlevoix in his account of the Indians of Canada, fays (letter 7.) "There is no example that any have ever taken the leaft liberty with the French women, even when they were their pritioners."

CHAP. XI.

The civil affairs of the province during the administrations of Usher, Partridge, Allen, the Earlof Bellamont and Dudley, comprehending the whole controversy with Allen and his heirs.

OHN Usher, Esquire, was a native of Bofton, and by profession a stationer. He was poffeffed of an handfome fortune, and fustained a fair character in trade. He had been employed by the Maffachufetts government, when in England, to negociate the purchase of the province of Maine, from the heirs of Sir Ferdinando Gorges, and had thereby got a tafte for fpeculating in landed intereft. He was one of the partners in the million purchase, and had fanguine expectations of gain from that He had rendered himfelf unpoquarter. pular among his coutrymen, by accepting the office of treafurer, under Sir Edmund Androffe, and joining with apparent zeal in the measures of that administration, and he continued a friendly connexion with that party, after they were difplaced.

Ufher's papers.

Though not illnatured, but rather of an open and generous difposition, yet he wanted wanted those accomplishments which he might have acquired by a learned and polite education. He was but little of the flatefman, and lefs of the courtier. Inftead of an engaging affability he affected a feverity in his deportment, was loud in converfation, and stern in command. Fond of prefiding in government, he frequently journied into the province, (though his refidence was at Bofton, where he carried on his business as usual,) and often summoned the council when he had little or nothing to lay before them. He gave orders, and found fault like one who felt himfelf independent, and was determined to be obeyed. He had an high idea of his authority and the dignity of his commiffion, and when oppofed and infulted, as he fometimes was, he treated the offenders with a feverity which he would not relax till he had brought them to fubmiffion. His public speeches were always incorrect, and fometimes coarfe and reproachful.

He feems, however, to have taken as much care for the intereft and prefervation of the province as one in his circumftances could have done. He began his administration in the height of a war which greatly diffreffed and impoverished the U country Province.

country, yet his views from the beginning were lucrative*. The people perceived thefe views, and were aware of the danger. The transfer of the title from Mason to Allen was only a change of names : They expected a repetition of the fame difficulties under a new claimant. After the opposition they had hitherto made, it could not be thought ftrange that men whofe pulfe beat high for freedom, should refuse to fubmit to vaffalage; nor, while they were on one fide defending their poffeffions against a favage enemy, could it be expected, that on the other, they fhould tamely fuffer the intrusion of a landlord. Ufher's intereft was united with theirs in providing for the defence of the country, and contending with the enemy; but when the propriety of the foil was in queftion, they flood on opposite fides; and as both these controversies were carried on at the fame time, the conduct of the people toward him varied according to the exigency

* In a letter to George Dorrington and John Taylor in London, he writes thus; "Jan. 29, $169\frac{2}{3}$. In cafe yourfelves are concern-"ed in the province of New-Hampfhire, with prudent manage-"ment it may be worth money, the people only paying 4d and "2d per acre. The reafon why the commonalty of the people do "not agree is becaufe 3 or 4 of the great landed men diffuade "them from it. The people have petitioned the king to be an-"enced to Bofton government, but it will not be for the proprie-"tor's intereft to admit of that unlefs the king fends a general "governor over all." exigency of the cafe; they fomctimes voted him thanks for his fervices, and at other times complained of his abufing and oppreffing them.

Some of them would have been content to have held their effates under Allen's title[†], but the greater part, including the principal men, were refolved to oppofe it to the laft extremity. They had an averfion not only from the proprietary claim on their lands, but their feparation from the Maffachufetts government, under which they had formerly enjoyed fo much freedom and peace. They had petitioned to be re-annexed to them, at the time of the revolution; and they were always very fond of applying to them for help in their difficulties, that it might appear how unable they were to fubfift alone. They knew alfo that the Maffachufetts people were as averfe as themfelves from Allen's claim, which extended to a great part of their lands, and was particularly noticed in their new charter.

Soon after Ufher's arrival, he made enquiry for the papers which contained the transactions relative to Mason's fuits. During the sufficient of government in 1689, U 2 Captain ^{† &}quot;I have 40 hands in Exeter who defire to take patents for "lands from you, and many in other towns."

Uther to Allen, October 1695.

Captain John Pickering, a man of a rough and adventurous fpirit, and a lawyer, had gone with a company of armed men to the houfe of Chamberlayne, the late fecretary and clerk, and demanded the records and files which were in his poffeffion. Chamberlayne refused to deliver them without fome legal warrant or fecurity; but Pickering took them by force, and conveyed them over the river to Kittery. Pickering was fummoned before the governor, threatened and imprifoned, but for fome time would neither deliver the books, nor discover the place of their concealment, unlefs by order of the affembly and to fome perfon by them appointed to receive them. At length however he was conftrained to deliver them, and they were. put into the hands of the fecretary, by the lieutenant-governor's order.

1693.

Another favourite point with Ufher wasto have the boundary between New-Hampfhire and Maffachufetts afcertained : There were reafons which induced fome of the people to fall in with this defire. The general idea was, that New-Hampfhire began at the end of three miles north of the river Merrimack ; which imaginary line was alfo the boundary of the adjoining townfhips on each fide. The people who who lived, and owned lands near thefe limits, pretended to belong to either province, as best fuited their conveniency; which caufed a difficulty in the collecting taxes, and cutting timber. The town of Hampton was fenfibly affected with thefe difficulties, and petitioned the council that the line might be run. The council appointed a committee of Hampton men to do it, and gave notice to the Maffachufetts of their intention; defiring them to join in the affair. They difliked it and declined to act. Upon which the lieutenantgovernor and council of New-Hampshire caufed the boundary line to be run from the fea-fhore three miles northward of Merrimack, and parallel to the river, as far as any fettlements had been made, or lands occupied.

The only attempt made to extend the fettlement of the lands during thefe times, was that in the fpring of the year 1694, while there was a truce with the Indians. Ufher granted a charter for the townfhip of Kingfton to about twenty petitioners from Hampton. They were foon difcouraged by the dangers and difficulties of the fucceeding hoftilities, and many of them returned home within two years. After the war they refumed their enterprize; 1695. Octob. 12.

Prov. files.

Brief of the cafe of N. Hamp. and Maffachu. ftated by Strange & Hollings, 1738, p. 3. prize; but it was not till the year 1725, that they were able to obtain the fettlement of a minifter. No other alterations took place in the old towns, except the feparation of Great Ifland, Little Harbour, and Sandy Beach, from Portfmouth, and their erection into a town by the name of Newcaftle; together with the annexation of that part of Squamfcot patent which now bears the name of Stretham, to Exeter, it having before been connected with Hampton.

The lieutenant-governor was very forward in these transactions, thinking them circumstances favourable to his views, and being willing to recommend himfelf to the people by feconding their wifnes fo far as was confistent with the interest he meaned to ferve. The people, however, regarded the fettling and dividing of townships, and the running of lines, only as matters of general convenience, and continued to be difgusted with his administration. His repeated calls upon them for money were answered by repeated pleas of poverty, and requests for affistance from the neighbouring province. Ufher ufed all his influence with that government to obtain a fupply of men to garrifon the frontiers; and when they wanted provisions for the garrifons, garrifons, and could not readily raife the money, he would advance it out of his own purfe and wait till the treafury could reimburfe it.

Prov. files.

1695.

For the two or three first years of his administration the public charges were provided for as they had been before, by an excife on wines and other fpirituous liquors, and an impost on merchandize. Thefe duties being laid only from year to year, Uiher vehemently urged upon the affembly a renewal of the act, and an extenfion of the duty to articles of export; and that a part of the money fo raifed might be applied to the fupport of government. The answer he obtained was, that ' confidering the exposed flate of the pro-' vince, they were obliged to apply all the • money they could raife to their defence; ' and therefore they were not capable of ' doing any thing for the fupport of go-' vernment, though they were fenfible · his honour had been at confiderable ex-' pence: They begged that he would join ' with the council in reprefenting to the ' king the poverty and danger of the pro-' vince, that fuch methods might be taken · for their fupport and prefervation as to ' the royal wifdom should feem meet.' Being further preffed upon the fubject, they 1695. Nov. 7&9.

295

they paffed a vote to lay the proposed duties for one year, ' provided he and the ' council would join with them in petition-' ing the king to annex them to the Maffa-' chufetts.'

He had the mortification of being difappointed in his expectations of gain, not only from the people, but from his employer. Allen had promifed him two hundred and fifty pounds per annum for executing his commiffion; and when at the end of the third year, Usher drew on him for the payment of this fum, his bill came back protefted*. This was the more mortifying, as he had affiduoufly and faithfully attended to Allen's interest, and acquainted him from time to time with the means he had used, the difficulties he had encountered, the pleas he had urged, the time he had fpent, and the expence he had incurred in defence and fupport of his claim. He now defired him to come over and affume the government himfelf, or get a fucceffor to him appointed in the office of lieutenant-governor. He did not know that the people were before hand of him in this latter requeft.

* It is probable that Allen was not able to comply with this demand. The purchase of the province from the Masons had been made " with other men's money."

Letter of Ufher to Sir Matthew Dudley, Sept. 1718.

On

Usher's letter to Allen, July and Octo. 1695.

On a pretence of difloyalty he had removed Hinckes, Waldron, and Vaughan from their feats in the council. The former of thefe was a man who could change with the times; the two latter were fleady oppofers of the proprietary claim. Their fuspension irritated the people, who, by their influence, privately agreed to recommend William Partridge, Efq. as a proper perfon for their lieutenant-governor in Usher's stead. Partridge was a native of Portfmouth, a fhipwright, of an extraordinary mechanical genius, of a politic turn of mind, and a popular man. He was treasurer of the province, and had been ill used by Usher. Being largely concerned in trade he was well known in England, having fupplied the navy with masts and timber. His fudden departure for England was very furprizing to Ufher, who could not imagine he had any other bufinefs than to fettle his accounts. But the furprife was greatly increafed when he returned with a commission appointing him lieutenant-governor and commander in chief in Allen's absence. It was obtained of the lords juffices in the king's abfence, by the intereft of Sir Henry Afhurft, and was dated June 6, 1696.

1697. ~~ January.

Afhurft's letters in files.

Immediately

297 1695.

298

Immediately on his arrival, his appointment was publickly notified to the people; though, either from the delay of making out his inftructions, or for want of the form of an oath neceffary to be taken, the commiffion was not published in the usual manner: But the party in opposition to Usher triumphed. The fuspended counfellors refumed their feats, Pickering was made king's attorney, and Hinckes as prefident of the council, opened the affembly with a speech. This affembly ordered the records which had been taken from Pickering to be deposited in the hands of Major Vaughan, who was appointed recorder : In confequence of which they have been kept in that office ever fince.

Ufher being at Bofton when this alteration took place, wrote to them, declaring that no commiffion could fuperfede his till duly publifhed; and intimated his intention of coming hither " if he could be fafe " with his life." He alfo difpatched his fecretary, Charles Story, to England, with an account of this tranfaction, which in one of his private letters he ftyles " the " Pafcataqua rebellion;" adding, that "the " militia were raifed, and forty horfe fent " to feize him;" and intimating that the confufion confusion was fo great, that " if but three " French fhips were to appear, he believ-" ed they would furrender on the firft " fummons." The extreme imprudence of fending fuch a letter acrofs the Atlantic in time of war, was ftill heightened by an apprehension which then prevailed, that the French were preparing an armament to invade the country, and that " they " particularly defigned for Pafcataqua " river."

June 8.

MS Laws.

Febru. 20.

In anfwer to his complaint, the lords of trade directed him to continue in the place of lieutenant-governor till Partridge fhould qualify himfelf, or till Richard, Earl of Bellomont, fhould arrive; who was commiffioned to the government of New-York, Maffachufetts Bay and New-Hampfhire; but had not yet departed from England. Ufher received the letter from the lords together with the articles of peace which had been concluded at Ryfwick, and immediately fet off for New-Hampshire, (where he had not been for a year) proclaimed the peace, and published the orders he had received, and having proceeded thus far, " thought all well and quiet." But his oppofers having held a confultation at night, Partridge's commission was the next day published in form; he took the 299

Lt. Gov. Stoughton's letter of Feb. 24, in files.

August 3.

Decent. 10.

Decem. 13.

Decem. I 4.

HISTORY OF

1697. Usher's pa.

Council files.

1698. January 3. the oaths, and entered on the administration of government, to the complete vexation and difappointment of Ufher, who had been fo elated with the confirmation of his commission, that as he passed through Hampton, he had forbidden the minister of that place to observe a thankfgiving day, which had been appointed by President Hinckes.

An affembly being called, one of their firft acts was to write to the lords of trade, ' acknowledging the favour of the king ' in appointing one of their own inhabi-' tants to the command of the province, ' complaining of Ufher, and alledging that ' there had been no difturbances but what ' there had been no difturbances but what ' the himfelf had made; declaring that ' thofe counfellors whom he had fufpend-' ed were loyal fubjects, and capable of ' ferving the king; and informing their ' lordfhips that Partridge had now quali-' fied himfelf, and that they were waiting ' the arrival of the Earl of Bellomont.'

They alfo deputed Ichabod Plaifted to wait on the earl at New-York, and compliment him on his arrival. 'If he fhould 'find his lordfhip high, and referved, and 'not eafy of accefs, he was inftructed to 'employ fome gentleman who was in his 'confidence to manage the bufinefs; but if

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

* if eafy and free, he was to wait on him ' in perfon; to tell him how joyfully they · received the news of his appointment, ' and that they daily expected Governor · Allen, whole commiffion would be ac-' counted good till his lordship's should be ⁶ published, and to ask his advice how they " fhould behave in fuch a cafe.' The principal defign of this mellage was to make their court to the earl, and get the flart of Usher or any of his friends who might prepoffefs him with an opinion to their difadvantage. But if this should have happened, Plaisted was directed ' to observe ' what reception they met with. If his · lordship was ready to come this way, he • was to beg leave to attend him as far as · Bofton, and then afk his permiffion to " return home;' and he was furnished with a letter of credit to defray his expences. This meffage, which fhews the contrivers to be no mean politicians, had the defired effect.

The earl continued at New-York for the first year after his arrival in America; during which time Governor Allen came over, as it was expected, and his commission being still in force, he took the oaths and assumed the command. Upon which Usher again made his appearance in 1698.

301

Plaisted's Instructions in files.

Aug. 23.

Sept. 15,

Nov. 29.

in council, where he produced the letter from the lords of trade, claimed his place as lieutenant-governor, and declared that the fufpended counfellors had no right to fit till reftored by the king's order. This brought on an altercation, wherein Elliot affirmed that Patridge was duly qualified and in office, that Waldron and Vaughan had been fufpended without caufe, and that if they were not allowed to fit, the reft were determined to refign. The governor declared Ufher to be of the council; upon which Elliot withdrew.

1699. January 5.

January 6.

At the fucceeding affembly two new counfellors appeared; Jofeph Smith, and Kingfly Hall. The first day passed quietly. The governor approved Pickering as fpeaker of the houfe; told them he had affumed the government becaufe the Earl of Bellomont had not arrived; recommended a continuance of the excife and powder money, and advifed them to fend a congratulatory meffage to the earl at New-York. The next day the houfe anfwered, that they had continued the cuftoms and excife till November, that they had already congratulated the earl, and received a kind anfwer, and were waiting his arrival; when they should enter further on business. They complained that Allen's conduct had been been grievous in forbidding the collecting of the laft tax, whereby the public debts were not paid; in difplacing fundry fit perfons, and appointing others let's fit, and admitting Ufher to be of the council, though fuperfeded by Partridge's commiffion. Thefe things they told him had obliged fome members of the council and affembly to apply to his lordfhip for relief, and " unlefs he fhould manage with " a more moderate hand" they threatened him with a fecond application.

The fame day Coffin and Weare moved a queftion in council, whether Ufher was one of that body. He afferted his privilege, and obtained a major vote. They then entered their diffent, and defired a difinifion. The governor forbad their departure. Weare anfwered that he would not, by fitting there, put contempt on the king's commiffion, meaning Partridge's, and withdrew. The next day the affembly ordered the money arifing from the impoft and excife to be kept in the treafury, till the Earl of Bellomont's arrival; and the governor diffolved them.

Thefe violences on his part were fuppofed to originate from Ufher's refentment, his overbearing influence upon Allen, who is faid to have been rather of a pacific pacific and condefcending difpolition. The fame ill temper continued during the remainder of this fhort administration. The old counfellors, excepting Fryar, refufed to fit. Sampfon Sheaffe and Peter Weare made up the quorum. Sheaffe was alfo fecretary, Smith treasfurer, and William Ardell fheriff. The constables refused to collect the taxes of the preceding year, and the governor was obliged to revoke his orders, and commission the former constables to do the duty which he had forbidden.

In the fpring the earl of Bellomont fet out for his eaftern governments. The council voted an addrefs, and fent a committee, of which Ufher was one, to prefent it to him at Bofton; and preparations were made for his reception in New-Hampfhire; where he at length came and publifhed his commiffion to the great joy of the people, who now faw at the head of the government a nobleman of diftinguifhed figure and polite manners, a firm friend to the revolution, a favourite of King William, and one who had no intereft in oppreffing them.

During the controverfy with Allen, Partridge had withdrawn; but upon this change he took his feat as lieutenant-governor,

July 31.

MS in files.

vernor, and the difplaced counfellors were again called to the board. A petition was prefented against the judges of the fuperior court, and a proclamation was iffued for justices of the peace and constables only to continue in office, whereby the judges commissions determined. Richard Jose was made sheriff in the room of Ardell, and Charles Story scretary in the room of Sheaffe.

The government was now modelled in favour of the people, and they rejoiced in the change, as they apprehended the way was opened for an effectual fettlement of their long continued difficulties and difputes. Both parties laid their complaints before the governor, who wifely avoided cenfuring either, and advifed to a revival of the courts of justice, in which the main controverfy might be legally decided. This was agreed to, and the neceffary acts being paffed by an affembly, (who alfo prefented the earl with five hundred pounds which he obtained the king's leave to accept) after about eighteen days flay he quitted the province, leaving Partridge, now quietly feated in the chair, to appoint the judges of the respective courts. Hinckes was made chief juffice of the fuperior court, with Peter Coffin, John Gerrifh and John X Plaifted 305 1699.

Council Records.

306

Plaisted for affistants; Waldron chief juflice of the inferior court, with Henry Dow, Theodore Atkinfon and John Woodman for affistants.

One principal object of the earl's attention was to fortify the harbour, and provide for the defence of the country in cafe of another war. He had recommended to the affembly in his fpeech the building a ftrong fort on Great Island, and afterward, in his letters, affured them that if they would provide materials, he would endeavour to prevail on the king to be at the expence of erecting it. Col. Romer, a Dutch engineer, having viewed the fpot, produced to the affembly an effimate of the coft and transportation of materials, amounting to above fix thousand pounds. They were amazed at the propofal; and returned for anfwer to the governor, that in their greatest difficulties, when their lives and eftates were in the most imminent hazard, they were never able to raife one thousand pounds in a year*; that they

* I have here placed in one view fuch affeffments as I have been able to find during the preceding war, with the proportion of each town, which varied according to their refpective circumftances at different times. (MS Laws.)

	1693.	1693.	1694.	1 1695.	Uncert.	1697.
Portfmouth,	70	210	167			140 16
Hampton,	66 134	200	230			187 242
Dover,	30	110	90			127 9 7출
Exeter,	33 68	80	127		106 16
New Caffle,			86		73 7	79 12 6
£.	200	600	700	400	600	650

1700. June 6.

they had been exceedingly impoverished by a long war, and were now ftruggling under an heavy debt, befides being engaged in a controverfy with " a pretend-" ed proprietor ;" that they had expended more " blood and money" to fecure his majefty's intereft and dominion in New-England than the intrinfic value of their eftates, and that the fortifying the harbour did as much concern the Maffachufetts as themfelves; but they concluded with affuring his lordship, that if he were " thoroughly acquainted with their mi-" ferable, poor and mean circumftances, " they would readily fubmit to whatever " he fhould think them capable of doing." They were also required to furnish their quota of men to join with the other colonies in defending the frontiers of New-York in cafe of an attack*. This they thought extremely hard, not only becaufe they had never received the leaft affiftance from New-York in the late wars, but becaufe an opinion prevailed among them that their enemies had received fupplies from the Dutch at Albany, and that the X 2 plunder

* The quotas of men to be furnifhed by each government for the defence of New-York, if attacked, were as follows, viz. Maffachufetts 350 New-York, 200 Pennfylvania 80 New Hampfhire 40 Eaft New-Jerfey 60 Rhode-Hland 48 Weft New-Jerfey 60 Connecticut 120 (MS in files.) MS in files plunder taken from their defolated towns had been fold in that place. There was however no opportunity for affording this affiftance, as the New-Yorkers took care to maintain a good underftanding with the French and Indians for the benefit of trade.

1700. Smith's Hift. New-York, pag. 108, 175, 214.

Printed flate of Allen's title, p. 9.

August 13.

But to return to Allen : He had as little profpect of fuccefs in the newly eftablished courts, as the people had when Mafon's fuits were carried on under Cranfield's government. On examining the records of the fuperior court it was found that twenty-four leaves were miffing, in which it was fuppofed the judgments recovered by Mafon were recorded. No evidence appeared of his having obtained poffeffion. The work was to begin anew; and Waldron, being one of the principal landholders and most strenuous opposers of the claim, was fingled out to ftand foremost in the controversy with Allen, as his father had with Mafon. The caufe went through the courts, and was invariably given in favour of the defendant with cofts. Allen's only refuge was in an appeal to the king, which the court, following the example of their brethren in the Maffachufetts, refufed to admit. He then petitioned the king; who by an order in council granted him an appeal, allowing him him eight months to prepare for its profecution.

The refufal of an appeal could not fail of being highly refented in England. It was feverely animadverted on by the lords of trade, who in a letter to the Earl of Bellamont upon this occasion, fay : " This " declining to admit appeals to his majefty " in council, is a matter that you ought " very carefully to watch against in all " your governments. It is an humour " that prevails fo much in proprieties and " charter colonies, and the INDEPEN-" DENCY they thirst after is now fo noto-" rious, that it has been thought fit those " confiderations, together with other ob-" jections against those colonies, should be " laid before the parliament; and a bill " has thereupon been brought into the " house of lords for re-uniting the right " of government in their colonies to the " crown."

Before this letter was wrote the earl died at New-York, to the great regret of the people in his feveral governments, among whom he had made himfelf very popular. A copy of the letter was fent to New-Hampfhire by the council of New-York; but the bill mentioned in it was not paffed into an act of parliament. For fome reafons of 1701. April 24

April 29

MS in files.

March 5.

HISTORY OF

310

1701. of state it was rejected by the house of lords.

Hutch. vol. 2. p. 131.

Sept. 12.

MS Laws.

Octob. 14.

1702. May. 29 The affembly of New-Hampfhire, having now a fair opportunity, endeavoured as much as poffible to provide for their own fecurity; and paffed two acts, the one for confirming the grants of lands which had been made within their feveral townfhips; the other for afcertaining the bounds of them. Partridge gave his confent to thefe acts; but Allen had the addrefs to get them diffallowed and repealed becaufe there was no referve made in them of the proprietor's right.

The controverfy being carried before the king, both fides prepared to attend the fuit. Allen's age, and probably want of cafh, prevented his going in perfon; he therefore appointed Ufher to act for him, having previoufly mortgaged one half of the province to him, for fifteen hundred pounds; Vaughan was appointed agent for the province, and attorney to Waldron. It being a general intereft, the affembly bore the expence, and netwithflandingtheir pleas of poverty on other occafions provided a fund, on which the agent might draw in cafe of emergency.

In the mean time King William died and Queen Anne appointed Jofeph Dudley Efq. formerly prefident of New-England,

to

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

to be governor of Maffachufetts and New-Hampfhire; whofe commiffion being publifhed at Portfmouth, the affembly by a well timed prefent interefted him in their favour, and afterward fettled a falary on him during his administration, agreeably to the queen's instructions, who about this time forbad her governors to receive any but fettled falaries.

When Allen's appeal came before the queen in council, it was found that his attorney had not brought proof that Mafon had ever been legally in poffeffion; for want of this, the judgment recovered by Waldron was affirmed; but the order of council directed that the appellant ' should be at liberty to begin " de novo by a writ of ejectment in the · courts of New-Hampshire, to try his ' title to the lands, or to quit-rents pay-' able for the fame; and that if any doubt ' in law fhould arife, the jury fhould de-· clare what titles each party did feverally ' make out to the lands in queftion, and ' that the points in law fhould be referred , to the court; or if any doubt fhould arife · concerning the evidence, it fhould be · fpecially flated in writing, that if either ' party fhould appeal to her majefty fhe · might be more fully informed, in order ⁶ to a final determination.² While 1702. July 13.

18.

Council & Affembly Records.

Printed flate of Allen's title, p. 9.

MS Copy of Lords Trade Report in 1753.

Files of the Sup.Court.

1702.

While this appeal was depending a petition was prefented to the queen, praying that Allen might be put in poffeffion of the wafte lands. This petition was referred to Sir Edward Northey attorney general, who was ordered to report on three queftions. viz. I. Whether Allen had a right to the waftes. 2. What lands ought to be accounted wafte. 3. By what method her majefty might put him into poffeffion. At the fame time Usher was making intereft to be re-appointed lieutenantgovernor of the province. Upon this Vaughan entered a complaint to the queen, fetting forth ' that Allen claimed as wafte ground not only a large tract of unoc-' cupied land, but much of that which had been long enjoyed by the inhabitants, as ' common pasture, within the bounds of their feveral townships. That Usher, by · his former managements and mifdemeanours when in office, had forced fome of • the principal inhabitants to quit the pro-' vince, and had greatly haraffed and dif-' gufted all the reft, rendering himfelf quite ' unacceptable to them. That he was interested in the fuits now depending, as ' on Allen's death he would in right of his wife be entitled to part of the effate. • Wherefore it was humbly fubmitted whe-• ther ther it would be proper to appoint, as lieutenant-governor, one whofe intereft and endeavour it would be to diffeize the people of their ancient eftates, and render them uneafy; and it was prayed that no letters might be wrote to put Allen in poffeffion of the waftes till the petitioner fhould be heard by council.'

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

Usher's interest however prevailed. The attorney-general reported, that ' Allen's · claim to the waftes was valid; that all ⁴ lands uninclosed and unoccupied were to • be reputed wafte; that he might enter ' into and take poffeffion of them, and if · diffurbed might affert his right and pro-· fecute trefpassers in the courts there; but f that it would not be proper for her ma-' jefty to interpose, unless the question · came before her by appeal from those · courts; fave, that it might be reafonable · to direct (if Allen should infift on it at · the trials) that matters of fact be found · fpecially by the juries, and that thefe fpe-· cial matters fhould be made to appear on ' an appeal.'

Soon after this Ufher obtained a fecond commiffion as lieutenant-governor; but was exprefly reftricted from intermedling " with the appointment of judges or juries, " or otherwife, in matters relating to the " difputes 1703. Januar. 28.

Superior Court files.

July 26.

1702.

 \sim

1703.

Octob. 27.

Novem. A.

" difputes between Allen and the inhabi-" tants." The people did not relifh this re-appointment, nor did his fubfequent conduct reconcile them to it. Upon his first appearance in council Partridge took his feat as counfellor; but the next day defired a difinifion on account of a ship in the river which demanded his constant attention. This request was granted, and he foon after removed to Newbury, where he spent the rest of his days in a mercantile department, and in the business of his profession.*

It had always been a favourite point with Ufher to get the books and files, which had been taken from Chamberlayne, lodged in the fecretary's office. Among thefe files were the original minutes of the fuits which Mafon had carried on, and the verdicts, judgments and bills of coft he had recovered. As they were committed to the care of the recorder who was appointed by the general court and removeable only by thein, no ufe could be made of thefe papers but by confent of the affembly. When Ufher produced to the council an order from Whitehall that thefe records fhould fhould be deposited with the fecretary, Penhallon, the recorder, who was a member of the council, refused to deliver them without an act of the general assembly authorizing him to do fo.

* His fon Richard Partridge was an agent for the province in England. One of his daughters was married to Governor Belcher, and was mother to the late lieutenant-governor of Nova-Scotia.

314

Ufher fucceeded but little better in his applications for money. He alledged that he had received nothing for his former fervices, though they had given hundreds to Partridge; and complained that no house was provided for him to refide in, which obliged him to fpend moft of his time at Bofton. The plea of poverty always at hand, was not forgotten in anfwer to thefe demands. But at length, upon his repeated importunity and Dudley's earnest recommendation, after the affembly had refused making any provision for him, and the governor had expressly directed him to refide at New-Caftle, and exercife a regular command, it being a time of war; the council were prevailed upon to allow him two rooms in any houfe he could procure " till the next meeting of " the affembly," and to order thirty eight fhillings to be given him for the expence of his " journey to and from Bofton."

When Dudley acquainted the affembly with the royal determination in Allen's fuits, they appeared tolerably fatisfied with July 7.

Feb. 10

1704.

with the equitable intention difcovered therein; but begged him to reprefent to her majefty that ' the province was at · leaft fixty miles long and twenty wide, · containing twelve hundred fquare miles, ' that the inhabitants claimed only the ' property of the lands contained within • the bounds of their townships, which ' was lefs than one third of the province, ' and had been poffeffed by them and their ' anceftors more than fixty years; that ' they had nothing to offer as a grievance ' if the other two thirds were adjudged to ' to Allen; but fhould be glad to see the ' fame planted and fettled for the better · fecurity and defence of the whole; with-' al defiring it might be confidered how ' much time, blood and treafure had been ⁶ fpent in fettling and defending this part · of her majefty's dominion, and that the · coft and labour beftowed thereon far ' exceeded the true value of the land fo ' that they hoped it was not her majefty's · intention to deprive them of all the herb-· age, timber and fuel, without which they · could not fubfift, and that the lands com-· prehended within the bounds of their ' townships was little enough to afford ' thefe neceffary articles; it not being ' usual in these plantations to fence in • more

Records of the council and affembly. • more of their lands than would ferve for

- tillage, leaving the reft unfenced for the
- feeding their cattle in common.'

Notwithstanding this plea, which was often alledged, Allen, by virtue of the queen's permiffion, had entered upon and taken poffeffion by turf and twig of the common land in each township, as well as of that which was without their bounds, and brought his writ of ejectment de novo against Waldron, and when the trial was coming on informed Governor Dudley thereof, that he might come into court and demand a fpecial verdict agreeably to the queen's inftructions. Dudley from Bofton informed the court of the day when he intended to be at Portfmouth, and directed the judges to adjourn the court to that day. Before it came he heard of a body of Indians above Lancaster, which had put the country in alarm, and ordered the court to be again adjourned. At length he began his journey ; but was taken ill at Newbury, with a feafonable fit of the gravel, and proceeded no farther. The jury in the mean time refused to bring in a fpecial verdict; but found for the defendant with cofts. Allen again appealed from the judgment.

1704.

317

Dec. 22, 1703.

Ufher's Papers.

1704. Aug. 10.

Printed flate of Allen's title, p. 9.

Perplexed,

HISTORY OF

1704.

Perplexed, however, with these repeated difappointments, and at the fame time being low in purfe, as well as weakened with age, he fought an accommodation with the people, with whom he was defirous to fpend the remainder of his days in peace. It has been faid that he made very advantageous offers to Vaughan and Waldron if they would purchase his title; but that they utterly refused it. The people were fenfible that a door was ftill open for litigation; and that after Allen's death they might, perhaps, meet with as much or more difficulty from his heirs, among whom Ufher would probably have a great influence : They well knew his indefatigable industry in the purfuit of gain, that he was able to harrafs them in law, and had great intereft in England. They therefore thought it beft to fall in with Allen's views, and enter into an accommodation with him. A general meeting of deputies being held at Portfmouth, the following refolutions and propofals were drawn up, viz. ' That they had no claim • or challenge to any part of the province ' without the bounds of the four towns of Portfmouth, Dover, Hampton and · Exeter, with the hamlets of New-Caftle ' and Kingfton, which were all comprehended

1705. May 3.

^s hended within lines already known and · laid out, and which should forthwith ' be revifed; but that Allen and his heirs ' might peaceably hold and enjoy the faid ' great waste, containing forty miles in · length and twenty in breadth, or there-' abouts, at the heads of the four towns ' aforefaid, if it should so please her ma-' jefty; and that the inhabitants of the · four towns would be fo far from inter-⁶ rupting the fettlement thereof, that they · defired the faid wafte to be planted and . filled with inhabitants, to whom they ' would give all the encouragement and ' affistance in their power. That in cafe · Allen would, for himfelf and heirs, for-· ever quit claim, to the prefent inhabitants ' and their heirs, all that tract of land com-· prehended within the bounds of the feve-' ral towns, and warrant and defend the ' fame against all perfons, free of mort-• gage, entailment and every other incum-' brance, and that this agreement fhould • be accepted and confirmed by the queen; ' then they would lot and lay out to him ' and his heirs five hundred acres within ' the town of Portfmouth and New-Caftle, 6 fifteen hundred in Dover, fifteen hundred ' in Hampton and Kingston, and fifteen ⁴ hundred in Exeter, out of the common-· ages

HISTORY OF

' ages of the faid towns, in fuch places, ' not exceeding three divisions in each ' town, as fhould beft accommodate him ' and be leaft detrimental to them; and • that they would pay him or his heirs two ' thousand pounds current money of New-' England at two payments, one within a ' year after receiving the royal confirma-• tion of this agreement, and the other within a year after the first payment. · That all contracts made either by Mafon or Allen with any of the inhabitants, or · others, for lands or other privileges in • the poffession of their tenants in their own ' just right, befide the claim of Mason ' and Allen, and no other, fhould be ac-· counted valid; but that if any of the pur-· chafers, leffees or tenants fhould refufe ' to pay their just part of the fums agreed • on, according to the lands they held, their fhare fhould be abated by Allen out of • the two thousand pounds payable by this ' agreement. That upon Allen's accept-⁴ ance, and underwriting of thefe articles, " they would give perfonal fecurity for the ' aforefaid payment; and that all actions ' and fuits depending in law concerning ' the premifes fhould ceafe till the queen's ' pleafure fhould be known.'

Thefe

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

Thefe articles were ordered to be prefented to Allen for his acceptance : But fo defirable an iffue of the controverfy was prevented by his fudden death, which happened on the next day. He left a fon and four daughters, and died inteftate.

Colonel Allen is reprefented as a gentleman of no remarkable abilities, and of a folatary rather than a focial difpolition; but mild, obliging and charitable. His character, while he was a merchant in London, was fair and upright, and his domeftic deportment amiable and exemplary. He was a member of the church of England by profession, but constantly attended divine worfhip in the congregation at New-Caftle, and was a strict observer of the christian fabbath. He died on the fifth of May 1705, in the feventieth year of his age, and was buried in the fort.

After his death his only fon, Thomas Allen, Efg. of London, renewed the fuit, by petitioning the queen, who allowed him to bring a new writ of ejectment, and ordered a revival of the directions given to the governor in 1703, with refpect to the jury's finding a fpecial verdict. Accordingly Allen, having previoufly conveyed one half of the lands in New-Hampfhire by deed of fale to Sir Charles Hobby, Y and 1705. \sim MS Copy of Report of Lords of Trade, 1753.

321

Atkinfon's Letter MS.

Emerfon's funeral fermon and letter to Mr.Prince, MS.

1706. ~~

May 16.

August 20.

HISTORY OF

1707. April 15. and appointed his mother Elizabeth Allen his attorney, brought his writ of ejectment againft Waldron in the inferior court of common pleas, where he was caft. He then removed it by appeal to the fuperior court, where it had been tried three years before. As this was the laft trial, and as all the ftrength of both parties was fully difplayed on the occafion, it will be proper to give as juft a view of the cafe as can now be collected from the papers on file in the office of the fuperior court.

On Allen's part were produced copies of the charter by which King James I. constituted the council of Plymouth; their grants to Mason in 1629 and 1635; his last will and testament; an inventory of artillery, arms, ammunition, provisions, merchandize and cattle left in the care of his agents here at his death ; depositions of feveral ancient perfons taken in 1685, who remembered the houfes, fields, forts, and other poffeffions of Capt. Mafon at Portfmouth and Newichwannock, and were acquainted with his agents, stewards, factors and other fervants, who divided the cattle and merchandize among them after his death; the opinions of Sir Geoffry Palmer, Sir Francis Winnington and Sir William Jones in favour of the validity of Mafon's Mason's title; King Charles's letter to the prefident and council of New-Hampshire in 1680; the paragraph of Cranfield's commission which respects Mason's claim in 1682; the writ, verdict, judgment and execution against Major Waldron in 1683; the decifion of the king in council against Vaughan in 1686; Dudley's writ of certiorari in 1688; the fine and recovery in Westminster-hall whereby the entail was cut off, and the confequent deed of fale to Allen in 1691; Sir Edward Northey's report in 1703; and evidence of Allen's taking poffeffion of the waftes, and of his inclofing and occupying fome land at Great Island. On this evidence, it was pleaded that the title derived from Mason, and his poffeffion of the province, of which the lands in queftion were part, was legal; that the appellee's poffeffion had been interrupted by the appellant and those from whom he derived his title, more efpecially by the judgment recovered by Robert Mafon against Major Waldron; and a special verdict was moved for, agreeably to the royal directions. The council on this fide were James Meinzies and John Valentine.

On Waldron's part was produced the deed from four Indian fachems to Whelewright and others in 1629; and depofiti-

Y 2

ons

324 1707.

ons taken from feveral ancient perfons who teffified that they had lived with Major Waldron when he began his plantation at Cochecho, about the year 1640, and affifted him in building his houfes and mills, and that no perfon had difturbed him in the poffeffion thereof for above forty years. To invalidate the evidence of the title produced on the opposite fide, it was pleaded, That the alledged grant from the council of Plymouth to Mafon in 1629, was not figned; that livery and feizin were not endorfed on it as on other of their grants, and as was then the legal form ; nor was it ever enrolled according to ftatute: That the fale of part of the fame lands in 1628 to the Maffachufetts company, by an inftrument figned and executed according to law, renders this fubfequent grant fufpicious; and that his pretending to procure another grant of part of the fame lands in 1635, was an argument that he himfelf could not rely on the preceding one, nor was it credible that the fame council fhould grant the fame lands twice, and to the fame perfon: That the alledged grant in 1635 was equally defective; and that he must relinquish one or the other, it being contrary to the reafon and usage of law to rely on two feveral titles at once. It was urged, That Waldron's poffeffion was grounded on a deed from the native lords of the foil, with whom his father had endeavoured to cultivate a friendly connexion; that he had taken up his land with their confent, when the country was a wildernefs; had cultivated it, had defended it in war at a great expence, and at the hazard of his life, which he finally loft in the attempt; that the Indian deed was legally executed in the prefence of the factors and agents of the company of Laconia, of which Mafon was one; that this was done with the toleration of the council of Plymouth, and in purfuance of the great ends of their incorporation, which were to cultivate the lands, to people the country and chriftianize the natives, for the honour and interest of the crown and the trade of England, all which ends had been purfued and attained by the appellee and his anceftor. It was also alledged, that the writ against Major Waldron in 1683 was for "lands " and tenements," of which the quantity, fituation and bounds were not deferibed, for want of which no legal judgment could be given; that no execution had ever been levied, nor was the poffeffor ever disturbed or amoved by reafon thereof; and that the the copies produced were not attefted, no book of records being to be found. To invalidate the evidence of Mafon's poffeffion, it was obferved, that he himfelf was never here in perfon; that all the fettlement made by his agents or fucceffors was only a factory for trade with the Indians, and principally for the difcovery of a country called Laconia; and that this was done in company with feveral other merchantadventurers in London, who, for the fecurity of their goods erected a fort; but that this could not amount to a legal poffeffion, nor prove a title to the country, especially as upon the failure of trade, the object of their enterprize, they quitted their factory, after a few years flay in these parts.

ral

325

As to the motion for a fpecial verdict, it was faid that a jury could not find one, if they had no doubt of the law or fact, for the reafon of a fpecial verdict is a doubt either in point of law or evidence; nor was it confiftent with the privileges of Englifhmen that a jury fhould be compelled to find fpecially. In addition to thefe pleas it was further alledged, that by the flatute law no action of ejectment can be maintained except the plaintiff, or thofe under whom he claims, have been in poffeffion within twenty years; and if they have been been out of poffeffion fixty years, then not only an ejectment, but a writ of right, and all other real actions are barred in refpect of a fubject, and that in fuch cafes the right of the crown is alfo barred: and that by the statute of 32 Hen. 8. ch. 9. It is enacted, that no perfon shall purchase any lands or tenements, unlefs the feller, or they by whom he claims, have been in poffession of the fame or the reversion or remainder thereof, or have taken the rents or profits thereof by the fpace of one whole year next before fuch bargain is made; and that the appellee and his anceftor, and no other perfon whatever had been in poffeffion of the premifes, nor was it ever pretended by the appellant that the Mafons, of whom the purchase was made, were in poffeffion within one year, or at any time before the alledged purchafe; that all the mifchiefs provided against by the above flatute have been experienced by the people of New-Hampshire from the purchase made by the appellant's father, of the bare title of the propriety of the province. The council on this fide were John Pickering and Charles Story.

A certificate from the lieutenant-governor refpecting the queen's directions was delivered to the jury who returned the following lowing verdict: " In the caufe depending " between Thomas Allen, Efq. appellant " and Richard Waldron, Efq. defendant, " the jury findes for the defendant a con-" firmation of the former judgment and " coft of courts. Mark Hunking foreman."

Aug. 12.

The court then fent out the jury again, with this charge, "Gentlemen, you are "further to confider this cafe and obferve "her majefty's directions to find fpecially "and your oaths." They returned the fecond time with the fame verdict; upon which the court ordered judgment to be entered, and that the defendant recover cofts of the appellant. The council for the appellant then moved for an appeal to her majefty in council; which was allowed on their giving bond in two hundred pounds to profecute it.

But the loyalty of the people, and the diftreffes under which they laboured by reafon of the war, prevailed on the queen's miniftry to fufpend a final decifion; and before the appeal could be heard, Allen's death, which happened in 1715, put an end to the fuit, which his heirs, being minors, did not renew,

Council & Affembly's Records.

Printed state of Allen's title, p. 10.

CHAP.

C H A P. XII.

The war with the French and Indians, called Queen Anne's war. Conclusion of Dudley's and Usher's administration.

THE peace which followed the treaty of Ryfwick was but of fhort duration, for the feeds of war were ready fown both in Europeand America. Louis had proclaimed the pretender king of England, and his Governor Villebon had orders to extend his province of Acadia to the river Kennebeck, though the English court understood St. Croix to be the boundary between their territories and those of the French The fifhery was interrupted by French men of war, and by the orders of Villebon, who fuffered no English veffels to fish on the banks of Nova-Scotia. A French miffion was eftablished, and a chapel erected at Norridgwog, on the upper part of Kennebeck, which ferved to extend the influence of the French among the Indians. The governor of Canada, alluming the character of their father and protector, infligated them to prevent the fettlement of the English to the east of Kennebeck, and found fome among them ready to liften to to his advice. The people in those parts were apprehensive of danger and meditating a removal, and those who had entertained thoughts of settling there were restrained.

Things were in this posture when Dudley entered on his government. He had particular orders from England to rebuild the fort at Pemaquid; but could not prevail on the Maffachufetts affembly to bear the expence of it. However he determined on a visit to the eastern country, and having notified his intention to the Indians, took with him a number of gentlemen of both his provinces*, and held a conference at Cafco with delegates from the tribes of Norridgwog, Penobfcot, Pigwacket, Penacook and Amarifcoggin; who affured him that "as high as the fun was above the earth, " fo far diftant was their defign of making " the leaft breach of the peace." They prefented him a belt of wampum in token of their fincerity, and both parties went to two heaps of ftones which had formerly been pitched and called the Two Brothers, where the friendship was further ratified by the addition of other ftones. They alfo declared, that although the French emiffaries among them had been endeavouring to to break the union, yet it was " firm as a " mountain, and fhould continue as long " as the fun and moon." Notwithftanding these fair appearances, it was observed that when the Indians fired a falute their guns were charged with fhot; and it was fuspected that they had then formed a defign to feize the governor and his attendants, if a party which they expected from Canada, and which arrived two or three days after, had come in proper feafon to their affistance. However this might be, it is certain that in the fpace of fix weeks, a body of French and Indians, five hundred in number, having divided themfelves into feveral parties, attacked all the fettlements from Cafco to Wells, and killed and took one hundred and thirty people, burning and deftroying all before them*.

• Mr. Hutchinson has misplaced this transaction by a year.

The next week (August 17) a party of thirty Indians under Captain Tom killed five people at Hampton village; among whom was a widow Mussify, a noted speaker among the friends, and much lamented by them; they, also plundered two houses; but the people being alarmed, and pursuing them, they fled.

The

* Mr. Hutchinson takes no notice of this remarkable devastation, which is particularly related by Mr. Penhalloff in his " wars of New-England." p. 5. 1703.

August 1c.

The country was now in terror and confusion. The women and children retired to the garrifons. The men went armed to their work, and posted centinels in the fields. Troops of horfe were quartered at Portsmouth and in the province of Maine. A fcout of three hundred and fixty men marched toward Pigwacket, and another to the Oslapy Pond, but made no difcoveries. Alarms were frequent, and the whole frontier country from Deeirfield on the wess to Casco on the east was kept in continual terror by finall parties of the enemy.

In the fall Col. March of Cafco made a vifit to Pigwacket, where he killed fix of the enemy and took fix more; this encouraged the government to offer a bounty of forty pounds for fcalps.

As the winter came on the frontier towns were ordered to provide a large number of fnow-fhoes; and an expedition was planned in New Hampfhire, againft the head quarters of the Indians. Major Winthrop Hilton, and Captain John Gilman of Exeter, Captain Chefley and Captain Davis of Oyfter river, marched with their companies on fnow-fhoes into the woods; but returned without fuccefs. This is called in the council books " an honour-" able " able fervice:" Hilton received a gratuity of twelve, and each of the captains five pounds.

With the return of fpring there was a return of hostilities; for notwithstanding the pofting a few fouthern Indians in the garrifons at Berwick, the enemy appeared at Oyfter river, and fhot Nathaniel Medar near his own field, and the next day killed Edward Taylor near Lamprey river, and captivated his wife and fon. Thefe inftances of mifchief gave colour to a falfe alarm at Cochecho, where it was faid they lay in wait for Col. Waldron a whole day, but miffing him by reafon of his abfence from home, and took his fervant maid as fhe went to a fpring for water; and having examined her as to the flate of the garrifon, flunned her with an hatchet but did not scalp her.

In May Col. Church, by Governor Dudley's order, having planned an expedition to the eaftern fhore, failed from Bofton with a number of transports, furnished with whale-boats for going up rivers. In his way he ftopt at Pascataqua, where he was joined by a body of men under Major Hilton, who was of eminent fervice to him in this expedition*, which lasted the whole

" This is called in the council books " an expedition to Port-" Royal," 1703.

1704-

s

 \sim

April 25.

1704.

August II.

whole fummer, and in which they deftroyed the towns of Minas and Chiegnecto, and did confiderable damage to the French and Indians at Penobfcot and Paffamaquody, and even infulted Port Royal. While they were at Mount Defart Church learned from nine of his prisoners that a body of † fix hundred Indians were preparing for an attack on Cafco, and the head of Pafcataqua river; and fent an express to Portfmouth which obliged the people to be vigilant. No fuch great force as this appeared; but fmall parties kept hovering on the out skirts. At Oyster river they wounded William Tafker; and at Dover they laid in ambush for the people on their return from public worship, but happily miffed their aim. They afterward mortally wounded Mark Gyles at that place, and foon after killed feveral people in a field at Oyster river, whose names are not mentioned.

In the former wars New-Hampfhire had received much affiftance from their brethren

"Royal," and this was the offenfible object. But Church in his memoirs fays that Dudley would not permit him to go there. Church, p. 104. Hutch. 11. 146.

† I suppose this is the party whom Penhallog mentions, p 23. who quarrelled on their march about dividing the plunder which they might take, and of whom two hundred returned while the rest purfued their march, and did damage at Lancaster and Groton.

334

brethren of Massachusetts; but these now remonstrated to the governor that his other province did not bear their proportion of the charge for the common defence. The representatives of New-Hampshire urged, in reply, the different circumstances of the two provinces; " most of the towns in Maffachufetts being out of the reach of the enemy, and no otherwife affected by the war than in the payment of their part of the expence, while this province was wholly a frontier by fea and land, and in equal danger with the county of York, in which four companies were stationed, and the inhabitants were abated their proportion of the public charges." They begged that twenty of the friendly Indians might be fent to fcout on their borders, which request the governor complied with.

In the winter, Col. Hilton with two hundred and feventy men, including the twenty Indians, were fent to Norridgwog on fnow-fhoes. They had a favourable feafon for their march, the fnow being four feet deep. When they arrived there, finding no enemy to contend with, they burnt the deferted wigwams, and the chapel. The officers who went on this expedition complained that they had only the pay of private foldiers.

1704.

Council Rec.

1705.

The 1705.

336

The late repairs of fort William and Mary at New-Caftle were always complained of as burdenfome to the people, and a reprefentation thereof had been made to the queen, who inftructed Dudley to prefs the affembly of Maffachufetts to contribute to the expence; as the river belonged equally to both provinces. They urged in excufe that the fort was built at first at the fole charge of New-Hampshire to whom it properly belonged; that the whole expence of the repairs did not amount to what feveral of their towns fingly paid toward the fupport of the war for one year; that all the trade and navigation of the river, on both fides, paid a duty toward maintaining that fortrefs; and that they had been at great expence in protecting the frontiers of New-Hampshire, and the parties who were employed in getting timber and mafts for her majefty's fervice; while New-Hampshire had never contributed any thing to the fupport of the garrifons, forces and guards by fea, which were of equal benefit to them as to Maffachufetts. One thing which made New-Hampshire more in favour with the queen was, that they had fettled a falary on her governor, which the others never could be perfuaded to do. The repairs of the - fort, fort, however, went on without their affiftance, under the direction of Col. Romer; and when they were completed, a petition was fent home for a fupply of cannon, ammunition and flores.

The next fummer was chiefly fpent in negotiating an exchange of prifoners; and Dudley had the address to protract the negotiation, under pretence of confulting with the other governments about a neutrality proposed by the governor of Canada, by which means the frontiers in general were kept tolerably quiet, although the enemy appeared once or twice in the town of Kittery. The line of pickets * which inclosed the town of Portimouth was repaired, and a nightly patrole eftablifhed on the feashore, from Rendezvous Point to the bounds of Hampton, to prevent any furprize by fea; the coaft being at this time infefted by the enemy's privateers.

During this truce, the inhabitants of Kingfton who had left the place, were encouraged to petition for leave to return to their lands; which the court granted on condition that they fhould build a fort in the center of the town, lay out a parfon-Z age

• This line extended from the mill-pond on the fouth, to the creek on the north fide of the town. It croffed the main fireet a few rods weftward of the fpot where the State Houfe now flands.

1705.

1706.

338

age and fettle a minister within three years. This last condition was rendered impracticable by the renewal of hostilities.

The governor of Canada had encouraged the Indians who inhabited the borders of New-England to remove to Canada, where being incorporated with the tribe of St. Francis, they have ever fince remained. By this policy they became more firmly attached to the intereft of the French, and were more eafily difpatched on their bloody business to the frontiers of New-England, with which they were well ac-Dudley, who was generally quainted. apprized of their movements, and kept a vigilant eye upon them, apprehended a rupture in the winter; and gave orders for a circular fcouting march, once a month, round the head of the towns from Kingfton to Salmon falls; but the enemy did not appear till April; when a fmall party of them attacked the house of John Drew at Oyster river, where they killed eight and wounded two. The garrifon was near, but not a man in it : the women, however, feeing nothing but death before them, fired an alarm, and then putting on hats, and loofening their hair that they might appear like men, they fired fo brifkly that the enemy, apprehending the people were alarmed, alarmed, fled without burning or even plundering the houfe which they had attacked. John Wheeler, meeting this party and miftaking them for friendly Indians, unhappily fell into their hands and was killed with his wife and two children. Four of his fons took refuge in a cave by the bank of the Little Bay, and though purfued by the Indians efcaped unhurt.

In July Colonel Schuyler from Albany gave notice to Dudley that two hundred and feventy of the enemy were on their march toward Pascatagua, of which he immediately informed the people, and ordered them to clofe garrifon, and one half of the militia to be ready at a minute's warning. The first appearance of this body of the enemy was at Dunstable; from whence they proceeded to Amefbury and Kingfton, where they killed fome cattle. Hilton with fixty four men marched from Exeter; but was obliged to return without meeting the enemy. The reafon he gave to the council for returning fo foon was the want of provision, there being none in readinefs at the garrifons, notwithstanding a law lately enacted, enjoining it on every town to have ftores ready and deposited in the hands of their captains. For the fame reafon he had 7.2 heen 170б. ~ been obliged to difcontinue a fmall fcout which he had for fome time kept up. Hilton was fo brave and active an officer that the enemy had marked him for deftruction; and for this purpose a party of them kept lurking about his houfe, where they observed ten men to go out one morning with their fcythes, and lay afide their arms to mow; they then crept between the men and their guns, and fuddenly rushing on them, killed four, wounded one, and took three; two only of the whole number escaped. They missed the major for this time, and two of their prifoners escaped; but suffered much in their return, having nothing to fubfift on for three weeks but lily roots and the rinds of trees. After this they killed William Pearl and took Nathaniel Tibbets at Dover. It was obferved during this war that the enemy did more damage in fmall bodies than in larger, and by fcattering along the frontiers kept the people in continual apprehenfion and alarm; and fo very few of them fell into our hands, that in computing the expence of the war it was judged that every Indian killed or taken coft the country a thouland pounds.

Penhallow p. 40.

August 10.

In the following winter Hilton made another excursion to the eastward, and a shallop shallop was fent to Cafco with stores and provisions for his party, confifting of two hundred and twenty men. The winter being mild, and the weather unfettled, prevented their marching fo far as they intended: cold dry weather and deep fnow being most favourable to winter expediti-However they came on an Indian ons. track near Black Point, and purfuing it, killed four, and took a fquaw who conducted them to a party of eighteen, whom they furprized as they lay afleep on a neck of land at break of day, and of whom they killed feventeen and took the other. This was matter of triumph confidering the difficulty of finding their haunts. It was remarked that on the very morning that this affair happened it was reported, with but little variation from the truth, at Portfmouth though at the distance of fixty miles.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

When Church went to Nova-Scotia he very earneftly folicited leave to make an attempt on Port Royal; but Dudley would not confent, and the reafon he gave was, that he had written to the miniftry in England and expected orders and naval help to reduce the place. His enemies however affigned another reafon for his refufal; which was that a clandeftine trade was carried on by his connivance, and to his emolument 341

1707.

Jan. 21.

HISTORY OF

1707.

Hutch. Hilt. Maffa. Vol 2. p. 154. emolument, with the French there. This report gained credit and occafioned a loud call for juftice. Thofe who were directly concerned in the illegal traffick were profecuted and fined; and the governor fuffered much in his reputation. To wipe off thefe afperfions he now determined to make an attack in earneft on Port Royal, even though no affiftance fhould come from England. It was intended that an armament fhould be fent to America, and the commander was appointed; but the flate of affairs in Europe prevented their coming.

Early in the fpring the governor applied to the affemblies of both his provinces, and to the colonies of Rhode Island and Connecticut, requesting them to raife one thousand men for the expedition. Connecticut declined; but the other three raifed the whole number, who were difpofed into two regiments, of which Colonel Wainwright commanded the one, and Colonel Hilton the other. They embarked at Nantasket in twenty three transports furnished with whaleboats, under convoy of the Deptford man of war, Capt. Stuckley, and the province galley, Captain Southack. The chief command was given to Colonel March, who had behaved well in feveral fcouts fcouts and rencounters with the Indians, but had never been tried in fuch fervice as this. They arrived before Port Royal in a few days, and after burning fome houfes, killing fome cattle round the fort, and making fome ineffectual attempts to bombard it, a jealoufy and difagreement among the officers, and a mifapprehenfion of the ftate of the fort and garrifon, caufed the army to break up and reimbark in a diforderly manner. Some of the officers went to Boston for orders, some of the transports put in at Casco; a floop with Captain Chefley's company of fixty men arrived at Portfmouth: Chefley fuffered his men to difperfe, but ordered them to return at the beat of the drum : Being called to account for this conduct he alledged that " general orders were given at Port " Royal for every man to make the beft " of his way home." The governor, highly chagrined and very angry, fent orders from Boston that if any more vessels arrived the men should not be permitted to come on fhore " on pain of death." After a while he ordered Chefley's company to be collected and reimbarked, offering a pardon to those who voluntarily returned, the reft to be feverely punished. By the latter end of July they got on board, and

May 13.

I 707. May 26.

Penhallow p. 42.

June 6 and 7.

June 13. Council Records. 1707.

and with the reft of the army, returned to the place of action. At the landing, an ambuscade of Indians from among the fedge on the top of a fea-wall, greatly annoyed the troops. Major Walton and Captain Chefley, being then on fhore with the New-Hampshire companies, pushed their men up the beach, flanked the enemy, and after an obftinate ftruggle put them to flight. The command was now given to Wainwright, and the army put under the direction of three fupervifors; but no means could infpire that union, firmnels and skill which were necessary. By the laft of August the whole affair wasat an end, and the army returned fickly, fatigued, difheartened, and afhamed; but with no greater lofs than fixteen killed and as many wounded.

While this unfortunate expedition was in hand, the frontiers were kept in continual alarm. Two men were taken from Oyfter river, and two more killed as they were driving a team between that place and Dover. Captain Sumerfby purfued with his troop and recovered the contents of the cart. Stephen and Jacob Gilman, brothers, were ambufhed between Exeter and Kingfton; their horfes were killed, but both of

May 22. July 8.

Penhallow Pr 45. of them escaped to the garrifon. Kingfton, being a new plantation, was much exposed, and was this fummer weakened by the defertion of eight men. The remaining inhabitants complained to government, who ordered the captains of Exeter and Hampton to take them up as deferters, and oblige them to return to the defence of their fettlements, or do duty at the fort during the governor's pleafure. They were afterward bound over to the feffions for contempt of orders. The flate of the country at this time was truly diftreffed; a large quota of their best men were abroad, the reft harraffed by the enemy at home, obliged to continual duty in garrifons and in fcouts, and fubject to fevere discipline for neglects. They earned their bread at the continual hazard of their lives, never daring to fir abroad unarmed; they could till no lands but what were within call of the garrifoned houfes, into which their families were crouded; their hufbandry, lumber-trade and fifhery were declining, their taxes increasing, their apprehensions both from the force of the enemy and the failure of the Port Royal expedition were exceedingly difinal, and there was no profpect of an end to the war, in which they were now advanced to the fifth fummer.

345 1707.

Council Rec.

mer. Yet under all these diffress and difcouragements, they resolutely kept their ground and maintained their garrifons, not one of which was cut off during the whole of this war, within the limits of New-Hampshire.

Septem.15.

_____ I7.

In September one man was killed at Exeter, and two days after Henry Elkins at Kingfton. But the feverest blow on the frontiers happened at Oyster river, a place which fuffered more than all the reft. A party of French Mohawks painted red, attacked with an hideous yell a company who were in the woods, fome hewing timber and others driving a team, under the direction of Captain Chefley who was just returned the fecond time from Port Royal. At the first fire they killed feven and mortally wounded another. Chefley, with the few who were left, fired on the enemy with great vigour, and for fome time checked their ardor; but being overpowered, he at length fell. He was much lamented, being a brave officer. Three of the scalps taken at this time were foon after recovered at Berwick.

1708.

The next year a large army from Canada was defined against the frontiers of New-England. Dudley received information of it in the usual route from Albany, bany, and immediately ordered guards in the most exposed places of both his provinces. A troop under Captain Robert Coffin patroled from Kingston to Cochecho, and fcouts were kept out continually. Spy-boats were alfo kept out at fea between Pascataqua and Winter harbours. Four hundred Maffachufetts foldiers were posted in this province. The towns were ordered to provide ammunition, and all things were in as good a flate of preparation as could be expected. At length the ftorm fell on Haverhill; but the enemy's force having been diminished by various accidents, they proceeded no farther, and every part of New-Hampshire was quiet. Hilton made another winter march to Pigwacket with one hundred and feventy men, but made no difcovery.

1707.

The next fpring William Moody, Samuel Stevens, and two fons of Jeremy Gilman were taken at Pickpocket-mill in Exeter, and foon after Bartholomew Stevenfon was killed at Oyfter river. Colonel Hilton and Captain Davis performed their ufual tour of duty in fcouting, and the people this fummer kept clofe in garrifon, on a report that two hundred Indians had marched againft them from Montreal. But the principal object now in 1708.

347

Aug. 29.

Penhallow 45, 48.

1709. May 5.

June 30.

1709.

348

in view was a defire of wiping off the difgrace of a former year by an attempt, not on Port Royal, but on Canada itself. For this purpofe folicitations had been made in England by Francis Nicholfon, Efq. who had been lieutenant-governor of Virginia, and Captain Samuel Vetch a trader to Nova-Scotia, who was well acquainted with the French fettlements there, and made a full reprefentation of the flate of things in America to the British ministry. An expedition being determined upon they came over early in the fpring with the queen's command to the governors of the feveral provinces to raife men for the fervice. Vetch was appointed a colonel, and Nicholfon, by nomination of the governor of New-York, and confent of the other governments, was made commander in chief. The people of New-Hampshire were fo much exhausted, and their men had been fo ill paid before, that it was with great difficulty, and not without the diffolution of one affembly and the calling of another, that they could raife money to levy one hundred men and procure two transports for conveying them. After the utmost exertions had been made by the feveral governments, and Nicholfon with part of the troops had marched to Wood creek, creek, and the reft with the transports had lain at Nantasket three months waiting for a fleet, news arrived that the armament promifed from England was diverted to another quarter. Upon which the commander of the frigates on the Bofton station refused to convoy the troops, the whole army was difbanded, and the expence the colonies had been at was fruitlefs. A congress of governors and delegates from the affemblies met in the fall at Rhode-Ifland, who recommended the fending home agents to affift Colonel Nicholfon in reprefenting the flate of the country, and foliciting an expedition against Canada the next fpring. The ministry at first feemed to listen to this proposal, but afterward changed their minds, and refolved only on the reduction of Port Royal. For this purpofe Nicholfon came over in July with five frigates and a bomb ketch; the colonies then had to raife their quotas; the New-Hampshire affembly ordered one hundred men, who were got ready as foon as poffible, and put under the command of Colonel Shadrach Walton. The whole armament failed from Bofton the eighteenth of September, and on the twentyfourth arrived at the place. The force now being equal to its reduction, Subercafe,

349

1709.

1710.

August. I.

1710.

Hutchinfon and Penhallow

July 22.

cafe, the governor, waited only the compliment of a few fhot and fhells as a decent pretence for a furrender; which was completed on the fifth of October, and Vetch was appointed governor of the place which in honor of the queen was called Annapolis.

While this expedition was in hand, and before the appointment of the commanders, New-Hampshire fustained an heavy lofs in the death of Col. Winthrop Hilton. This worthy officer being concerned in the masting business, and having feveral large trees felled about fourteen miles from home, went out with a party to peel the bark that the wood might not be injured by worms. While engaged in this bufinefs they were ambushed by a party of Indians, who at the first fire killed Hilton with two more, and took two; the reft being terrified, and their guns being wet, made no opposition, but escaped. The next day one hundred men marched in purfuit but difcovered only the mangled bodies of the dead. 'The enemy in their barbarous triumph had ftruck their hatchets into the colonel's brains, and left a lance in his heart. He was a gentleman " of good "temper, courage and conduct, refpected " and lamented by all that knew him," and Penhallow p. 58. and was buried with the honours due to his rank and character.

Flufhed with this fuccefs, they infolently appeared in the open road at Exeter, and took four children who were at their play. They alfo took John Wedgwood, and killed John Magoon near his brother's barn, a place which for three days he had vifited with a melancholy apprehenfion arifing from a dream that he fhould there be murdered.

The fame day that Hilton was killed, a company of Indians who had pretended friendſhip, who the year before had been peaceably converſant with the inhabitants of Kingſton, and ſeemed to be thirſting after the blood of the enemy, came into the town, and ambuſhing the road, killed Samuel Winſlow and Samuel Huntoon; they alſo took Philip Huntoon and Jacob Gilman, and carried them to Canada; where, after fome time, they purchaſed their own redemption by building a fawmill for the governor after the Engliſh mode.

MS Letter of Ward Clark to Prince.

The laft that fell this fummer was Jacob Garland, who was killed at Cochecho on his return from the public worfhip. As the winter approached, Colonel Walton with one hundred and feventy men traverfed the eaftern fhores, which the Indians ufually 1710.

351

1710.

ufually vifited at this feafon for the purpose of gathering clams. On an Island where the party was encamped, feveral Indians decoyed by their fmoke, and miftaking them for fome of their own tribe, came among them and were made prifoners. One of them was a fachem of Norridgwog, active, bold and fullen; when he found himfelf in the hands of enemies he would answer none of their questions, and laughed with fcorn at their threatening him with death. His wife, being an eye witnefs of the execution of the threatening, was fo intimidated as to make the difcoveries which the captors had in vain defired of the fachem; in confequence of which three were taken at the place of which she informed, and two more at Saco river, where alfo five were killed. This fuccefs, inconfiderable as it may appear, kept up the spirits of the people, and added to the lofs of the enemy who were daily diminishing by fickness and famine. In the fpring they renewed their ravages on the frontiers in fmall parties. Thomas Downs, John Church, and three more were killed at Cochecho; and on a fabbath day feveral of the people there fell into an ambush as they were returning from public worfhip. John Horn was wounded,

1711.

ed, and Humphry Fofs was taken; but, by the determined bravery of Lieutenant Heard, he was recovered out of the hands of the enemy. Walton with two companies marched to the ponds about the fifhing feafon; but the Indians had withdrawn, and nothing was to be feen but their deferted wigwams.

After the reduction of Port Royal Nicholfon went to England to folicit an expedition against Canada. The tory miniftry of Queen Anne, to the furprize of all the whigs in England and America, fell in with the propofal; and on the eighth of June Nicholfon came to Bofton with orders for the northern colonies to get ready their quotas of men and provision by the arrival of the fleet and army from Europe; which happened within fixteen days; and while the feveral governors were holding a confultation on the fubject of their orders. A compliance with them in fo fhort a time was impoffible; yet every thing that could be done was done; the nature of the fervice confpiring with the wifhes of the people, made the governments exert themfelves to the utmost. New-Hampshire raifed one hundred men, which was more than they could well fpare; one half of the militia being continually Aa

1711.

353

Penhallow p. 60. 354

1711.

tinually employed in guarding the frontiers. They also voted them fubfistence for one hundred and twenty fix days, befides providing for them on fhore before their embarkation. Two transports were taken up at eight shillings per month per ton; and artillery ftores were iffued from the fort. The colony forces formed two regiments under the command of Vetch and Walton. The army which came from England were feven veteran regiments of the Duke of Marlborough's army, and a battalion of marines, under the command of Brigadier-General Hill, which, joined with the New-England troops made a body of about fix thousand five hundred men, provided with a fine train of artillery. The fleet confifted of fifteen ships of war from eighty to thirty-fix guns, with forty transports and fix storeships under the command of Admiral Walker. A force fully equal to the reduction of Quebec.

Penhallow p. 64. Hutch.vol. 2. p. 190.

Coun. Rec.

The fleet failed from Bofton on the thirtieth of July; and a faft was ordered by Dudley to be kept on the laft Thurfday of that, and each fucceeding month, till the enterprize fhould be finished. This was an imitation of the conduct of the long parliament during the civil wars in the last century. But the fanguine hopes of fucces fuccefs which had been entertained by the nation and the colonies were all blafted in one fatal night. For, the fleet having advanced ten leagues into the river St. Lawrence, in the night of the twenty third of August, the weather being thick and dark, eight transports were wrecked on Egg-Ifland near the north fhore, and one thoufand people perifhed; among whom there was but one man who belonged to New-England. The next day the fleet put back, and were eight days beating down the river against an easterly wind which would in two days have carried them to Quebec. After rendezvoufing at Spanish river in the ifland of Cape Breton, and holding a fruitlefs confultation about annoying the French at Placentia, the expedition was broken up: the fleet returned to England, and the New-England troops to their homes. Loud complaints and heavy charges were made on this occafion; the ignorance of the pilots; the obstinacy of the admiral; the detention of the fleet at Bofton; its late arrival there; the want of feafonable orders; and the fecret intentions of the ministry, were all subjects of bitter altercation : but the mifcarriage was never regularly enquired into, and the voyage was finally fettled by the blowing up of the Dummer's defence & letter to a noble lord.

Octob. 9.

Aa2

1711.

HISTORY OF

1711. the admiral's fhip, with moft of his papers, and four hundred feamen, at Spithead.

> The failure of this expedition encouraged the Indians to harrafs the frontiers as foon as the feafon would permit. In April one Cunningham was killed at Exeter; Enfign Tuttle at Dover, and Jeremy Crommet at Oyster river; on one of the upper branches of this stream the enemy burned a faw-mill with a large quantity of boards. A fcouting party who went up the river Merrimack had the good fortune to furprize and kill eight Indians and recover a confiderable quantity of plunder, without the lofs of a man. The frontiers were well guarded; one half of the militia did duty at the garrifons and were ready to march at a minute's warning; a fcout of forty men kept ranging on the heads of the towns, and the like care was taken by fea, fpy-boats being employed in coafting from Cape Neddock to the Great Boar's-head. Notwithstanding this vigilance, fmall parties of the enemy were frequently feen. Stephen Gilman and Ebenezer Stevens were wounded at Kingfton, the former was taken and put to death. In July an ambush was discovered at Dover, but the enemy escaped; and while a party was gone in purfuit of them, two two children of John Waldron were taken, and for want of time to fcalp them, their heads were cut off. There being no man at that time in Heard's garrifon, a woman named Effher Jones mounted guard and with a commanding voice called fo loudly and refolutely as made the enemy think there was help at hand, and prevented farther mifchief.

356

1712.

June 3.

In autumn the news of the peace of Utrecht arrived in America; and on the 29th of October the fuspension of arms was proclaimed at Portfmouth. The Indians being informed of this event came in with a flag of truce to Captain Moody at Cafco, and defired a treaty; which the governor, with the council of each province, held at Portfmouth, where the chiefs and deputies of the feveral belligerent tribes, by a formal writing under hand and feal, acknowledged their perfidy, promised fidelity, renewed their allegiance, fubmitted to the laws, and begged the queen's pardon for their former mifcar-The frequent repetition of fuch riages. engagements and as frequent violations of them, had by this time much abated the fenfe of obligation on the one part, and of confidence on the other. But it being for the interest of both parties to be at peace, the event was peculiarly welcome. To 1713.

357

 $\overset{1712.}{\backsim}$

July II.

Penhallow p. 72, 80. 1713.

353

1714. ~~ To preferve the dependence of the Indians, and to prevent all occafions of complaint, private traffic with them was forbidden and truck houfes established at the public expence; and the next fummer a ship was fitted out by both provinces, and fent to Quebec, where an exchange of prifoners was effected.

During the whole of this long war, Ufher behaved as a faithful fervant of the crown; frequently coming into the province by Dudley's direction, and fometimes refiding in it feveral months, enquiring into the state of the frontiers and garrifons, vifiting them in perfon, confulting with the officers of militia about the proper methods of defence and protection, and offering his fervice on all occafions: Yet his auftere and ungracious manners, and the intereft he had in Allen's claim, effectually prevented him from acquiring that popularity which he feems to have deferved. He was folicitous to fupport the dignity of his commiffion; but could never prevail with the affembly to fettle a falary upon him. The council generally paid his travelling expences by a draught on the treasury, which never amounted to more than five pounds for each journey, until he came from Bofton to proclaim the the acceffion of King George; when in a fit of loyalty and good humour they gave him ten pounds, which ferved as a precedent for two or three other grants. He often complained, and fometimes in harfh and reproachful terms of their neglect; and once told them that his " Negro fer-" vants were much better accommodated " in his house than the queen's governor " was in the queen's fort."

Dudley had the good fortune to be more popular. Befide his attention to the general interest of the province and his care for its defence, he had the particular merit of favouring the views of those who were most strongly opposed to Allen's claim; and they made him amends by promoting in the affembly addreffes to the queen, defending his character, when it was attacked and praying for his continuance in office when petitions were prefented for his removal. One of these addreffes was in one thousand feven hundred and fix, and another in one thousand feven hundred and feven, in both which they reprefent him as a "prudent, careful and faithful governor," and fay they "are perfectly " fatisfied with his disposal of the people, and " their arms and the public money." Addref-" festo the crown were very frequent during this female reign. Scarce a year paffed without without one or two; they either congratulated her majefty on her victories in Europe, or petitioned for arms and military flores for their defence, or for fhips and troops to go againft Canada, or reprefented their own poverty or Dudley's merits, or thanked her majefty for her care and protection, and for interpoling in the affair of Allen's fuit and not fuffering it to be decided againft them. A good harmony fubfifted between the governor and people, and between the two branches of the legiflature, during the whole of this adminiftration.

Coun. Rec.

1714.

 \sim

On the acceffion of King George a change was expected in the government, and the affembly did what they could to prevent it by petitioning the king for Dudley's continuance. But it being now a time of peace, and a number of valuable officers who had ferved with reputation in the late wars being out of employ; intereft was made for their obtaining places of profit under the crown. Colonel Elifeus Burges who had ferved under General Stanhope was, by his recommendation, commiffioned governor of Maffachuletts and New-Hampshire; and by the fame intereft George Vaughan Efq. then in London, was made lieutenant governor of the latter province; he arrived and published his commission on the thirteenth of October. Usher

Council Rec.

1715.

1714.

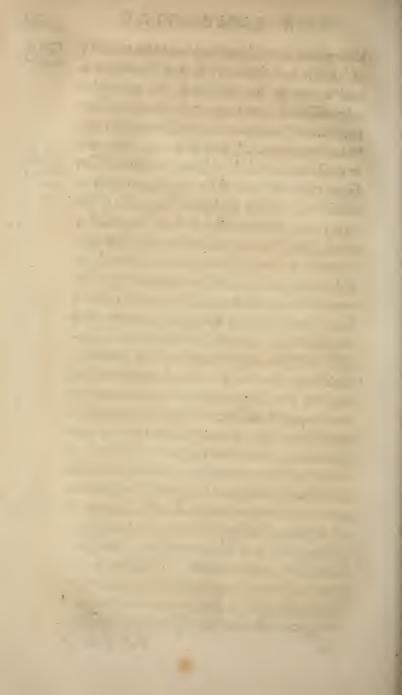

Usher had fome fcruples about the validity of it as he had formerly had of Partridge's, and wrote on the fubject to the affembly, who affured him that on infpection they had found Vaughan's commission "ftrong " and authentic;" and that his own was " null and void." Upon his difmission from office he retired to his elegant feat at Medford, where he spent the rest of his days, and died on the fifth of September 1726, in the seventy-eighth year of his age.

Burges wrote a letter to the affembly in July, in which he informed them of his appointment, and of his intention to fail for America in the following month. But Sir William Ashurst, with Jeremy Dummer the Maffachufetts agent, and Jonathan Belcher, then in London, apprehending that he would not be an acceptable perfon to the people of New-England, prevailed with him for the confideration of one thousand pounds sterling, which Dummer and Belcher generoufly advanced, to refign his commiffion; and Colonel Samuel Shute was appointed in his ftead to the command of both provinces. He arrived in New-Hampshire and his commission was published the seventeenth of October 1716. Dudley being thus fuperfeded, retired to his family-feat at Roxbury, where he died in 1720, in the feventy-third year of his age. APPEN-

361

Council and Affembly's Rec.

Hutch. Vol. 11. p. 215.

A P P E N D I X.

No. I.

Copy of a deed from four Indian fagamores to John Whelewright and others. 1629.

W HEREAS We the fagamores of Penacook, Pentucket, Squomfquot and Nuchawanack are inclined to have the Englifh inhabit amongft us as they are amongft our countrymen in the Maffachufetts Bay; by which means we hope in time to be ftrengthened againft our enemy the Tareteens who yearly doth us damage. Likewife being perfuaded that it will be for the good of us and our pofterity, &c. To that end have at a general meeting at Squomfquot on Pifcattaqua river, We the aforefaid fagamores with a univerfal confent of our fubjects, do covenant and agree with the Englifh as followeth:

NOW know all men by thefe prefents that we Paffaconawave fagamore of Penecook, Runnaawitt fagamore of Pentuckit, Wahangnonawittt fagamore of Squomfquot, and Rowls fagamore of Nuchawanack, for a competent valuation in goods already received in coats, thirts and kettles, and alfo for the confiderations aforefaid do according to the limits and bounds hereafter granted, give, grant, bargain, fell, releafe, ratify and confirm unto John Wheelwright of the Maffachufetts Bay late of England, a minister of the gospel, Augustine Story, Thomas Wite, William Wentworth* and Thomas Levet, all of the Maffachufetts Bay in New-England, to them, their heirs and affigns for ever, all that part of the main land bounded by the river of Pifcattaqua and the river of Meremak, that is to fav, to begin at Nuchawanack falls in Pifeattaqua river aforefaid, and fo down faid river to the fea, and fo alongft the fea fhore to,

* William Wentworth was one of the first fettlers at Exeter, and after the breaking up of their combination for government he removed to Dover and became a ruling elder in the church there. In 1689 he was remarkably inflrumental of faving Heard's garrifon, as is related in the proper place. After this he officiated for feveral years as a preacher at Exeter and other places, and died in a very advanced age at Dover in 1697, leaving a numerous posterity. From him the feveral GOVERNORS of that name are defeended. He was a very uleful and good man. to Merramack river, and fo up along faid river to the falls at Pantuckit aforefaid, and from faid Pantucket falls upon a north-west line twenty English miles into the woods and from thence to run upon a streight line north-east and fouth-west till meet with the main rivers that runs down to Pantuckett falls and Nuchawanack falls, and the faid rivers to be the bounds of the faid lands from the thwart line or head line to the aforefaid falls and the main chanell of each river from Pentuckitt and Nuhawanack falls to the maine fea to be the fide bounds and the main fea between Pifcattaqua river and Meramack river to be the lower bounds, and the thwart or head line that runs from river to river to be the upper bounds; together with all islands within faid bounds, as also the Isles of Shoals fo called by the English, together with all profits, advantages and appurtenances whatfoever to the faid tract of land belonging or in any wife appertaining, referving to our felves liberty of making ufe of our old planting land, as also free liberty of hunting, fishing and fowling; and it is likewife with thefe provifoes following, viz. First, the faid John Wheelwright shall within ten years after the date hereof fet down with a company of Englifh and begin a plantation at Squomfquott falls in Pifcattaque river aforefaid. Secondly, That what other inhabitants shall come and live on faid tract of land amongst them from time to time and at all times shall have and enjoy the fame benefits as the faid Wheelwright aforefaid. Thirdly, That if at any time there be a number of people amongst them that have a mind to begin a new plantation, that they be encouraged fo to do, and that no plantation exceed in lands above ten English miles fquare or fuch a proportion as amounts to ten miles square. Fourthly, That the aforefaid granted lands are to be divided into townships as people increase and appear to inhabit them, and that no lands shall be granted to any particular perfons but what shall be for a township, and what lands within a township is granted to any particular perfons to be by vote of the major part of the inhabitants legally and orderly fettled in faid township. Fifthly, For managing and regulating and to avoid contentions amongst them, they are to be under the government of the colony of the Maffachufetts their neighbours and to obferve their laws and orders until they have a fettled government amongst themselves. Sixthly, We the aforefaid fagamores and our fubjects are to have free liberty within the aforefaid granted tract of land of fifhing, fowling, hunting and planting, &c. Seventhly and laftly, Every township within the aforefaid limits or tract of land that hereafter shall be fettled shall pay to Passaconaway our chief fagamore that now is and n

iii

and to his fucceffors forever, if lawfully demanded, one coat of trucking cloth a year, and every year, for an acknowledgment, and alfo shall pay to Mr. John Wheelwright aforefaid his heirs and fucceffors forever, if lawfully demanded, two bufhels of Indian corn a year for and in confideration of faid Wheelwrights great pains and care, as alfo for the charges he hath been at to obtain this our grant for himfelf and thole aforementioned and the inhabitants that shall hereafter settle in townships on the aforefaid granted premiffes. And we the aforefaid fagamores, Paffaconaway fagamore of Penecook, Runaawitt fagamore of Pentuckitt, Wahangnonawitt fagamore of Squomfquot, and Rowles fagamore of Nuchawanack do by thefe profents ratify and confirm all the afore granted and bargained premiffes and tract of land aforefaid, excepting and referving as afore excepted and referved and the provifoes aforefaid fulfill'd, with all the meadow and marfh ground therein, together with all the mines, minerals of what kind or nature foever, with all the woods, timber and timber trees, ponds, rivers, lakes, runs of water or water courfes thereunto belonging, with all the freedom of fishing, fowling and hunting as our felves, with all other benefits, profits, priviledges and appurtenances whatfoever thereunto of all and every part of the faid tract of land belonging or in any ways appertaining unto him the faid John Wheelwright, Augustine Storer, Thomas Wight, William Wentworth and Thomas Levet, and their heirs forever as aforefaid, TO HAVE AND TO HOLD the fame as their own proper right and interest without the least disturbance, molestation, or trouble of us, our heirs, execrs & adminrs to & with the faid John Wheelwright, Augustine Storer, Thomas Wight, William Wentworth and Thomas Levit their heirs, exects. admints. & affigns, & other the English that shall inhabit there & their heirs and affigns forever shall warrant, maintain and defend. IN WITNESS whereof we have hereunto fet our hands and feals the feventeenth day of May 1629, and in the fifth year of King Charles his reign over England, &c.

PASSACONA	WAY, 8 mark,	(Seal.)
RUNAAWIT	r, + mark,	(Seal.)
WAHANGNONAWITT, + mark,		(Seal.)
		(Seal.)
Signed, Scaled, and Delivered in prefence of us	Memorandum. On th	e 17th
WADERGASCOM, ‡ mark.	day of May, one thoufand fix
MISTONABITE, om mark.	hundred twenty and nine, in

JOHN OLDHAM.

SAM. SHARPE.

hundred twenty and nine, in fifth year of the reign of our J fovereign Lord Charles, king of of England, Scotland, France and Ireland, defender of the faith, &c. Wahangnonaway fagamore of Squamfquott in Pifcattaqua river, did in behalf of himfelf and the other fagamores aforementioned then prefent, deliver quiet and peaceable poffeffion of all the lands mentioned in the within written deed unto the within named John Wheelwright for the ends within mentioned, in prefence of us Walter Neal governor, George Vaughan factor, and Ambrofe Gibbons trader, for the company of Laconia, Richard Vines, governor, and Richard Bonighton affiltant, of the plantation at Saco; Thomas Wiggin agent, and Edward Hilton fleward, of the plantation of Hilton's Point, and was figned, fealed, and delivered in our prefence. In witnefs whereof we have hereunto fet our hands the day and year abovewritten. Richd. Vines, Wa. Neale,

Tho. Wiggin, Edward Hilton,

Rich. Bonighton, George Vaughan, Ambrose Gibbons.

Recorded according to the original found on the ancient files for the county of York, this 28th day of Jan. 1713.

per JOS. HAMMOND, Reg.

A true copy from York county records of deeds, &c. lib. 8. fol. 16. &c. Att. DAN. MOULTON, Reg.

Corrected by a copy on file in the fuperior court of New-Hampshire, in the cafe of Allen vs Waldron; which copy is attefted by the above named Jos. Hammond.

No. II.

An original letter from Thomas Eyre one of the adventurers or company of Laconia to Mr. Gibbons their factor.

Mr. Gibbins, London the last of May, 1631. YOURS of the 8th April 1630, from Plimouth I receiv-ed and thereby tooke notice of your entertaining Roger Knight; and here I prefent his wife 20 s. pr. quarter at your defire and 3 l. per quarter to yours. I hope by this they are both with you according to your defire. I with all your wives with you, and that fo many of you as defire wives had fuch as they defire; for the adventurers defire not to be troubled with quarterly payments.

Your next to me is dated the 21ft of July laft at Pascataquacke, I take notice of your complaints for want of the trade goods, and fomuch as lieth in me it shall be otherwife, especially if you fend us returnes, doubt you not but that you shall be supplied from time to time unto your owne contents.

Your 3d lie to me is dated the 14th of August, by which I perceive perceive divers of the commodities and provisions which you carried with you in the barke Warwicke, were not to your liking for which I am forry You know the trouble we had. I could not looke to Mr. Olden's and all befides. I hope by the Pide-Cowe you find it otherwife. I pray write me how you like the hatchetts fent you by that fhip and how all goeth.

iv

I like it well that your governor will have a flocke of bords at all times readie. I hope you will find fomething to relade both the Pide-Cowe and the Warwicke. I will now put on the fending of you the moddell of a faw-mill that you may have one going.

Your wife and children, Roger Knight's wife and one wife more we have alredy fent you, and more you shall have as you write for them.

Another lre I have from you of the 14th August, in which you write for another Mason. Wee have had enough to doe, to goe so farre forwards as we have, as Capt. Keyes can tell you, now we begine to take hearte agayne, but the sight of returnes will be that which will indeede put life into us.

Among my New-England records I find your lre unto Capt. Mafon of the 14th August last, wherein you give a good account of your times spent from the first of June untill then, as also of the manner of your trade which was to Capt. Mason's liking. We hope you will find out fome good mines, which will be welcome newes unto us.

By Mr. Glover we reed. Ires from Capt. Neale, written as we think about the end of March laft, write me I pray, what winter you had, and how you had your healthes and why Capt. Neale went not in Septem. laft to difcover the lakes, as he wrote he would, and why you did not write by that conveyance.

By the barke Warwicke we fend you a factor to take charge of the trade goods; alfo a foldier for difcovrie &c.

Thus I comend you, and your wife, who by this I hope is with you to the protection of the almightie.

Your loving friend,

Kept uutill the 7th of June.

THO. EYRE.

No. III.

An original letter from the company to Gibbins.

Mr. Ambrofe Gibbons, London 5th Decemb 1632. Y OUR fundrie letters we have received. Wee doe take notice of your care and paines in our plantation and doe with that others had bine that way the fame that you are and will wee hope foe continew. The adventurers here have bine foe difcouraged by reafon of John Gibbes ill dealing in his fifth-

ing

ing voiage, as alfoe by the fmall returnes fent hither by Capt. Neal Mr. Herbert or any of their factors as that they have noe defire to proceed any farther, untill Capt. Neale come hither to confer with them, that by conferrence with him they may fettle things in a better order. Wee have written unto Capt. Neale to difmife the houfhold, onlie fuch as will or canne live of themfelves may ftay upon our plantation in fuch convenient places as Captain Neale Mr. Godfrie and you fhall thinke fitt; and after conference had with Captain Neale they fhall have a reafonable quantity of land graunted unto them by deed.

Wee praie you to take care of our houfe at Newichwannick and to looke well to our vines, alfo you may take fome of our fwine and goates, which wee pray you to preferve. Wee have committed the cheife care of our houfe at Pafcattaway to Mr. Godfrie and written unto Mr. Warnerton to take care of our houfe at Strawberry-bancke. Our defire is that Mr. Godfrie, Mr. Warnerton and you fhould joyne loveinglie together in all things for our good, and to advife us what our best courfe will be to doe another yeare.

You defire to fettle yourfelf upon Sanders Point. The adventurers are willing to pleafure you not only in this, in regard of the good report they have heard of you from tyme to tyme, but alfoe after they have conferred with Captain Neale they determyne fome further good towards you for your further incouridgment.

Wee defire to have our fifhermen increafed, whereof wee have written unto Mr. Godfrye. Wee thank you for affifting John Raymond, wee pray you fill to be helpful to him that fo he may difpatch and come to us with fuch retourne as he hath, and if he hath any of his trade goods remayning unfold wee have willed him to leave them with you and we doe hereby pray you to receive them into your cuftody and to put them off with what conveniency you canne, and to fend us the retournes by the first fhipp that comes. Thus we commend you and your wife to the protection of the almightye.

> John Mason, The Henry Gardiner, The

Your loving friends, Tho. Wannerton, ner, Tho. Eyre, for my children.

No. IV.

Geo. Griffith,

Copy of a letter from Gibbins to the company.

A FTER my umble duty remembred unto your worfhips, I pray for your good health and profperity. Thefe are certifying your worfhip for the goods I have received from you.

vi

you. I have delivered unto Mr. John Raymon 76lb and 4 ounfes of beaver, 10 otters, 6 mufquafhes and on martin more, that Captain Neale had 358lb and ii ounzes of beaver and otter, 17 martins, on black fox fkin, on other fox fkin, 3 racoon fkins, 14 mufquafhes two of them with ftones. Mr. Raymon's prefent departing and the intermixing of all the trade goods in my care until Mr. Vaughan com I cannot give you any fatisfaction for the account of trade. I did advife Mr. Raymon to returne with all fpeede unto you. Your letters I received the 7th of June. At larg I will write if God wil by the next. Thus taking my leave I comit your worfhip to Almighty God. Your worfhip's at command,

From Newichwanicke this 24th of June 1633. AMBROSE GIBBINS.

No. V.

Copy of another from Gibbins to the company.

Newichwanicke, July 13, 1633. R IGHT honourable, right worfhippful and the reft, my humble fervis rembred. Your letter dated the 5th of December and Mr. Ares letter the third of April I received the feventh of June. The detaining of the former letter hath put you to a great charge in the plantation. For my care and paines I have not thought it much although I have had very little encouradgement from you and here. I do not doubt of your good will unto mee. For your fifting, you complain of Mr. Gibbes: A Londoner is not for fifting, neither is there any amity betwixt the Weft cuntrimen and them. Briflo or Barnftable is very convenient for your fifting fhipes. It is not enough to fit out fhipes to fifth but they mult be fure (God wil) to be at their fifting place the beginning of February and not to come to the land when other men have half their viage.

Mr. Wanerton hath the charge of the houfe at Pafcatawa and hath with him William Cooper, Rafe Gee, Roger Knight, and his wife, William Dermit and on boy. For your houfe at Newichwanicke; I feeing the neceffity wil doe the beft I can there and elfewhere for you until I hear from you againe. Advife I have fent but not knowing your intentes I cannot wel enlarge but I refer you to Mr. Herbert aud Mr. Vaughan. For my fettlement at Sanders-Point and the further good you intend me I humbly thank you I fhall do the beft I can to be grateful. J have taken into my handes all the trade goods that remains of John Raymon's and Mr. Vaughan's and will with what convenience I may put them of. Tsu complain of your your returnes; you take the coorfe to have little; a plantation must be furnished with cattle and good hir'd hands and necessaries for them and not thinke the great lookes of men and many words wil be a meanes to raife a plantation. Those that have been here this three year fom of them have neither meat money nor clothes, a great difparagement. I shall not need to speak of this, you shall hear of it by others. For myfelf, my wife and child and four men we have but half a barrel of corn; beefe and porke I have not had but on peefe this three months, nor, beare this four months; for I have for two and twenty months: had but two barrels of beare and two barrels and four boofnel of malt, our number commonly hath bin ten. I nor the fervantes have neither money nor clothes, I have bin as fparing. as I could, but it will not doe. These four men with me is. Charles Knell, Thomas Clarke, Steven Kidder, and Thomas Crockitt, three of them is to have for their wages until the first of March four pounds per peefe and the other for the yeare fix pounds which in your behalf I have promifed to fatisfy in money or bever at ten shillings per pound. If there were necessarys for them for clothing there would not bee much for them to receave. You may perhaps think that fewer men would ferve ine but I have fometimes on C [one hundred] or more Iudians and far from neybors: Thefe that I have I can fet to pale in ground for corne and garden. I have digged a wel within the palizado, where is good water, I have that to close with timber. More men I could have and more employ, but I reft thus until I heare from you. The vines that were planted will com to little, they prosper not in the ground they were set, them that groo natural are veri good of divers forts. I have fent you a note of the beaver taken by me at Newichwanicke, and how it hath gon from me. George Vaughan hath a note of all the trade goodes in my cuttody of the old ftore John Ramon's and George Vaughan's accomtes, but the beaver beinge difpofed of before I could make the devident I canot fee but it must be all onpackt and be devided by you. The governor departed from the plantation the fifteenth of July in the morning. So for this time I end, committing you to the protection of the Almighty and ever reft your loving fervant, AMBROSE GIBBINS.

No. VI.

Copy of a letter from Neal and Wiggen relating to a division of the lands at Pascataqua, 1633.

Much honoured,

I N obedience to your commands have furvaied the river from the mouth of the harbor to Squamfcutt falls, liquife from the

the harbor's mouth by the fea fide to the Maffachuletts bounds, and find that the bounds of your pattents will not aford more than for two towns in the river of Pafcataway and the remainder will make another good towne having much falt marfh in it. And becaufe you would have foure townes named as you defired wee have treated with a gentleman who has purchafed a trackt of land of the Indyans at Squamfcutt falls, and your land running up to the faid falls on one fide of the river from the falls about a mile downward, faid gentlemen having a mind to faid land on your fide to a certain crike and one mile bacward from the river which we agreed on and the crike is called Weelewright's, the gentleman's name being Weelewright and he was to name faid plantation (when fettled) Exeter. And the other two towns in the river, the one North-ham and Portfmouth the other. Bounded as followeth, viz. Portfmouth runes from the harbor's month by the fea fide to the entrance of a little river between two hed lands which we have given the names of the Little Bore's-hed, and the Grete Bore's-hed, and from the mouth of that little river to go on a ftrait line to the aforefaid creeke which we have named Weelewrights creeke and from thens down the river to the harbor's mouth where it began. And North-ham is the bounds of all the land of Hilton's Point fide. And the other land from the little river between the two Boores-Heds to run by the fea till it meets with the line between the Maffachufetts and you, and fo to run from the fea by faid Maffathufetts line into the woods eight miles and from thence atwart the woods to meete with Portfmouth line neere Wheleright's creeke and that tracte of land to be called Hampton. So that their is foure towns named as you defired but Exeter is not within the bounds of your pattents. But the grete dificulty is the agreement about the dividing line between the pattent of the twenty thoufand acres belonging to the company of Laconyah and the pattent of Bluddy poynt the river running fo intrycate, and Bluddy poynt pattent bounds from thence to Squamfcutt falls to run three miles into the woods from the water fide. But for your better understanding thereof wee have fent you a draft of it according to our best skill of what we know of it at prefent, and have drawn a dividing line between the two pattents, fo that Portfmouth is part of both pattents and Hampton we apprehend will be holly in the twenty thousand acres pattent, and North-ham is the bounds of Hilton's point pattent. If what wee have don be to your likinge wee shall think our time well spent and what further commands you will pleafe to lay on us we shall readily obeye bb 2 10 to the utmost of our power. Wee humbly take leve and fubferibe ourfelves, Your devoted and most humble fervants, North-ham on Pascataway river, in ? WALTER NELE,

New-England, 13 August, 1633. S THOMAS WIGGIN. Superferibed, To John Mason Efg. governor of Portsmouth to be communicated to the pattentes of Laconiah and Hilton's point, humbly prefent in London.

Wee under written being of the government of the province of Maine doe affirm that the above letter written and fent by Walter Nele and Thomas Wiggin and directed to John Mafon Efg. governor of Portfmouth to be communicated to the pattentes of Laconiah and Hilton's point, is a trew copia compared with the originall. And further wee due affirme that there was foure grete gunes brought to Pafcataqua which ware given by a merchant of London for the defence of the river, and at the fame time the Earle of Warwicke, Sr Ferdenando Gorges, Capt. John Mason and the reft of the pattentees sent an order to Cap. Walter Nele and Captn. Thomas Wiggin ther agents. and governor at Pafcataway to make choife of the moft convenient place in the faid river to make a fortefecatyon for the defence thereof, and to mount those foure gunes giveen to the place, which accordingly was done by Capt Walter Nele and Capt. Thomas Wiggin and the pattentes fervants, and a draft was fent of the place that they had made choice of to the faid earle and company, and the draft did containe all the necke of land in the north effe fide of the grete island that makes the grete harbor, and they gave it the name of Fort-poynt, and allotted it fo far backe into the island about a bow-shoat to a grete high rocke whereon was intended in time to fet the principall forte.

That the above is all truth wee affirme, and by the defire of Capt. Walter Nele and Capt. Thos. Wiggen wee have ordered this wrighting to ly in our files of records of their doings. therein. In witnefs whereof wee have hereunto fett our hands and feles at Gorgeana, in the province of Maine, in New-England, 20th August 1633.

RICH. VINES, (Seal.) HENRY JOCELYN, (Seal.) No. VII.

An original letter from Sir F. Gorges and Capt. Mafon to Meffrs Wannerton and Gibbins.

. Mr. Wannerton and Mr. Gibbons,

HESE are to let you know that wee with the confent of the reft of our partners have made a division of all our our land lying on the north-east fide of the harbor and river of Pafcattaway; of the quantities of which lands and bounds ' agreed upon for every man's part we fend you a coppie of the draft, deliving your furtherance with the advice of Capt. Norton and Mr. Godfrey to fet out the lynes of division betwixt our lands and the lands of our partners next adjoining, becaufe we have not onlie each of us fnipped people prefent to plant upon our owne landes at our owne charge, but have given direction to invite and authoritie to receive fuch others as may be had to be tenants, to plant and live there for the more speedie peopling of the countrie. And whereas there is belonging unto me Sr Ferdinando Gorges, and unto Capt. Mafon for himfelf and for Mr. John Cotton and his deceased brother Mr. William Cotton, both whofe interefts Capt. Mafon hath bought, the one halfe of all matters mentioned in the inventorie of houfhold fluffe and implements left in truft with you by Capt. Neale, whereunto you have fubfcribed your names and whereof a coppie is herewith fent, we defire you to caufe an equal division as neere as poffiblie may to be made of all the faied matters menconed in the inventorie in kinde, or if fome of them cannot be fo divided then the on halfe to be made equall to the other in valew of all the faied matters, except the cattell and fuites of apparell and fuch other things as belong perticularly to Capt Mafon, and to deliver the faid one halfe of all the faied matters foe to be divided, unto Mr. Henry Jocelyn for the ufe of our plantations, taking an inventory thereof under his hand of all you shall foe deliver hime, and making certificate to us thereof. And for your foe doeing this shall be your fuffitient warrant and di charge. And foe we reft,

T

Your verie lovinge friends,

Portfmouth, Maye 5, FERDIN GORGE, 1634. JOHN MASON.

No. VIII.

An original letter from Capt. Mafon to Gibbins. Mr. Gibbins,

T HESE people and provisions which I have now fent with Mr. Jocelyne are to fett upp two mills upon my own division of landes lately agreed upon betwixt our adventurers; but I thinke not any of them will adventure this yeare to the plantation befides Sr Ferdinando Gorges and myfelf, for which I am forrye in that fo good a busines (albeit hitherto it hath bene unprofitable) should be fubject to fall to the ground. Therefore I have strayned myfelfe to doe this at this prefent prefent, and could have wifhed that the reft would have joyned to have fent you fome provisions for trade and support of the place, but that faileing I have directed to you as a token from myfelfe one hogshead of mault to make you some beare. The fervants with you and fuch others as remaine upon the companies chardge are to be discharged and payed their wages out of the flocke of beaver in your hands at the rate of 12 s. the pound, whereof I thinke the company will write you more at large. And wee have agreed to devide all our movables mentioned in the inventory that Capt. Neale brought home, which were left in truft with you and Mr. Wannerton. Ι bought Mr. Cotton's and his brother's parte of all their adventures; fo that the halfe of all belonges to Sr Ferdinando Gorges and myfelfe, and of that halfe three quarters wil be dewe to me and one quarter to Sr Ferdinando. These things being equally divided they are to be delivered to Mr. Joceline, my three partes of the halfe, and the other fourth to whom Sr Ferdinando shall appointe. And you must afford my people fome houfe roome in Newichewannocke houfe, and the cowes and goates which are all mine, and 14 fwine with their increafe, fome ground to be uppon till wee have fome place provided upon my new divided land, or that you receive my further order. A copie of the division of the landes is herewith fent unto you.

The flockinges and the mault and the fuites of cloathes and fuggar and raylinges and wine that was delivered by Mr. Bright and Mr. Lewes I have not received any fatisfaction for, wherein I must crave your helpe and fuch fatisfaction as may be fent by this shipp.

The christall fioanes you fent are of little or no valew unlefs they were fo great to make drinking cuppes or fome other workes, as pillers for faire lookeinge glasses or for garnishinge of rich cabinets. Good iron or lead oare I should like better of if it could be found.

I have difburfed a great deale of money in your plantation and never received one penny, but hope if there were once a difcoverie of the lakes that I fhould in fome reafonable time be reimburfed again. I pray you helpe the mr what you can to fome of the beft iron floane for ballaft, and in cafe he want other ladeinge to fill the fhipp upp with flockes of cyprefs wood and cedar. Let me hear from you of all matters neceffary, and wherein I maye doe you any pleafure I fhall be reddie, and fo with my heartie commendations, I reft your verie loveing friend, PortImouth, May 5th, 1634. JOHN MASON.

(Received 10th July, 1634.)

No. IX,

No. IX.

Aufwer to the foregoing.

SIR, Y OUR worfhip have done well in fetting forward your plantacon, and for your milles they will prove beneficial unto you, by God's affiltance. I would you had taken this coorfe fooner, for the marchants I fhall be very cautyoufe how I deale with any of them while I live. But God's will be done. I and the world doth judge that I could not in thefe my dayes have fpent my time for noethinge. For their fending trade and fupport I defire it not. I have fupported but now fonke under my burthen, the more I thinke on this, the more is my griefe.

I have received the hogfd. of mault that you fent me, giveing you humble thanks for the fame. The fervants that were with me are difcharged and payd their wages for the yeare paft and I have delivered unto Mr. Wannerton 43lb. of beaver to pay those that were with him for the year patt. For the paying of the fervants there old wages or the dividing of the goods I expect a general letter, if not, then to heare further from your worthippe. Your carpenters are with me and I will further them the best I can. Capt. Neale appoynted me two of your goats to keepe, at his departinge, I praife God they are 4. Of the goods that Mr. Bright left I onely recd. of Capt. Neale 4 bushells of mault and at feveral times 8 gallons of facke, and from Mr. Wannerton 7 bufiells and 1 peck of mault, 5 lb. and 1 of fugar and 3 pr. of children flockings and 97 lb of beefe which was of an old cow that Mr. Wannerton killed, being doubtfull that the would not live over the winter. For these I will pay Mr. Jocelin for you.

I percieve you have a great mynd to the lakes, and I as great a will to affif you. If I had 2 horfes and 3 men with me I would by God's helpe foon refolve you of the fituation of it, but not to live there myfelfe.

The Pide-Cow arrived the 8th of Julie, the 13th day fhe caft anchor fome halfe a mile from the falls, the 18th day the fhippe unladen, the 19th fell downe the river, the 22d day the carpenters began about the mill, the 5th of August the iron floane taken in the fhippe. There is of 3 forts, on fort that the myne doth cast fourth as the tree doth gum, which is fent in a sundit. On of the other fortes we take to be very rich, there is great store of it. For the other I know not; but may it pleafe you to take notice of the waight and measure of every fort, before it goeth into the furnace and what the stone of fuch weight and and meafure will yeeld in iron. This that 'e take to be the beft flone is one mile to the fouthward of the great house*, it is fome 200 rodd in length 6 foote wide, the depth we know not, for want of tools for that purpose we tooke onely the furface of the mine.

I have paled in a piece of ground and planted it. If it pleafe God to fend us a drie time I hope there will be 3 or 10 quarters of corne. You have heare at the great houfe 9 cowes, I bull, 4 calves of the laft yeare and 9 of this yeare; they prove very well, farre better than ever was expected, they are as good as your ordinary cattel in England, and the goats prove fome of them very well both for milk and breed. If you did fend a fhippe for the Weftern Iflands of fix fcore tunne or thereabouts for cowes and goates it would be profitable for you. A flocke of iron worke to be put away with your boardes from the mill will be good, nayles, (pikes, lockes, hinges, iron works for boats and pinaces, twine canvis, needles and cordage, pitch and tarre, graples, ankers, and neceffarys for that purpofe.

Sr, I have written unto Mr. John Round to repair unto your worfhip; he is a filver fmith by his trade but hath fpent much time and means about iron, may it pleafe you to fend for him, he dwelleth in Mogul flreet, if you are acquainted with any finer or mettle man enquire of him and as you fee caufe fend for him, he is well feene in all mineralls; if you deale with him he will give you a good light for your proceedings.

The 6th of August, the shippe ready to fet fayle for Saco to load cloave bords and pipe staves. A good husband with his wife to tend the cattle and to make butter and cheefe will be profitable, for maides they are soone gone in this country. For the rest I hope Mr. Jocelyn for your own particulars will fatisfye you for I have not power to examen it. This with my humble fervice to your worship, I rest, Newichawanock, Your ever loving fervant, the 6th of August, 1634. AMBROSE GIBBINS.

No. X.

An original letter from G. Vaughan to Mr. Gibbins.

Mr. Gibbens, Bofton, Aug. 20, 1634. W E only wait for a faire wind. I fhall acquaint Mr. Mafon and the reft of the owners fully of what you and I have formerly difcourfl, and if they give mee incouradgment hope fhall fee you againe the next yeare. Lookeing over my papers found the inclosed, it being the divifyon of the townes,

• The great house flood opposite to the house of Mr. Temple Knight.

townes, and the copia of what Capt. Nele and Capt. Wiggens wroat hoome to the pattentes of Laconiah and Hilton's Point. It may be of fom ufe to you hereafter, therefore fent it you, lefte Capt. Wiggens frould make another blufter. Which with my kind love to you and your fpoufe and little Beck,

> I am your affured frend, GEORGE VAUGHAN.

No. XI.

Another from the fame.

Loving frend Gibbens, London, 10th April, 1636. TATEE put into Ireland goinge home, and there was taken fike and lefte behind, and laye fo long before I got well that it was the latter end of December lalle before I got to London, and Mr. Majon was ded. But I fpoke with Sr Ferdinando Gorges and the other owners, but they gave me no incouradgment for New-England. I acquainted them fully of what you and I difcouried, but they were quite could in that matter, Mr. Mafon being ded and Sr Ferdinando minding only his one divityon. He teles me he is a geting a pattente for it from the king from Pafcataqua to Sagadehocke, and that betwene Meremacke and Pifcataqua he left for Mr. Mafon, who if hee had lived would a tooke a pattent for that alfo, and fo I fupofe the affairs of Laconia is ded alfo. I intend to goe for the Elle Indyes, a frend of mine have made mee a very good proffer and I thinke to take up with it. Which is what offers at prefent. Thus with my kind love to you and your wife and daughter, I am your loving frend,

GEORGE VAUGHAN.

N. B. The ten preceding papers are in the recorder's office for Rockingham county.

No. XII.

Copy of a report of a Committee of Reference on the petition of Rob. Mafon, Edward Godfrey, and others to the king, [in 1661.] To the Kinges most excellent Majellie,

A CCORDING to your majeflies reference upon the petition of Robert Mafon, Edward Godfrey, and others, hereunto annexed, bearing date at Whitehall the feventeenth of November 1660, wee have heard the claimes and complaints of the peticoners, and alfo fummoned by procefs publicquely executed att the Exchange on the 21ft day of January laft againft all perfons interefted in that bufinefs, but none appeared but Capt. Jno. Leverett, who acknowledged that formerly ly hee was commiffionated as an agent of the corporacon of Bofton in New-England, but that now he had noe authority to appeare or act on their behalf.

Upon producing of divers letters pattents and examinacon of witneffes, wee finde, That Capt. Jno. Mafon, grandfather to Robert Malon one of the peticoners, and Edward Godfrey another of the peticoners, by virtue of feveral letters pattents under the great feale of England granted unto them and others by your majefties late royal father, by themfelves and their affignes have been in actual and quiet poffeffion of feveral tracts, parfells and divisions of land in New-England, as in and by the faid letters patents is particularly expressed, and that the faid Capt. Ino. Malon and the faid Edward Godfrey did expend and lay out confiderable fums of money in fettling plantacons and collonys there; That the faid Edward Godfrey has lived there for five and twenty yeares, having undergone and difcharged the office of governor of the province of Mayne with much reputacon of integrity and juffice, endeavouring the regulacon and government of those partes where he lives according to the known and fettled lawes of this kingdome; That notwithstanding, the faid Edward Godfrey has not only been turned out of his faid place of governor, butt has been utterly outed and dispossessed of his lands and estate in that country, which the inhabitants of the Maffachufetts have forcibly feized and still doe detayne the fame from him; That it appears as well by teftimony of witneffes as by a coppy of the letters pattents that they were not to act any thing repugnant to the lawes of England, nor to extend their bounds and limits of the faid corporacoa farther than three miles northward of Merrymacke river, and as a memorial and evidence thereof, the governor of the Maffachufetts did fett up an houfe about thirty yeares fince, which is called the bound houle, and is knowne by that name to this day, and with this division and affignment or lott of land the inhabitants and pattentees of the faid corporacon of the Maffachufetts refted content for the fpace of fixteen years together, until about the year 1652 they did enlarge and firetch their line about threefcore miles beyond their known and fettled bounds aforefaid; and have thereby not only invaded and incroached upon the plantacons and inheritances of the petitioners and other your majellies fubjects, but by menaces and armed forces compelled them to fubmitt to their usurped and arbitrary government which they have declared to be independent of this your majefties crowne of England, and not fubordinate thereunto.

Įţ,

It appears further by the witneffes that the collony of Maffachufetts has for these many years past endeavoured to modell and contrive themfelves into a free flate or commonwealth without any relacon to the crowne of England, affuming on themfelves the name and flile of a commonwealth, iffuing of writs in their owne name, imposing of oathes to be true unto themfelves contrary to that of allegiance, coyning of money with their owne ftamps and fignatures, exercifing an arbitrary power over the effates and perfons of all fuch as fubmitt not unto their government allowing them noe appeales to England. And some have been soe bold as publiquely to affirme, that if his majeftie should fend them a governor, that the feverall townes and churches throughout the whole country under their government did refolve to oppose him, and others have faid that before they of New-England would or fhould fubmitt to any appeale to England they would fell that country or plantacon to the king of Spaine*.

That by reafon of the premifes the faid Rob. Mafon and Edward Godfrey have beene damnified in their plantacons and eftates to the value of five thousand pounds, according to the judgment and eftimacon of feverall witneffes, examined in that behalfe. But by what pretence of right or authority the Maffachufetts have taken uppon them to proceede and act in fuch manner doth not appeare to us.

All which we most humbly reprefent to your majestie in duty and obedience to your commands, not prefuming to offer any opinion in a business of soe high importance, wherein the publique interest and government of your majestie appears soe much intermixt and concerned with the private interest of the peticoners. Robt. Mason, G. Sweit,

Robt. Majon,	G. Sweit,
Ja. Bunce,	Richard Foxe,
Th. Exton,	70. Mylles.
Tho.	Povey.

[Without date] in the recorder's office for Rockingham county.

No. XIII.

To the King's most excellent Majesty.

The humble petition of Robert Mason, proprietor of the province of New-Hampshire, in New-England,

Sheweth,

T HAT your majesty's royal grandfather king James, of ever bleffed memory, did by his highnefs letters patents under the great feale of England, bearing date at Westminster the

* Vide Hutch. collec. pap. p. 339.

the third day of November, in the eighteenth yeare of his reigne, give, grant and confirm unto feveral of the principal nobility and gentry of this kingdome by the name of the councell of New-England, their fucceffors and affignes forever, all the land in America lying between the degrees of 40 and 48 north latitude, by the name of New-England, to be held in fee, with many royal privileges and immunities, only paying to his majetty, his heirs and fucceffors, one fift part of all the oare of gold and filver that fhould at any time be found upon the faid lands, as by the faid letters patents doth at large appeare.

That John Mason, elq. your petitioner's grandfather, by virtue of leveral grants from the faid councell of New-England, under theire common feale, bearing date the 9th of March 1621, the 10th of August 1622, the 7th of November 1629, and the 22d of April 1635, was inflated in fee in a great tract of land in New-England by the name of New-Hampshire, lyeing upon the fea-coast between the rivers of Naumkeek and Pafcataway, and running up into the land weftward threefcore miles, with all the iflands lying within five leagues diffance of any part thereof, and alfo the fouth halfe of the Ifles of Shoals; and also the faid John Mason tugether with Sir Ferdmando Gorges, knt was enfeoffed by the aforefaid councell of New-England in other lands by the name of Laconia by their deed beareing date the 27th day of November 1629, the faid lands lyeing and bordering upon the great lakes and rivers of the Irequois and other nations adjoining. All which laid lands to be held as fully, freely, in as large, ample and beneficial manner and forme to all intents and jurpoles whatfoever as the faid councell of New-England by virtue of his majeffy's faid letters patents might or ought to hold and enjoy the fame, as by the faid feveral grants appeares.

Whereupon your petitioner's faid grandfather did expend upwards of twenty two thousand pounds in transporting people, building houses, forts, and magazines, furnishing them with great store of armes of all forts, with artillery great and fmall, for defence and protection of his fervants and tenants, with all other necessary commodities and materialls for establishing a fettled plantation.

That in the year 1628, in the fourth year of the reigne of your majeity's royal father, fome perfons did furreptitionfly and unknown to the faid councell, get the feale of the faid councell affixed to a grant of certaine lands, whereof the greateft part were folemnly patt unto your petitioner's grandfather and others long before, and foone after did the fame perfons by their their fubil praftifes get a confirmation of the faid grant under the great feale of England, as a corporation by the name of THE CORPORATION OF THE MASSACHUSETTS BAY IN NEW-ENGLAND, your majefly's royal father being unwitting thereof, and having thus by fraud obteyned a grant and confirmation, they compelled the rightfull inhabitants to defert their plantations, and by many outragicus actions they became poffered of that part of the country, declareing themfelves to be a free people, frameing to themfelves new lawes, with new methods in religion abfolutely contrary to the lawes and cultomes of this your majefly's realme of England, punifhing diverfe that would not approve thereof, fome by whipping, others by burning their houfes, and fome by banifhing, and the like.

At last the complaints of the oppressed subjects reaching the cares of your royal father, his magetly caused the whole matter to be examined before his most honourable privy councell and all being fully proved, his majestly did command the councell of New-Eugland to give an account by what authority, or by whose procurement those people of the Massachusetts Bay were fent over, his majestly concieving the faid councell to be guilty thereof.

But the faid councell of New-England made it plainley to appear to his majefty that they were ignorant of the whole matter and that they had noe fhare in the evills committed and wholly difelaimed the fame, and the faid councel' finding they had not furficient means to give redrefs and rectify what was bro't to ruine, they humbly referred to his majefty to doe. therein as he pleafed and thereupon the faid councell of New-England refolved to refign, and did actually refigne the great charter of New-England into his majefty's royal handes, feeing there was an abfointe neceffity for his majelly to take the management of that country to himfelf, it being become a bufinels of high confequence and only to be remedied by his fovereign power, all which appears by the declaration of the councell of New-England dated the 25th of April, 1635, together with the act of furiender of the great charter of New-England dated the 7th day of June, the fame year.

That immediately thereupon, his majefty in trinity terme 1635, caufed a quo warranto to be brought up by Sir John Banks his majefty's then attorney general against the governor, deputy governor and every of the affistants of the faid corporation of Maffachusetts in New-England feverally, according to their sames mentioned in the faid patents of incorporation, being twenty twenty fix perfons, whereof two being dead, of the remayning twenty four perfons, there did fourteen at feveral times appeare at the king's benchbar and there difelaimed the charter, the remaining tenn perfons were outlawed, and thereupon judgment given for the king, that the liberties and franchiles of the faid corporation of Maffachufetts Bay fhould be feized into the king's handes and the body of the governor to be taken into cuftody for ufurping the faid liberties, all which appears by the roles in the crown office, of cuftos brevium for the king's bench of the proceedings in the feverall terms from the yeare 1635 to 1637.

That thereupon his faid royall majefty on the 3d day of May 1637, did order in councell that the attorney genl. be required to call for the faid patent and prefent the fame to the board, and his majefty by his declaration of the 23d of July 1637, in the 13th yeare of his reigne declared his royal pleafure for establishing a generall government in his territory of New-England for the prevention of the evils that otherwife might enfue for default thereof, thereby declaring Sr Ferdinando Gorges to be governor generall of the whole country and requiring all perfons to give theire obediance accordingly.

That the warrs and troubles immediately enfueing in Scotland and prefently after here in England did hinder his faid majefty from fettling that country or profecuting the right which he intended his fubjects, however the proceedings of his majefty caufed fome reftraint to the further violences and oppreffions of the faid Maffachufetts, and they conteyned themfelves for a time within their pretended bounds but noe fooner was that king of bleffed memory your royal father become a facrifice but they renewed theire former violences by oppreffing all the other colonies and defigneing by encouragement from fome in England to erect themselves into a commonwealth, and in order to lay a foundation for this power and dominion which they now afpired unto they thought it neceffary to extend theire bounds and fpread into a larger territory then as yet they had ulurped, and that this work might not be done without a mask or color of right they do in an assembly held at Boston the 19th of october 1652, seriously peruse the grant (which had been procured as aforefd.) and therein weighing the words and trying what new fence they might beare more futeable to theire increase of power, they tho't fit at length to declare themfelves miftaken in what they had done in the year 1631, when they erected bound-houses and had for foe many yeares confined themfelves thereunto, whereas now by the help of an imaginary line or rather by a new reafon of fate fate there is a fence imposed by themselves upon their e own words, and they firetch their rights to neer two hundred miles of land northward and as much fouthward more than they were fatisfied withal before, fwallowing up your majefty's petitioner as well as others whole properties were established long before the faid people had any being. And that they might give execution to this righteous fentence they prefently invade and by force of arms feize upon the province of New-Hampshire, and other lands of right belonging to your petitioner, befides what they did to others, compelling the inhabitants to fwear to be true to them and to caft off their lawful lords, and fuch as refused were either ruined, banished or imprisoned, and any appeales to England utterly denied unto them, then they proceed to coining of money with their owne imprefs, raifing the coine of England, and acting in all matters in a most absolute and arbitrary way. And although your petitioner by his agent Joleph Malon did demand redrefs of the general court of Maffachufetts fetting at Bofton in 1652, offering to make out the right and title of your petitioner to the province of New-Hampfhire and other lands against all perfons whatfoever, yet noe restitution could be obtayned without a submission to their authority, and to hold the lands from them which the petitioner then did refuse and hath alwaies refused chusing rather to wait for more happy times wherein to expect reliefe then by a legall refignation of his rights to those who had none at all diveit himself of what his anceftors had purchased at foe deare a rate: Your petitioner having as eaguall a right to the government in the faid province as he hath to the land itfelf, all which appears by a report made to your majefty the 15th of February 1661, when your petitioner first exposed to your majefty the oppreffions under which he, had to long groaned, in the evil times, and which grieves him now much more to beare while hee has the protection of foe just and gracious a foveraigne to resort unto.

Wherefore your petitioner moft humbly implores your majefty to take notice, that (by a plaine difcovery of what fraud in the beginning and the length of troubled times has helped to conceale) the Boftoners have noe patent of incorporation at all, that yet they have under colour of right and authority from the crown devoured your petitioner and other proprietors whofe titles are by your majefty's learned councell allowed as ftrong as the law can make them.

That all waies have been tryed and methods ufed to obteyn justice from the Bostoners, but all have proved ineffectual!, that that your petitioner's loffes have been foc many and great, and his fufferings foe continued that he cannot any longer fupport the burthen of them. And when your majefty will but confider how fmall the refpect has been wherewith those people have treated your majefty fince your happy reftauration, and what daily breaches are by them made upon your majefty's acts of navigation, which turnes fo greatly to the detriment of this kingdome in generall, these loffes and fufferings of a particular fubject cannot much be questioned, foe that your petitioner humbly hopes that your majefty will think it high time to ftretch forth your royall hand of juffice to affilt your petitioner, that hee may have the quiet posses fuffeyned, in fuch ways and methods as the importance of the case requires, and your majefty in your royall wildome shall think most fitt.

And your petitioner shall ever pray.

ROB. MASON.

From a copy in the possession of the Masonian proprietors.]

XIV.

A brief declaration of the right and claim of the governour and company of the Maffachufetts Bay in New-England, to the lands now in their poffeffion, but pretended to by Mr. Gorge and Mr. Mafon, together with an anfwer to their feveral pleas and complaints in their petitions exhibited : Humbly prefented and fubmitted by the faid governour and company to the king's most excellent majefty, as their defence.

TN the yeare of our Lord 1628, in the third yeare of his late I majefty Charles the first, of happy memory, feveral loyal and pioufly difpofed gentlemen obtained of the great council of New-England, a grant of a certain tract of land lying in New-England, defcribed and bounded as therein expressed ; which was in all respects fairly and openly procured and with . fo good an intent of propagating the gofpel among the natives, and to advance the honour and dignity of his late majefty, of happy memory, that they were bold to fupplicate his faid majefty to fuperadd his royal confirmation thereto, which accordingly in an ample royal charter was paffed and remains under the broad feal of England, March the 4th 1629, in the fourth year of his majeftics reign, with further additions and enlargements well becoming fo royal a majefty, and fuitable for the encouragement of fo hazardous and chargeable an adventure. In purfuance whereof many of the faid patentees and other adventurers transported themselves and eftates and fettled 1 . .

xxii

in the most known and accommodable parts of those lands contained in the faid charter, neither time, eftate, nor power futfering them fpeedily to furvey the just extent of their limits. Not many years different in time feveral others alfo of his majefty's fubjects obtained other grants, and made feveral fettlements in the more northern and eafterne parts of the country, with whom for feveral years we had neighbourly correspondence, being as they supposed without the limits of our patent, amongst whom the prefent claimers and petitioners were. Thefe grants partly by reafon of the fnullnefs of fome of them, and partly by reafon of darke involv'd and dubious expression of their limits, brought the inhabitants under many intanglements and diffatisfactions among themfelves, which there being no fettled authority to be applied to, being deferted and forfaken of all fuch as by virtue of faid grants did claim jurifdiction over them and had made a fuccefslefs effay for the tettlement of government among them proved of fome continuance, unto the great difquiet and diffurbance of those his majefty's fubjects that were peaceable and well difpofed amongft them ; to remedy which inconvenience they betook themfelves to the way of combinations for government, but by experience found it ineffectual. In this time ignorance of the northerly running of Merrimack river hindred our actual claim and extention of government, yet at length being more fully fettled, and having obtained further acquaintance and correspondency with the Indians poffeffing the uppermoft parts of that rivre en-· couraging an adventure, as alfo frequent follicitations from the molt confiderable inhabitants of those eaflern parts earneftly defiring us to make proofe of and afecrtain our interell, we imployed the most approved artifls that could be obtained, who upon their folemn oaths made returns, That upon their certain observation our northern patent line did extend fo far north as to take in all those towns and places which we now poffefs; which when the inhabitants as well as our felves were fatisfied in (urged alfo with the neceffity of government imongft them) they peaceably and voluntarily fabritted to the government of the Maffachufetts, (viz.) Dover. Squainfeot and Portfmouth anno 1641, Kittery, York and Wells anno 1632 and 1653, from which times until the year 1662, when there was a fmall interruption by a letter of Mr. Gorge, and afterwards in the year 1665, (when his majeflyes commillioners, Colonel Nichols and others came over) the inhabitants of those parts lived well fatisfied and uninterrupted under the Muliachusets government. But then the faid commiffioners neither regarding regarding the Maffachufets just right nor the claims of Mr. Gorge and Mr. Mafon, fettled a new forme of government there, but this hardly outlived their departure, the people impatient of innovations, and well experienced and fatisfied intheir former fettlement, quickly and quietly returned to order again and fo continue unto this time. This is in a few words the true flate of the matter; for the further illustration whereof and justification of our proceedings therein and vindication. of our felves from the reproachful imputation of ulurping authority over his majefties fubjects in the eafterne parts pretended to, with other fcandals caft upon us by the petitioners, we humbly prefent the following pleas by way of demonstration, and argue that our extension of government to those easternparts claimed is agreeable to our indubitable patent right ; our patent according to the expreis terme therein contained without any ambiguity or colour of other interpretation, lyes between two east and west paralel lines drawn from the most foutherly part of Charles river and the most northerly part of Merrimack, with three miles advantage upon each, which upon the obfervation of men of approved and undoubted truth upon oath, are found diffant one degree and forty nine minutes north latitude, being to extend in full latitude and breadth from fea to fea (ut in terminis) and therefore cannot be bounded by many hundreds or infinite numbers of lines, as the river of Merrimack maketh bends or angles in two hundred miles paffage from Winipefioke lake to the mouth thereof, which to imagine, as it is irrational fo would it involve us and any borderer into fo many inextricable difputes as are by no wayes to be admitted by a prince feeking his fubjects peace. Befides were fuch a construction allowable (which with uttermost streining is) yet all favourable interpretation is to be offered the patentees by the gracious expression of the charter. Now according to the afore mentioned observation (fo confirmed) all those eaftern plantations challenged by our opponents (ut fupra) are comprehended within our northerly line. We deny not but the artifts of their felves, and if any queftion thence arife we feare not to fubmit to tryal to the most exact and rigorous test that may be. The invincible ftrength of this our first plea may further appear by the confideration of the frivolous and infignificant allegations of the petitioners in opposition thereunto, viz. 1ft. The nonextention of our line or affertion of our right to those eastern parts for some years, ignorance as our cafe was circumftanced debarring no man of his just right, neither can it reafonably be fuppofed that the exact furvey of fo large a grant grant in fo hideous a wilderness poffeffed by an enemy would be the worke of a few years, our own poverty not affording means, and our weaknefs (allowing no deep adventure into the country) permitting us not to view the favourable running of the river, which none can imagine altered its courfe by our delay; we may as well be deprived of far more then we poffefs or ever faw on our western parts to the fouth fea (which none will deny) becaufe we have not furveyed it or are foon like to be able, as he taken from our northern right fo obvious to the meanest artist.

cc

xxiii

xxiv

2dly. The Poffeffion-houfe in Hampton, of fo little fignification and fo long fince difused, that Mr. Mason hath forgot the name thereof and calleth it Bound-house, erected to give the world to know that we claimed confiderably to the northward of our then habitations upon the bay, though we did not know the uttermost extent of our right, our fathers not being fo ignorant of the law of the realme to which they did appertain as to suppose the taking possession of part did debar them of the remainder but the contrary; and we challenge Mr. Mafon or any on his behalfe, promifing our records shall be open to the most ferutinous fearch to prove it, either called or intended according to his abufe thereof.

3dly. That notorious falfhood of ftretching our right to near four hundred miles north and fouth more then formerly we were fatisfied with, our whole breadth being but one hundred and nine mile, which is not much more then a quarter part of what he would have the world believe our new claime and (as he would infinuate) usurped territory doth contain, arifing (we would charitably believe) partly from ignorance of the coafting of the country, Mr. Mafon accounting by the fea-fide, and we suppose coalting in the measure of every harbour and cove to make up that calculation, which lies much of it due east and not to the north, but we fear malevolently fuggested (as many other things as of little credit) to introduce into his majellie his royal breaft a beliefe that we are unreafonable in our pretentions, and fo unworthy of his majefties favour, which we hope fuch unlawful endeavours will never be fo prosperous as to obtain. What may be further added to this our first plea, may be supplied from the reasons formerly prefented. We urge fecondly, The invalidity of those grants pretended to by the petitioners, which are of two forts; ift. Such as beare date after ours, which we fee no reafon to feare any interruption from. Secondly, Such as are pretended to bear date before ours, against which we object that they are not not authentick, wanting a sufficient number of graators to make them fo, none of them as we prefume will appeare upon trval having above fix hands and feals annexed to them, the faid council of New-England confifting of forty, and his majeftys grant to them expressly requiring (as we are informed) feven at the leaft to figne to make any valid act; and indeed Mr. Mafon's own often unwearied renewal of his grants in 1621. fixteen hundred twenty two, fixteen hundred twenty nine and 1635, (as he faith) tac tly confesseth the fame invalidity, in the former puting him to charge for the latter, till at laft he fell into fuch a trade of obtaining grants that his laft and most confiderable was fix years after the grant of our charter from his majefty, and but three dayes before the faid council's declaration of their absolute resolution to relign, and but a few days before their actual furrender, as he afferts; which of what value and confideration it is from the faid council's circumftanced under a necellity of refiguation of their great charter, procured rather by the clamour of fuch ill affected perfons as the prefent complaint than by any true accompt of diffettlement or ill management here, is not difficult to judge. Hence it appears, firft, how little reason Mr. Mason hath to brand us with fraud or furreptitioufnefs in obtaining our charter; which hath moft shew of fraud and furreptitious procuration, a sufficient number of those honble perfons fubscribing ours and fewer his pretended antidated grants, is easie to determine. In which affertion is to be observed the high reflection caft upon the members of his late majefty and miniflers of flate, groundlefsly rendring the council's feal, yea the great feal of England, expofed to fraud and deceitful clandestine practices; yea upon his prefent majefty, infinuating himfelfe better acquainted with matters of flate then he who allows and confirmes our grant as authentick by his gracious letter of fixteen hundred fixty two, which intolerable boldness how unbecoming (not to fay more) To all which we in a fubject, it is not easie for us to fay. may add Sr Ferdinando Gorges application to the authority here to interpofe in his affair, which he, being one of the great council, would have been far from acknowledging, had Mr. Mafon's allegations been founded upon truth.

CC2

Secondly, That articles of charge depending upon fuch illegal and poft dated grants cannot take place againft us were their difburfe as great as it is affirmed, which by eye witneffes upon the place and ftil living, are proved comparitively very inconfiderable.

3dly. We affirme that the whole management of the affair respecting refpecting our government of those eaftern parts was in an orderly and peaceable way, and not without the reiterated and earnest follicitation of most of the people there inhabiting, fufficiently appearing by their feveral petitions; and we challenge Mr. Gorge and Mr. Mason by any living evidence or record to shew any signe of a forceable entrance: Some majistrates upon the clearing of our right to them and acceptance of the tender of themselves to us, being fent thither without any other force than each of them a fervant to attend them. Indeed fome years after Capt. Boniton for mutinous carriage was feized and brought to justice; concerning which and many other cafes many inhabitants yet living and eye wittness can give the most impartial evidences.

4thly. We offer to confideration that the deferted and ungovern'd ftate of the people of those places had we not had that patent right fo clearly evinced, might warrant our actions; efpecially confidering the obligation upon us to fecure his majefty's honour and maintain the publick peace, fo hazarded by the total want of government among & them. Our first exercife of jurildiction being in the year 1641, eight year after Capt Neale, agent for Mr. Mafon, had wholy deferted the improvement of land and the government of the country, which indeed he never used but one year, for in the year 1630 he first came over, and in the year 1634 he quitted the place; and in the interim neglected the fame in making a voyage for England, the fhort time of his tarriance not admitting of fettlement of government or improvement. We may hereto fubjoin that Mr. Joleph Mafon, agent for Mrs. Ann Mafon, when here and all things were fresh in memory, made no demand contrary to what is affirmed, but petitioned our jullice against his debtors there and elfewhere, and that Sr Ferdinando Gorges his grant being fo mean and uncertainly bounded that he knew not well how to find much lefs to improve to confiderable advantage, by his letter bearing date------doth devolve the whole charge and care of his pretended province upon the authority here established. Lastly, That the exercife of jurifdiction in those eastern parts hath been and is his majefty's honour, the people's great benefit, and our charge without profit, which had it not been, the ruine of those parts would have unavoidably enfued in the want of all government, and their feizure by the French, who ever waited a fit opportunity for the fame. They have part of them for thirty five years and others twenty yeares (fome fmall interruption intervening producing the ftronger inclination and refolution in them them to be conftant to his majefties authority here) lived under the government of the Maffachufetts a quiet, well ordered and thriving people. And as for any complaint from ill affected perfons, it is well known that the beft and wifeft government is not without difquiet from fome fuch; and no wonder if filly people are foon affected with fuch fair glozing promifes as Mr. Mafon hath made and publifhed, as it were determining the cafe before tryal by his late letters to the inhabitants in thofe parts, and that our government in thofe places have been no gain is fo unqueftionable a truth that never was any levy laid upon them for the fupply of the publick treafury, tho' much hath been and is further like to be expended for their fecurity, who otherwife will inevitably become an eafie prey to the heathen now in hoftility with us, and at this prefent time rageing in thofe parts.

The before writen is a true copy transcribed from the records of the general court of the late colony of the Maffachusetts Bay, held by the governour and company of the faid colony att Boston, the 6th of September, 1676.

Examd. per ISA. ADDINGTON, Secry.

No. XV.

At the Court at Whitehall, July 20, 1677.

(L S.) Prefent the King's most excellent Majefty.

- Lord Chancellor, Ld Treafurer, Ld Privy Seal,
 - Duke of Ormond,
 - Marquis of Worcefter,

Ld Chamberlain,

Earl of Northampton,

Earl of Peterborough,

Earl of Stratford,

E. of Sunderland, E. of Bath, E. of Craven,

Ld Bp of London,

- Ld Maynard,
- Ld Berkley,

Mr. Vice Chamberlain,

Mr. Sec.y Coventry,

Mr. Sec.y Williamfon,

Mr. Chancellor of the Exchequer,

Master of the ordnance,

Mr. Speaker.

HEREAS the right honourable the lords of the committee for trade and plantations, did in purfuance of an order of the 7th of February laft make report to the board, of the matters in controverfy between the corporation of the Maffachufetts Bay in New-England, and Mr. Mafon and Mr. Gorges touching the right of foil and government, claimed by the faid parties in certain lands there, by virtue of feveral grants from his majefty's royal father and grandfather as followeth, in thefe words. May

XXVIII

May it pleafe your majefty,

Having received your majefty's order in council of the 7th of February last past, whereby we are directed to enter into the examination of the bounds and limits which the corporation of the Maffachufetts Bay in N. E. on the one hand, and Mr. Mafon and Mr. Gorges on the other, do pretend by their feveral grants and patents to have been affigned unto them, as alfo to examine the patents and charters which are infifted on by either fide, in order to find out and fettle how far the rights of foil and government do belong unto any of them. In confideration whereof the lords chief juffices of your majefty's courts of king's bench and common pleas were appointed to give us their affiltance, we did on the 5th of April laft together with the faid lords chief juffices meet in obedience to your majefty's commands, and having heard both parties by their council learned in the law, we did recommend unto their lordfhips to receive a flate of the claims made by both parties, and to return their opinions upon the whole matter unto us, which their lordships have accordingly performed in the words following:

In obedience to your lordships order we appointed a day for the hearing of all parties, and confidering the matters referred, having received from them fuch papers of their cafes as they were pleafed to deliver; at which time all parties appearing, the refpondents did difclaim title to the lands claimed by the petitioners, and it appeared to us that the faid lands are in the poffeffion of feveral other perfons not before us, whereupon we thought not fit to examine any claims to the faid lands, it being (in our opinion) improper to judge of any title of land without hearing of the ter-tenants or fome other perfons on their behalf; and if there be any course of justice upon the place having jurifdiction, we effeem it most proper to direct the parties to have recourfe thither for the decifion of any queftion of property until it shall appear that there is just cause of complaint against the courts of justice there for injustice or grievance.

We did in the prefence of faid parties examine their feveral claims to the government, and the petitioners having waved the pretence of a grant of government from the council of Plymouth, wherein they were convinced by their own council that no fuch power or jurifdiction could be transferred or affigned by any colour of law; the queftion was reduced to the province of Maine, whereto the petitioner Gorges made his title by a grant from king Charles the first, in the 15th year of of his reign, made to Sir Ferd. Gorges and his heirs of the province of Maine and the government thereof. In anfwer to this the refpondents alledged that long before, viz. in quarto Caroli primi, the government was granted to them, and produced copies of letters patents wherein it is recited that the council of Plymouth having granted to certain perfons a territory thus defcribed, viz. " all that part of New-England in " America which lies and extends between a great river that " is commonly called Monomack alias Merrimack, and a cer-" tain other river there called Charles river, being in the bot-" tom of a certain bay there called the Maffachufetts Bay, and " alfo all and fingular the lands and hereditaments whatloever " lying and being within the fpace of three English miles on " the fouth part of the faid Charles river, or any or every part " thereof ; and alfo all and fingular the lands and hereditaments " whatfoever lying and being within the fpace of three Eng-" glifh miles to the fouthermost part of the faid bay called " Maffachufetts Bay; and all those lands and hereditaments " whatfoever which [lie] within the fpace of three English " miles to the northward of the faid river called Monomack " alias Merrimack, or the northward of any and every part " thereof; and all lands and hereditaments whatfoever lying " within the limits aforefaid, north and fouth in latitude and " breadth, and in length and longitude of and within all the " breadth aforefaid throughout the main lands there, from the " Atlantic and Weftern fea and ocean on the east part to the " South fea on the weft." By the faid letters patents the king confirmed that grant, made them a corporation, and gave them power to make laws for the governing of the lands and the people therein. To which it was replied that the patent of 4 ° Caroli primi is invalid, (1) Becaufe there was a precedent grant, 18 ° [acobi, of the fame thing then in being, which patent was furrendered afterwards and before the date of the other, 15 ° Car. primi. (2) The grant of the government can extend no farther than the ownership of the foil, the boundaries of which as recited in that patent wholly excludes the province of Maine, which lies northward more than three miles beyond the river Merrimack.

We having confidered thefe matters do humbly conceive as to the first matter, that the patent of 4 ° Caroli 1mi is good notwithstanding the grant made in the 18 ° Jac: for it appeared to us by the recital in the patent 4 ° Caroli 1mi that the council of Plymouth had granted away all their interest in the lands the year before, and it must be prefumed they then deferted ferted the government; whereupon it was lawful and neceffary for the king to establish a fuitable frame of government, according to his royal wildom, which was done by that patent, 4 Caroli 1mi making the adventurers a corporation upon the place. As to the fecond matter it feems to us to be very clear that the grant of the government 4 ° Caroli 1mi extends no farther than the boundaries expressed in the patent, and those boundaries cannot be construed to extend further northwards along the river Merrimack than three English miles, for the north and fouth bounds of the lands granted fo far as the river extends are to follow the course of the rivers which make the breadth of the grant, the words deferibing the length to comprehend all the lands from the Atlantic ocean to the South fea of and in all the breadth aforefaid, do not warrant the over reaching those bounds by imaginary lines or bounds, other exposition would (in our humble opinion) be unreasonable and against the interest of the grant. The words " of and in all the breadth aforefaid" fhew that the breadth was not intended an imaginary line of breadth, laid upon the broadeft part but the breadth refpecting the continuance of the boundaries by the river as far as the rivers go, but when the known boundary of breadth determines it must be carried on by imaginary lines to the South fea. And if the province of Maine lies more northerly than three English miles from the river Merrimack, the patent of 4 ° Caroli 1mi gives no right to govern there, and thereupon the patent of the fame 15 ° Car. 1mi to the petitioner Gorges will be valid. So that upon the whole matter we are humbly of opinion as to the power of government, that the respondents, the Maffachufetts and their fucceffors, by their patent of 4 9 martis 4 ° Caroli 1mi have fuch right of government as is granted them by the fame patent within the boundaries of their lands expreffed therein, according to fuch defcription and exposition as we have thereof made as aforefaid, and the petitioner Sir Ferdinando Gorges his heirs and affigns by the patent 3d April, have fuch right of government as is granted them by the fame patent within [the territory] called the province of Maine according to the boundaries of the fame expressed in the fame patent. Ri. Rainsford, Fra. North.

All which being the opinion of the lords chief juffices, and fully agreeing with what we have to report unto your majefly upon the whole matter referred unto us by the faid order, we humbly fubmit the determination thereof unto your majefly.

Anglefey,	Craven,	J. Williamfon,
Ormond,	H. London,	Tho. Chickley,
Bath,	G. Carteret,	Edw. Seymour.
		Which

Which having been read at the board the 18th inflant, it was then ordered that the faid Mr. Mafon and Mr. Gorges, as alfo that the agents of the corporation of the Maffachufetts Bay fhould be this day heard upon the faid report, if they had any objections to make thereunto. In purfuance whereof all parties attending with their councill, who not alledging any thing fo material as to prevail with his majefty and the board to differ in judgment from the faid report; his majefty was thereupon pleafed to approve of and confirm the fame, and did order that all parties do acquiefce therein, and contribute what lies in them to the punctual and due performance of the faid report, as there fhall be occafion.

JOHN NICHOLAS.

N. B. The above paper of which the copy is attefted by Edw. Rawfon fecretary of Maffachufetts, and John Penhallow clerk of the fuperior court of New-Hampfhire, is in the files of the faid fuperior court, and in the Mafonian proprietary office.

No. XVI.

Copy of that part of Prefident Cutts's commission in which the claim of Robert Mason is recited.

ND whereas the inhabitants of faid province of New-Hampshire have many of them been long in possession of feveral quantities of lands, and are faid to have made confiderable improvements thereupon, having no other title for the fame than what has been derived from the government of the Maffachufetts Bay, in virtue of their imaginary line; which title, as it hath by the opinion of our judges in England been altogether fet alide, fo the agents from the faid colony have conquently difowned any right either in the foil or government thereof, from the three mile line aforefaid; and it appearing to us that the anceftors of Robert Mafon Efq. obtained grants from our great council of Plymouth for the tract of land aforefaid, and were at very great expence upon the fame until molefted and finally driven out, which hath occasioned a lafting complaint for juffice by the faid Robert Mafon ever fince our refto-However to prevent in this cafe any unreafonable deration. mands which might be made by the faid Robert Mafon for the right he claimeth in the faid foil, we have obliged the faid Robert Mafon under his hand and feal that he will demand nothing for the time past untill the 24th of June last past, nor molest any in their poffeffions for the time to come, but will make out titles to them and their heirs forever, provided they will pay to him upon a fair agreement in lieu of all other rents fixpence in the the pound according to the juft and true yearly value of all houfes built by them and of all lands, whether gardens, orchards, arable, ro pafture, which have been improved by them, which he will agree shall be bounded out unto every of the parties concerned, and that the refidue may remain unto himfelf to be disposed of for his best advantage.

XXXII

" But if notwithstanding this overture from the faid Robert Mafon which feemeth to be fair unto us, any of the inhabitants of the faid province of New-Hampshire shall refuse to agree with the agents of the faid Robert Mafon upon the terms aforefaid, our will and pleafure is, that the prefident and council of New-Hampfhire aforefaid for the time being shall have power and are hereby impowered to interpofe and reconcile all differences if they can that shall or may arife between the faid Robert Malon and the faid inhabitants, but if they cannot then we do hereby command and require the faid prefident and council to fend into England fuch cafes fairely and impartially flated, together with their own opinions upon fuch cafes, that we, our heirs and fucceffors, by and with the advice of our and their privy council may determine therein according to equity."

N. B. The fame (mutatis mutandis) is inferted in Granfield's commission.

No. XVII.

To his most excellent majefty Charles the 2d, by the grace of God, of England, Scotland, France and Ireland, king, defender of the faith, &c.

The humble addrefs and petition of the prefident and councill of his majefly's province of New-Hampfhire, in N. England,

Humbly fheweth,

T HAT it having pleafed your most excellent majefty to feperate us the inhabitants of this fhadow of your majefty's authority and government under which wee had long found protection, efpecially in the late war with the barbarous natives, who (thro' divine protection) proved a heavy fcourge to us, and had certainly been the ruin of thefe poor weake plantacons, (being few in number and otherwaies being under great difadvantages) if our brethren and neighbours had not out of pity and compafiion ftretched forth their helping hand, and with their blood and treasure defended us, our lives, and effates; neverthelefs upon the receipt of your majefty's pleafure delivered by Edward Randolph, efq. upon the first of January last, directing unto and commanding the crecting of a new government in and over these four townes townes (the government of the Maffatufetts yielding readie obedience to your majefty's commands with reference to our relation formerly to them) altho' deeply fenfible of the difadvantages likely to accrew to your majefty's provinces and ourfelves more efpecially, by the multiplying of fmall and weake governments unfit either for offence or defence, (the union of thefe neighbour collonnycs, having been more than a little inftrumental in our prefervation.) Wee have taken the oathes prefcribed us by your majefty, and administered to your fubjects of these four townes the oath of allegiance, and convened a general affembly for regulating the common affaires of the people and making of fuch laws as may be of more peculiar ufe to ourfelves, having fpeciall regard to the acts for trade and navigation fet forth in the booke of rates commonly printed and fold, and if some obstruction occationed by such as make greate pretences of your majefly's favour and authority had not bindered wee might have brought matters to a greater maturity, yet hope to perfect fomething by the first opportunity of shipping from hence, but feared it might be too long to defer our humble acknowledgment of your majefty's grace and favour in committing the power into fuch hands as it pleafed your majefty to nomynate, not imposing ftrangers upon us, and it much comforts us against any pretended claimers to our foil or any malevolent spirits which may misrepresent us (as they have done others) unto your majefty or honourable councill, while befide the knowne laws of the realm, and the undoubted right of English men, wee have the favour of a gracious prince to fly to. We do therefore most humbly begg the continuance of your majefty's royall favour and protection, without which wee are dayly liable to diffurbance if not ruine.

XXXIII

And as in duty bound wee shall humbly pray, &c. March 29, 1680.

No. XVIII.

To the kings most excellent majestie.

EE the prefident and councill of your province of New-Hampfhire having (according to the royal pleafure) given an account of our alleigiance and obfervance of your commiffion by Mr Jowles in March laft, and therefore fhall not give you the trouble of repetition. According to your majefty's command, wee have with our general affembly been confidering of fuch laws and orders, as doe by divine favor preferve the peace and are to the fatisfaction of your majefty's good fubjects here, in all which wee have had a fpeciall regard to the fatute statute book your majesty was pleased to honor us with, for which together with the feale of your province, wee returne moft humble and hearty thanks; but fuch has been the hurry of our neceffary occasions and fuch is the shortness of the fomer, (the only feafon to prepare for a long winter,) that wee have not been capeable of fitting folong as to frame and finish ought that we judge worthie to be prefented to your royal view, but fhall as in duty bound give as fpeedy a difpatch to the affare as wee may. In the mean time your fubjects are at quict under the shadow of your gracious protection, fearing no diffurbance unlefs by fome pretended claimers to our foil, whom we truft your majefty's clemencie and equity will guard us from injury by; and confidering the purchails of our lands from the heathens the natural proprietors thereof, and our long quiet possession not interrupted by any legall claime, our defence of it against the barbarous adversary by our lives and estates, wee are encouraged that wee shall be maintained in our free enjoyment of the fame, without being tennants to those who can shew no such title there-Further wee doe gratefully acknowledge the marke of unto. your princely favor in fending us your royal effigies and imperial armes, and lament when wee thinke that they are (thro' the lofs of the fhip) mifcarried by the way. And feeing your majefty is gracioufly pleafed to licence us to crave what may conduce to the better promoting of our weal and your majefty's authority, wee would humbly fuggest whether the allowance of appeales mentioned in the commission may not prove a great occasion by meanes of malignant spirits for the obstructing of justice among us. There are also fundry other things that a little time and experience may more evidently difcover a great convenience, in which upon the contineuance of the fame liberty from your majefty wee shall with like humilitie prefent. Thus craving a favourable confiruction of what is above fuggested and praying for your majefty's long and profperous reigne, begging alfo the contineuance of your majefty's favor, out of which, if any of our adverfarys under a pretence of loyalty or zeale for your majefty's interift fhould endeavor to eject us, wee hope upon liberty granted us to fpeak for ourfelves, wee shall aboundantly demonstrate that wee doe truly and fincerely fubfcribe,

XXXIV

Your majefty's most loyall and dutiful fubjects.

JOHN CUTT, Prefident

with the confent of the councill. -

Portfmouth, in the Province of New-Hampfhire, June 11, 1680.

No. XIX.

No. XIX.

Copy of the Mandamus by which Robert Mafon, Efq. was admitted to a feat in the council, Dec. 30, 1680.

Trufty and well beloved, We greet you wel.

VAT HEREAS we have thought it fit to take into our fpecial care and protection our province of New-Hampfhire and provide for its prosperity and good government and the fettlement of the eftates and poffeffions of our good fubjects there. And that for the avoiding any fuits or contentions in matters of title, and the determining any demands which might be made by our wel beloved fubject Robert Mafon, Efq. as proprietor under us of that province by vertu of a grant derived from our royal grandfather King James under the great feal of England*: Wee have fo composed all matters with him that for the time past until the 24th day of June 1679, he shall not claim or demand any rent, dues, or arrears whatfoever : And for the future he, his heirs or affigns shall receive only fix pence in the pound yearly of every tenant by way of quit rent, according to the true and just yearly valu of what is improved by any of the inhabitants; as is more fully expressed in our commission under our great feal, bearing date the 18th day of September in the 31ft year of our raign. And whereas the faid Robert Malou hath humbly fignified to us that he is preparing to transport himself, for the taking care of his affairs and intereft in the faid province, and for the giving a fecure and legal confirmation of the effates of fuch perfons as are now in possession but without any right or legal title to the fame. And he being a perfon whom wee have effeemed ufeful to our fervice, as he is chiefly concerned in the welfare of that our province; wee have further thought fit to conflitute and appoint him to be one of our council therein, and we do hereby order and require you our prefident and councill, that immediately after his arrival you do admit him one of our council of our province of New-Hampfhire, he first taking the oaths mentioned in our faid commiffion. And we do further require you and him, that you do betake yourfelves to fuch difcreet and equitable ways and methods in your proceedings, agreements and fettlements for the future, that there may be no occasion of complaint to our royal perfon and authority here. We being refolved to difcountenance all fuch as shall wilfully or unneceffarily avoid or delay your fubmitting to those determinations which may be reafonably decreed according to juffice and good confcience. Which you are to fignify to all our good fubjects within our faid province that they may govern themfelves felves accordingly. And fo we bid you heartily farewell. Given at our court at Newmarket the first day of October 1680, in the two and thirtieth year of our raign.

XXXVI

^{*} This must mean the charter to the council of Plymouth.

By his majefty's command,

SUNDERLAND.

To our trufty and well beloved the prefident and council 2 of our province of New-Hampfhire in New-England. 5

No. XX.

Anfwer to the claim made by Mr. Mafon to the houfes and lands of New-Hamp/hire.

[In Mr. Weare's band writing, but without date or fignature.] T does not legally appear that Mr. Mafon can lay any just claime to any of the lands in New-Hampfhire, for what right he pretends is either derived from Capt. Jno. Mafon, (whom he fays was his grandfather) or from his majefty's commiffion : But prefume from neither of these has he any right. Not from Capt. Jno. Mafon ; for, (1) It does not legally appear that ever he had any right to the province of New-Hampfhire. It is true there is a copy of a pattent or deed from the councell of Plymouth, which he brings over without atteftation of publique notary or any other authority. Befides in faid coppy there is not the least intimation of any hand or feale to the originall, and there is two men that fwears this is a true coppy of the originall, which plainly demonstrates that the originall is but a blanck; the truth whereof we are the more confirmed in, becaufe it is not rational to imagine that Mr. Mafon would come from England to profecute a right and not bring with him what he had to make good his claime; but having nothing but blanck coppies, he could bring no better than he had, which cannot be looked upon as authentique in any court.

(2) If it fhould be fuppofed that ever Capt. Juo. Mafon had a right by pattent, yet it does not appear how Robert Tufton Mafon (as the plantiffe calls himfelf) derives a title from him either as his heir, executor or administrator, or by deed of gift; all that we can hear in court is that the plantife calls himfelf Capt. Mafon's heir.

(3) If the plantiffe or his anceftors ever had a title to the lands he claims by pattent from the councill of Plymouth, yet they have loft it by non ufe, for they never attended the ends of granting patents by king James, of bleffed memory, in his hynefs pattent to the great councell of Plymouth, which was the peopling of the land, inlargeing the king's dominions, propagating propagating the golpel, conversion of the heathen the native proprietors, &c. Now the plantife nor anceftors never planted this province nor expended any thing upon it to the upholding of it in peace nor war, but the prefent inhabitants did either by themfelves or predeceffors, purchase their poffessions from the natives, and by their permiffion did fit down upon the land and manured, to the vaft expence of above 50 years time in hard labor, and expending upon it their whole effate. And in the late Indian war did defend it against the enimy to the lofs of many of their lives and confiderable part of their eftates, without any affiltance from Mr. Malon who now claimes not only what poor people have purchased and laboured hard upon, but also conquered or relived from cruell attempts of the barbarous heathen, and we conceave we were under no obligation to run fuch adventures to make ourfelves flaves to Mr. Mafon.

(4) It does not appear that there was a quorum of the great councell of Plymouth to the making of Capt. Mafon's deed according to the pattent granted to the great councell of Plymouth, which renders his claime unvalide, if ever any thing in that kind was done, which we queftion.

From what is faid we humbly conceave Mr. Mafon has no right from Capt. Jno. Mafon.

And that his majeftie's commiffion does neither give nor confirme any title to the lands claimed, we prove :

(1) We humbly conceave that his royal majefty who is fo prudent a prince and fo folicitus for the peace of his fubjects, would not have left that matter doubtfull to his fubjects of this province but rather have told us that he had given all the lands to Mr. Mafon, but there is nothing of gift to him in the commiffion and if his majefly had (which we cannot believe he would) we fhould crave the benefit of the flatute in the 17° of Charles the first, which fays, No king and councell can alienate lands but by due courfe of law. But wee were never yet heard, and when it comes to legal tryal wee prefume the law of poffeffions will confirm our lands to us, feeing we have had peaceable poffeffion 50 yeares.

(2) If his majefty had given the lands in the province to Mr. Mafon, what can be underflood by that claufe in the commiffion 'That in cafe the inhabitants shall refuse to agree with Mr. 'Mafon, then the governor shall interpose and reconcile all differences if he can, but if he cannot then to fend the cafe, fairely flated to England that his majefty and privy councell might determine according to right;' which we humbly conceave puts puts a barr to any legal proceedings until his majefty's mind be further known therein. The inhabitants have offered their reafons to the governor according to commiffion, which he will not admit of, only did take of one, viz. Capt. Stileman, and promifed to fend them to England, but we can hear of no answer and much fear his neglect.

(3) His majefty in his commission fays, ' To prevent un-· reafonable demands that may be made by Mr. Mafon for the ' right he claimes,' which claime may prove good or bad when it comes to tryall. We understand to claime and to have are different things.

(4) His majefty intimates in his royal commission by what title Mr. Mafon does claime, viz. by a grant to his ancellors, ' who improved and poffelfed the province with great expence, ' until molefted and finally driven out ;' but this province cannot be concluded to be the place he claims until he make thefe circumstances appear, which we are fure he never can doe.

Now Mr. Mafon not producing any original deed for any of the lands of this province, nor authentique copies, the inliabitants cannot make any compliance with him both becaufe we fee no right he ever had, or believing if ever any was he hath mortgadged it already in England, and fo alienated what right he had.

Although upon the former grounds we have good plea against Mr. Mason's claime, yet we did not see cause to join issue, not only because judges and jurors were not qualified according to law, all of them being pickt for efpouling Mr. Mafon's intereft by the governor's order, who has a mortgadge for 21 yeares from Mr. Mason for all the lands in the province. But also becaufe wee was willing to attend the methods preferibed by his majefty in his royal commiffion.

No. XXI.

The answer of Elias Stileman to the summons from the honble Edward Cranfield, efq. governor of his majefty's province of N. Hampfhire in N. E. in purfuance of the method which his majefty hath been gratioufly pleafed to prefcribe in his commiffion.

Portfmo. the 15th of November, 1682.

I N obedience to your comand that I should render a reason why I refuse to now one why I refule to pay quit-rent unto Robert Mason, elq. (as he titles himfelf) for my houfe and lands, and take deeds from him for the confirming of the fame, I answer as followeth :

iftly. Betilly. Becaule my faid land I bought and paid for. The title unto which is fucceffively derived unto me from those that have possible of the terruption, and am in the possible of the possible of the possible of the terruption, and am in the possible of the possible of the possible of the terruption, and am in the possible of the possible of the possible of the terruption, and am in the possible of the possible of the possible of the terruption, and am in the possible of the possible of the possible of the terruption, and an in the possible of the possible of the possible of the possible of the terruption, and the possible of the p adly. I humbly conceive that being in poffeffion of what I have bought and built upon, it refts upon the claimer to make out his title (if he have any by law), begging the favour of an Euglifh fubject therein, that it may be first tryed upon the place, according to the flatute law and the opinion of his majefly's judges in England, and this before I am liable to pay quit-rent and take deeds of confirmation from him.

- 3dly. Should Mr. Mafon obtaine his demands, myfelf and the reit of the inhabitants would be undone forever, for then all his granted to him which hee calls commons being out of fence, which yet hath been bounded out by the feveral towns and poffelfed by them for thefe 50 yeares, and improved for the maintainance of their cattle both winter and fummer, and for timber and fire wood, without which there is no liveing for us, it being impoffible for us to fubfift upon that which in the commiffion is called gardens, orchards, if he may have the difpofal of the reft.

4thly. The faid Mafon fpeaks of many thoufands of pounds expended upon the place, which with fubmiffion cannot be made out, and if it could, what then have the poor planters expended in fo many yeares labour fince their firft fitting downe upon it, when they found it an howling wildernefs and vacuum .domicilium, befides a great expence of blood and eftate to defend it in the late Indian warr, nor can they to this day make both ends meet by all their labour and frugality, and therefore muft needs fink under the exaction of fuelra propriator.

5 thly. The land which Mr. Mafon claimes as propriator is the land on which fuch vaft expence hath been laid out by his grandfather Captain John Mafon, for the peopling of it and the land from whence his faid grandfathers fervants were violently driven out, or expeled by the inhabitants of the Maffathufets, but upon this land there was no fuch expence laid out by his grandfather Captain John Mafon for the end aforefaid, nor is this the land from whence any fervants of his faid grandfather were fo expelled, and therefore we that are poffetied of this this land are not concerned in his claime, hee hath miftaken his province and may endeavour to find it fome other where, for here is no fuch place.

6tilly. If Mr. Mafon had a patent here, why did he not take poffeffion in the day thereof. If hee were in poffeffion why did he not keen it ftill: None ever drove him out as he informs, had hee been once fettled he might to this day have kept it as the refl of the inhabitants have done without the leafl melliflation, but I am humbly of opinion that if he the fuid Mafon or any of his ayres came hither, they only came as many flips did to Newfoundland and to this countrey to make a fifting voyadge or beaver trade, and that being at an end departed and left their room to the next taker.

This is the fumme of what I have at prefent to answer, humbly requefting of your honour the flating of the cafe, with your opinion thereupon to his majefty as the commission directs; and when his majefty shall in his wildom and justice fee meet to order an hearing of the matter in his courts of jud'cature upon the place before a jury of uninterested and indifferent perfons which may be had out of the neighbouring province, (and poffibly Mr. Mafon may think not attainable in this province wherein all perfons are concerned,) as he hath been pleafed to doe by that part of Mr. Mafon's clume, which lyes under his majefty's government of the Maffathulets, I hope to be able upon thefe and other grounds fo far to make out my title as to be held unblameable before God and man, for not complying with his demands. Or if I thould fee caufe to appeal to his majefty and honourable councell that I thall be put beyond all need of paying quit rent to the pretended propriator.

Thus begginge your honour's favour, 1 subscribe,

Sir, your humble fervant,

E. S.

[The two preceding papers are in the hand of the humurable Prefident Weare.]

No. XXII.

Copy of an order for the administration of the factoments, accoring to the mode of the church of England.

At a councel held at Great Ifland, December 10, 1683. By the governor and councel.

New-Hampfn.

I T is hereby required and commanded, that all and fingular the refpective miniflers within this province for the time being, do from and after the first day of January next enumg, d d z admit admit all perfons that are of fuitable years and not vitious and fcandalous in their lives, unto the bleffed facrament of the Lord's fupper and their children unto baptifm. And if any perfors shall defire to receive the facrament of the Lord's fupper, or their children to be baptized according to the liturgy of the church of England, that it be done accordingly in purfuance of the laws of the realm of England, and his majefty's command to the Maffachufetts government. And if any minisher shall refuse for the done in that cafe made and provided, and the inhabitants are freed from paying any duties to the faid minisher.

The aforefaid order was published,

R. CHAMBERLAIN, clerk concil. [This paper is in the council minutes, fecond book.]

No. XXIII.

Copy of the information against Mr. Moody, 1683. New-Hampshire in New-England.

To Walter Barefoot, Efq. judge of the court of pleas of the crowne, &c. now fitting at Great Ifland. And to Nathaniel Frier and Henry Green, Efqrs. affiftants.

The information of Joseph Rayn his majefly's attorney general for the faid province of New-Hampshire, against Joshua Moody of Portsmouth in the faid province, clark, in his faid majesty's behalfe.

T HE faid Joseph Rayn informeth, that the abovefaid Joshua Moody being the prefent minister of the towne of Portfmouth aforefaid, within the dominions of our fovereign lord Charles' the fecond, king of England, is by the duty of his place and the laws and flatutes of the realme of England, (viz. the flatute made in the fifth and fixth of king Edward the fixth, and the flat. of the first year of the raign of the late queen Elizabeth, which is confirmed by the flatute made in the thirteenth and fourteenth year of the reign of our fovereign lord king Charles the fecond) required and commanded to administer the facrament of the Lord's supper in such manner and forme as is fet forth in the book of common prayer and administration of the facraments and other rites and ceremonies of the church of England, and fhall use no other manner or forme then is mentioned and fet forth in the faid book. Neverthelefs the faid Jofhua Moody in contempt of the faid laws and statutes hath wilfully and obstinately refused to administer the facrament of the Lord's fupper according to the manner and and forme fet forth in the faid book of common prayer, unto the houble Edward Crantield, efq. governor of his majefty's faid province of New-Hampfhire, Robert Mafon, efq. proprietor, and John Hinks, efq. of the faid province; and doth obflinately and willfully use fome other forme then is by the faid flatutes ordained, contrary to the forme thereof: Therefore the faid Jofeph Rayn in behalf of our fovereign lord the king, doth pray, That the faid Jofhua Moody being thereof convicted according to law, may fuffer fuch penalties as by the faid flat, are made and provided in that cafe.

Thi

No. XXIV.

Copy of a fecond information againf. Mosdy. New-Hampshire in New-England.

To the honble Walter Barefoot, efq judg of the court of pleas of the crown and other civil pleas, held at Great Island, and now fitting this 6th Feb. 1632, &c.

The information of Joseph Rayn his majefty's attorney general for the faid province, in his majefty's behalf against Joshua Moody of Portfmouth, clark.

TT HEREAS the faid Jofhua Moody hath in open court of the quarter feffions of the peace held at Gr. Ifland aforetaid upon record, confessed and owned before the justices, That he hath administred the facraments contrary to the rites and ceremonies of the church of England, and the form prefcrihed and enjoined by the flatute made in the first year of the late queen Elizabeth, and fo ftands convicted of the faid offence before the juffices at the faid feffions : Joseph Rayn his majelly's attorney general for the faid province, who profecutes for our fovereign lord the king doth (according to the ancient law of the statute made in the forty fecond year of the raign of king Edward the 3d, now in force) in his majefty's behalf, exh bit his information to this hon. court against the faid Jofhua Moody, for that he having for many years had the appearance and reputation of a minifler of God's word in the faid province, being within the king's dominions, and having wilfully and obstinately refused to administer the facraments according to the rites of the church of England, hath adminiftred the facraments of baptilm and the Lord's fupper in other manner and form than is appointed and commanded by the ftatute of the first of queen Elizabeth and other statutes, contrary to the form thereof and in contempt of his majefty's laws: And doth pray the court's judgment and that the faid Jofhua Moody may fuffer the penalties by the faid ftatute in No. XXV. this cafe made and provided.

No. XXV.

New-Hampfhire in New-England. To James S..erlock, gent. prov. marfhal and fheriff of the faid province, or his deputy.

I N his n ajedy's name you are hereby required forthwith to take and apprehend the body and perfon of Jofhua Moody of Portmouth in the faid province, clark, and carry him to the prifon or Great Ifland in the faid province; and the prifonkeeper, Richard Abbot, is hereby required to receive him the faid Joihua Moody and keep him in fafe cuttody in the faid pr fon, he having bin consisted of administring the faceraments contrary to the laws and statutes of England, and relating to administre the faceraments according to the rites and ceremonies of the church of England, and the form emissived in the faid flatutes. There to remain for the space of fix months next enfuing, without bail or mainprize. Fall not.

Dat. the chi of Feb. 1684.

	WALT	r. BAREFOO	T', (Sea!.)
	PETE	R COFFIN,	(Seal)
	HEN.	GREEN,	(Seal)
Vera copia,	HEN	ROBY,	(Seal.)
Teffe, Rich to Chan	nberlain, Clr	• P.	- 66
E il il i turnedi		:. 11 D 1. ?

[the three preceding papers are in the Recorder's office.]

No. XXVI.

Capy of an order for raifing money without an affembly. New Hamp.

At a councel held at Gr. Ifland, Fcb. 14, 1683.

By the governor and conncel.

THEREAS we have lately had intelligence by a letter from Capt. Hook to Capt. Barefoot one of the councel of this his majefty's province, that he had advice from the captain of the fort at Cafco of a fudden rifing and onfet intended by the Indians upon the English at the eastward : And whereas the affembly have been lately tendred a bill for raifing a revenue for the fortifying and defending our felves against his majefty's enemies, did abfolutely refuse and reject the fame without giving any reafon for fo doing, or preparing any other for defraying the charge of the public fervice. We his majefty's governor and councel finding the public treafury fo empty and bare that there is not fo much money as to pay a fingle meffenger; and those perfons that are the support of the province have not effates to support themselves in the war (if any (hould happen) without due payment for their fervice in confideration confideration of the premifes, by virtue of his majefly's royal commiffion bearing date the nineth of May 1682, and alfo of his majefly's royal intructions to the governor bearing date the 29th of April 1682, have, for the raiting a revenue for fortifying and defraying the neceffary charges of the government, that there may be a magazeen of ammunition and provifion, and of money to pay indigent fouldiers, as alfo for fuch emergencies as a war will neceffarily produce, thought fit to continue, and do hereby continue all fuch taxes and impolitions as have been formerly laid upon the inhabitants (excepting only the rate of the penny in the pound raifed in time of ufurpation without a general affembly) commanding and requiring all and fingular the conflables and collectors forthwith to perform their duty in levying and collecting the fame, and paying it in to the treafurer.

No. XXVII.

Copy of a letter from the council to Governor Dungan. Prov. of New-Hampshire, Mar. 21, 1683.

BY feveral advices we have received of a fudden rifing in-tended by the Indiane in thefere f Sir,) tended by the Indians in thefe caftern parts to fall upon the English, we judged it abfolutely necessary without delay to provide for the fafety and prefervation of his majefty's fubjects inhabiting this province, and to give releef (if need be) to our neighbouring colonics. We have therefore upon confideration of the best means for the fecuring of these provinces concluded it very neceffary to entertain a number of fouthern Indians for fouldiers, who are best acquainted with the manner of these Indians skulking fight; and this being a work of piety and charity for preventing the effution of chriftian blood : And knowing that your honor has an influence upon the fouthern Iudians our honourable governor was willing to take the trouble upon himfelf of a journey to New-York to treat with your honor for feuding of fuch a number of Mahiquas, or other Indians, as may be convenient to affift in this fervice, and to make fuch capitulations and agreement as to his honor fhall feem reafonable. We doubt not your honor's readinefs in any thing that may tend to his majefty's fervice and the fafety of his fubjects, having often heard a noble character of your honor from our governor, whom we have intreated to prefent our letter with our most humble fervice. We have committed all matters to his honor's prudence and management and what his honor shall judg fit to be done we shall fee performed. So praying praying for your honor's health and profperity, we fubfcribe ourfelvs, (being his majefty's council of New-Hampfhire) May it pleafe your hon. your moft humble fervants,

xlv

To the Honble Col. Tho. Dongan, governor of his royal highnefs his colony i of New-York, and the territories thereto belonging, humbly prefent.

ROBL MASON, WALTER BAREFOOT, R. CHAMBERLAIN, ROBL ELLIOT, JOHN HINKS.

[The two preceding papers are in the council's minutes, fecond book.]

No. XXVIII.

To the king's most excellent majefty.

The humble addrefs and petition of fundry of your majefly's loyal fubjects the freeholders and habitants of your majefly's province of New-Hampfhire in New-England,

Moft humbly fheweth, [From the towne of Exeter. THAT your petitioners predeceffors having under the encouragement of your majefty's royal anceftors by their letters patents to the great council of Plymouth, removed themfelves and fome of us into this remote and howling wildernefs in purfuance of the glorious ends propofed, viz. The glory of God, the enlarging his majefty's dominions, and fpreading the gospel among the heathen : And in order thereunto either found the land we now poffefs vacuum domicilium, or purchased them of the heathen the native proprietors of the fame, or at leaft by their allowance, approbacon or confent, have fate downe in the peaceable poffeffion of the fame for the fpace of above fifty years; hoping that as wee had attended the ends, foe wee fhould have fhared in the priviledges of those royal letters patents above menconed, and thereupon did the more patiently beare and chearefully graple with those innumerable evils and difficulties that muft neceffarily accompany the fettlers of new plantacons, especially in fuch climates as thefe, befides the calamities of the late Indian warr to the lofs of many of our lives, and the great impoverishment of the furvivors. Wee were alfoe further incouraged from your majefty's princely care in takeing us by your late commission under your majefty's immediate government, and appointing fome among ourfelves to govern us according to those methods there prescribed, being particulerly bound to difcountenance vice and promote virtue and all good liueing, and to keep us in a due obedience to your majefty's authority and continuance of our juft libertyes and propertyes, together with liberty of confcience ence in matters of worfhipp, and all in order to our liveing in all godlinefs and honefty, fearing God and honouring the king, which wee profefs to be our defire to doe.

But contrariwife partly by the unreafonable demands of our pretended proprictor Robert Mafon, efq. and partly from fundry other reafons that are either effects or concomitants thereof wee are in a farr worfe condition than any other your majefty's plantacons, and reduced to fuch confusions and extremities that neceffitate our humble application to your majefty, upon whofe elemency and juffice only under God we depend for our releife.

Your poore diftreffed and oppreffed petitioners doe therefore moft humbly fupplicate your moft gracious majefty that you will vouchfafe to give leave unto one of ourfelves, Mr. Nathaniel Weare, whom wee have fent for that end to fpread before your facred majefty and your moft honourable privy councell our deploreable effate, the beholding of which we doubt not will move compaffion toward us, and your majefty's propenfity to juffice will incline to the ufing fuch meanes as to your wifdome fhall feem belt that the oppreffed may be relieved, wronged ones righted, and we your majefty's almoft undone fubjects now proftrate at your feet, may upon the taffeing of your equity and goodnefs, be raifed and further engaged in all humility and thankfulnefs as in duty bound evermore heartily to pray, &c.

Andrew Wiggin, Thomas Wiggin fenior, Thomas Wiggin junior, Robert Smart fenior, John Yonug, John Foulfham, Edward Smyth, Peter Foulfham, Theophilus Durfely Richard Morgen, Samuel Leavitt, John Cotten junior, John Gilman fenior, Edward Gilman, Mofes Leaveitt, Jonathan Robinfon, Thomas Rawlins, David Robinfon, Kinfley Hall, Bily Dudley, James Sinkler, Chriftian Dolhoff, Philip Charte, Jeremiah Low, Ralph Hall, Samuel Hall, John Sinkler, John Wadleigh, Samuel Foulfham, Eleazar Elkins, Ephraim Foulfham, Humphrey Wilfon, Nathaniel Foulfham, Jonathan Thing.

The like petition from the town of Hampton in the faid province figned by,

Nathaniel

Nathaniel Bachiler. John Marfton, James Philbrick. Jacob Browne, Thomas Browne, Henry Lamper, Jonathan Wedgwood, Henry Moulton, John Moulton, Joseph Smith, David Wedgwood, James Cheufe, James Perkins, Morris Hobbs fenior, Joseph Moulton, Benjamin Moulton, Thomas Levitt, Thomas Derborne, John Levitt, Henry Derborne, Aratus Levitt, Chriftopher Huffey, John Tucke, John Smith, Thomas Page, Philip Towle, Jofiah Sanbourne, William Sanbourne fenior, Ruth Johnfon, widow, Richard Sanbourne, Thomas Walker, Ifaac Godfrey, Humphrey Perking, David Lamprey, George Hunt, Peter Ball, John Sherborne fenior, Samuel Wentworth, Sp. Lovell, Richard Webber, Richard Waterhoufe, William Davell, John Cotten, Benjamin Lauyre, William Fuller, John Sanbourne, Hefron Leavit, Samuel Shuerborne, Francis Page, Peter Weare, Benjamin Browne, Thomas Philbrick, Timothy Blake, Jacob Perkins, Jonathan Philbrock, Ebenezer Perkins, Caleb Perkins, Joseph Perkins, Joseph Dow, John Clifford fenior, Samuel Philbrook, Joseph Shaw, John Clifferd, Benjamin Shaw, Samuel Cogg, Timothy Hillyard, Anthony Stanyan, John Stanyan, Joseph Sanbourne, Ifaac Perkins, Mofes Swett, Joseph Swett, Jufeph Cafs, Duel Clemens, Samuel Cafs, John Sanbourne fenior.

The like petition from Portfmouth in faid province, figned by, Thomas Wacombe, Obadiah Mors, Nicolas Morrell, Samuel Keais, John Dennett, John Tooke, Edward Melcher, George Lavers, Jacob Lavers,

Calomart

Calomart Mashawes, John Barfham, John Shipiyay, John Johnfon, John Sherborne junior. Thomas Pickerin, John Light, William Pitman. ames ones, William Cotton, James Levit, Jechro Furbur, Edward Ball, Thomas Cotton, Daniel Duggen, Francis Jones, John Partridge, Robert Parinton, Nehemiah Yartridge, Jotham Lewis, Anthony Brackett, Job Clements. Thomas Roberts, Edward Allen, William Furbur fenior, Henry Santer, Richard Rowes, Anthony Nutter, John Dam, William Furburi unior. John Dam junior, John Nutter, Thomas Row, Edward Row, John Meadow, Philip Chefley, Joseph Stephenson, Thomas Chefley, Joseph Hinneder, Stephen Jones, Edward Small, Nathanael -----James Hucking, Catharias Jerlld, Ezekiel Wentworth,

John Brackett, Matthias Haines, Samuel Haines, Samuel Haines junior, William Fifield fenior, Walter Neal, Leonard Weeks, Nathaniel Drake, John Hunking, Richard Jofes, Jane Joles, John Fletcher, Richard Martyn, Ph. Sueret, Richard Waldron, Ben. Hull, John Cutt. William Vaughan, George Jaffreys, John Pickering, John Builter. The like petition from the towne of Dover, figned by, Paul Wentworth, Gerard Gyner, Jenkins lones, Joleph Canne, Richard Waldron, John Winget, John Gerifh, William Wentworth, John Heard, John Roberts, John Hall, jun. Robert Burnum, Saml Burnum, Jeremiah Burnum, Samuel Hill, Ralph Wormley, William Horn, Peter Mafon, John Woodman f nior, John Woodman nior, Ionsthan Woodman, John Davis senior, John Davis junior, Joseph

xlix

Jofeph Fields, Sam. Adams, John Bickford, William Parkinfon, Thomas Eickford, Joteph Hill, Thomas Edgerly, Nathan. Hill, John Hill, John Roberts. Charles Adams, [From a copy in the hands of the honourable prefident Weare.]

No. XXIX.

The deposition of Peter Coffin, esq. one of his majesty's justices of the peace for New-Hampshire, being sworn, faith,

T H A T fometime in the beginning of February, A. D. $168\frac{3}{4}$, I the deponent was prefent at the house of Mr. John Hincks in company with the hon Edw. Cranfield, efq. governor of this province, where I heard the faid governor fend for Mr. Wm Vaughan, and when the faid Vaughan came the governor enquired of him what affidavits those were he had that day defired to be taken. The faid Vaughan answered, those that concerned his cause against Mr. Mason. The governor afked him who they were, he answered, if he might have fummons he would bring them before his honour to be fworn ; and then the governor brake out into a paffion and told him, the faid Vaughan, that he was a mutinous fellow, and afked him what he went lately to Bofton for; the faid Vaughan answered he went about his bufiness. . Then the governor faid he went to carry a mutinous petition to be fent to England by Weare, and afked him what veffel Weare went in; Mr. Vaughan answered that he left Weare in Boston. Then the governor faid, that by the next fhips after Weare was got to England and had prefented his petition, he should have an account of the perfons names that fubfcribed it returned to him, and that it would be the beft hawl he ever had, for it would be worth f. 100 a man. The governor further faid, that the faid Vaughan was a mutinous fellow, and required of him bonds to the good behaviour; Mr. Vaughau answered he knew none of the king's laws he had broken, but if he could be informed of his crime he was ready to give bonds. And that in the whole difcourfe Mr. Vaughan demeaned himfelf with a great deal of moderation and fubmiffion. Notwithflanding which the governor commanded a mittimus to be writ and figned the fame with his own hand, whereupon the faid Vaughan was forthwith committed to prifon.

PETER COFFIN.

Peter Coffin, efq. the above named deponent, appearing in the town of Kittery in the pro-province of Maine this 27th of January 1684-5, made oath to the above written, before me, CHARLES FROST, Inft. of Peace.

No. XXX.

The warrant and mittimus whereby William Vaughan, Efq. was committed to prifon.

New-Hampshire.

To James Sherlock, gent. fherif and provoft marshal of the faid province, or his deputy.

I N his majefty's name you are hereby required to take and apprehend the body of William Vaughan, of Portfinouth Efq. and carry him to the prifon of Great Ifland; And Richard Abbot the prifon keeper thereof, is hereby required to receive the faid Vaughan into the faid prifon and there keep him in fafe cuflody till he fhall give good fecurity to our fover. lord the king his heirs and fucceffors for his the faid Vaughan's good behaviour towards the fame our fover. lord the king, he having refufed to find fecurity for his faid good behaviour the fixth day of February 1683. Given under my hand and feal the faid fixth day of February 1683.

EDWARD CRANFIELD, (L.S.) [The two preceding papers are in the recorder's office.]

No. XXXI.

A letter from William Vaughan, Efq. containing a journal of transactions during his imprisonment, &c. to Nathaniel Weare, Ejq. 'agent in London.

Mr. Nathaniel Wire, SIR,

Portsmouth, 4th Feb. 1682.

THESE ferves to give covert to the inclosed which ware unhappily miflaid, and fo brought to Portfmouth infled of beinge carried by you to London though on the other hand you carried many papers for London which oughte to have been at Portfmouth. There ware feverall papers in the bondle which ware very impertinente unto your bufinefs, and the transportinge of them very prejudicyall to fom here, your effeoyall care aboute them is expected, yet may be fafely returned with you if not transmitted by you before your returne. Wee are now a doeinge aboute getinge evidenfes fworne, which you shall have a further account by the firste, tho' retarded much by havinge no copies of them as wee expected. Sinfe your departure much ado have been made, many execucyons extended, viz. upon Mrs Cutt, Daniele, myfelf, Mr. Fletcher, Moody. Hunkins, Earle, Pickeringes, Booth, &c. I went to prifon but

· but was redeemed with money, feverall dores ware broken open by Matthews the marshall's deputy, cheftes also and trunks and carried out of the houfes till redeemed with money. John Partridge and Wm Cotten are in prifon and have been fundry daies. No pay (as fifh, fheep, horfes, &c.) would be taken for their executions, fo there bodyes ware levied upon and there they lye. Our menister for refusinge to admenester the facrament to the gouernor is bound over to the quarter feffions to fit to morro, the ifshew weeknow not but fix months imprifonment thretned. Your wife and famely well. Grete blufter at Hamton about the petityon, fom weekelinges ware whegled into a confession and they discovered the periones that carried the petityon, who ware by juftis G. & R. bound over to the quarter fessions, but last Satterday night (on what ground know not) Mr. Greene burnte there bonds and only tould them they multe appere when cold for. Charles Hilton is lately ded. As other newes arrives shall hand it to you by all occatyones and doe you the like by us.

th. Quarter feffions are come, and there Capt. Barefoote, Mr. Fryer, Coffin, Greene, Roby, Edgerly, were juffices, Raines was attorny. It was brought in as a plea of the crowne. Mr. Moody pleaded his not beinge ordained, havinge no maintenanfe according to ftatute and therefore not obliged to that worke which the flatute required Befides these flatutes were not made for these plases, the knowne end of there removal hither beinge that they might enjoye liberty in thefe forrin plantatyones which thefe could not have by vertew of the ftatutes at home, and ware allowed to have here, efpecyally our comityon grantinge liberty of contyenfe. These things ware pleded, but to no purpofe, after a fhorte pleding and that not withoute many interoptyones and fmiles by the pragmatticke, bufey impertenente atturny, he was comited to the marshall, (viz. Longe Matthews) and held in cutlody that night tho' permitted to lodge at Capt. Stileman's. The juffifes debated a littell, foure of them entered there defente, viz. Mr i ryer, Greene, Roby, Edgerly, but Capt. Barefoote and Coffin ware for his condemnatyon. Judgment of the cafe, every man's was entered by the fecretary over night, but being deferred till nexte morninge informatyon was given to fomebody who came in and thretned and hectored after fuch a rate that Green and Roby alfo confented as you fee by the inclosed, and hee was comited to prifon. Petyon was by him made to the courte, and afterward to the governor, that hee might flep up at nighte to his famely and fettle matters there, and that he mighte not goc goe into the difmall plafe the comon priffon. The court could not, the governor would not of firfle, tho' in fine gave leave to the marihall to droap him at Capt. Stileman's, where he is confined to his chamber, tho' not without leave to goe downe flaires or into the bakefide, and this was done 6th inflante. At night I havinge moved for the takeinge of evedenfes, which was in words owned, wente to the feeretary for fummones, intendinge to begin with Lift Hanll and Thos. Wiggones, hee refufed to give fummones but firfle (I fuppofe) multe informe fomebody, I was fent for by the marihall, huffed and hectored flrangely, thretned, &c. in fine, multe give bonds to the good behaviour; I refufed, thereupon he made and figned my mittymos to the priffon, though by the way, I knowe not how, was alfo droped at and confined to Mr. Moody's chamber, where wee have bin this two nightes very chareful together.

lii

Poore Wadlow who was left to the governor's mercy is com oute upon fecurity for forty pounds mony, and your Gove for a like fome, only Win Partridge is to doe it in worke, buildinge and fenfing, &c. The actyons goe on and are turned of hand apafe, twolve at a clapp, after the ould manner. Roby though a jufis is ftill of the jury. A new tricke is on foote, feverall of us that ware executed upon and paid our mony the firthe fute, are fued againe for illegal witholdinge poffeffion, tho' the marfhall (who was by executyon required to give poffeffion never came to demand it ;) the iffue of which wee know not, matters being yet dependinge.

9th. The prifoners Vaughan and Mr. Moody ware fetched out of priffon to plede there caffes at the courte. Mrs Cutt. Daniell, John Partridge and myfelf and Mr. Moody ware fued and all caffe, but the lafte who had fomethinge particulerly to faye, and foe he caffe Mr. Mafon, though wee thought wee all faid enoufe to caffe him, viz. that hee had an executyon for the land fued for, and when he levied his executyon mighte have taken the land alfo, with many other things (enoufe of wee thought) to have turned the cafe againft him before anny indiferente judges and jurrors, but thus wee are tretted.

But above all our menefter lyes in priflon, and a fammin of the word of God cominge upon us. No public worthip, no preachinge of the word, what ignoranfe, profanes and mifery muft needes enfue ! By the premifes you fee what need there is you fhould be vigoros and fpeedy as you may eaboute your bufnes to doe what may be to the preventinge of uter min.

My imprifonment is a prefente flop to the getinge what evedenfes is needful, and it's like we shall not make anny further ther attempt here, but with what conveniente expedytyon will be don what is needful and neceffary. Mr. Martin was fued at the courte in two actyones, one by Mr. Mafon for fines & forfetures collected and received by him as treafurer from feventy nine to eighty two, and another actyon by the governor for fines, &c. from April eighty two. He is caffe in both actyones to the valew of about feventy pounds, although hee pleded that what hee received was difpofed by order of the authority which made him treafurer, and had as good comityon from his mageflie as that was in beinge, neither did it legally appeare that ether Mr. Maffon or the governor have anny righte to fines and forfetures, the kinge appointinge all publicke mony to be difpofed or improved for the fupporte of the government; however it is but afke and have, there demands in any cafe have the force of an executyon.

10th. The fabbath is come but no prechinge at the Banke, nor anny allowed to com to us; we had noone but the fameley with us, the pore peple wantinge for lake of bred. Motyones have bin made that Mr. Moody may goe up and prech on the Lord's daye, tho' hee com downe to prision at night, or that naibor ministers might be permitted to com and prech, or that the peple might com downe to the priffon and here as many as could, but nothing will doe; an unparraieled example amongst christians to have a menester putt oute and no other way found to fupply his plafe by one menes or other. Mr. Frier was feverely thretned for refufeinge to fubfcribe Mr. Moody's comitment, but hath obtained fairely a difmityon from all publike offices. Justis Edgerly also caishered, and bound over to the quarter feffiones. It is faid that justis Greene is much afflicted for what hee has done, but Roby not. Peter Coffin can fcarfe fhow his hed in anny company*.

14th. Nufe came from the fourte at Cafco that there was greate danger of the Indyanes rifinge, which hath occatyoned a meetinge of the counfeil and fome difcourse, but here no more finfe and hope it may vanish.

15th. Good Mrs Martin was buried, beinge not able to live above one faboth after the flutting up the dores of the fanctuary.

^{*} Mr. Moody in the church records remarks thus on his judges: "Not "long after Green repented and made his acknowledgment to the pafter "who frankly forgave him. Robie was excommunicated out of Hamp-"ton church for a common drunkard and died excommunicate, and was "by his friends thrown into a hole near his houfe for fear of an arreft of "his carcafe. Barefoote fell into a languithing diftemper whereof he "died. Coffin was taken by the Indians, [at Cochecho 1689] his houfe "and mill burnt, himfelf not being flain but difinified; the Lord give "him repentance, though no figns of it have yet appeared."!

ary. Somebody hath faid that the imprifoninge of the minister is noone of his worke, hee did but constitute the courte, they did it themfelves, tho' alfo hath faid hee would have don it himfelfe if they had not.

17th. Another fad faboth.

18th. Came Mr. Mafon, Barefoote and fecretary, with Thurton, who fwore against mee a falle oath, of which have inclosed a copia. Thurton faid he was fent for on purpose to give in his teftimony against mee; they wente away, and foon after came the inclosed mittimos directed to Mr. Raines hoo is thereff and marshall in Mr. Sheerlock's roome that have bin out of favor of late, though now it is faid in favor but not in plafe againe. Mr. Eftwicke is alfo put oute of all offis. Noote, that when I wente to him for takeinge oathes, hee faid all oathes should be taken before the governor and counfell, but now could fend to juftifes to doe it. We had for fom nightes our key taken away from the chamber dore about 8 or 9 at nighte but have finse left off that trade. Sowell of Exeter is ded. Severall overtures ware made this weeke to John Partridge and Wm Cotten by Raines to com oute of priffon he giveinge them three monthes time to provide mony or anny other currante paye, tho' they tendered fifh, planke, &c. before they ware put in, they refused to accept.

24th. This fabboth our wives, children and fervants came downe and fpente the daye with us in our chamber, and wee yet here nothinge faid againste it.

.25th. The marshall goes and levies upon John the Greeke's sheep and cattle for the executyon, for which hee had laine aboute three weekes in priffon, and then came and ordered him to goe about his-busneffe, 15 sheepe, fundry lambes, and two haifers fezed for fix pounds od mony. This day allfo Mr. Jaffery havinge had fundery warninges the weeke before to clere his houfe becafe Mr. Maffon would com and take poffeffion of it, wente never the les to the Banke upon bufnes ; mene while came Mr. Mafon with the marshall and turned all his fervants out of dores, fet another locke on the dore, and at night when his fervants came home wett they would not fuffer them to com in, but there lodged Matthews and Thurton all nighte. Mr. Mafon faid while aboute this worke that he was forry Wire had no more of this nufe to carry hoome with him.

The governor haveinge fente to Mr. Cotton, that when he had prepared his foule hee would com and demand the facrament of him as hee had don at Portfmouth alredy. Mr. Cotton the latter end of the weeke before lafte went to Bofton and has has bin oute two Lord's days alredy; all is well with yours there, foe far as I can learn, I cannot goe to fee elfe might have given them a vifite.

Î¥

One word more aboute my bufnes. I am under imprisonment aboute 'Thurton's bufnefs, being feized by the marshall and comited when in priffon before for not giveing bond for the good behavior, tho' nothinge charged upon me any more than before, which you well know. I know nothing but they intend to keep mee here endlefsly; it's faide I muste paye one hundred pounds for firikeinge one of the king's officers and muste have my name returned into the exchequer and muste lye in priffon till the mony be paid and I am difcharged from the exchequer. The defigne you may efely fee is to ruine mee, and how vaine my ples will be you maye efely gueffe. Tho? I have manny thinges to faie, viz. that Thurton was ether no officer or at lefte not knowne to be fo, however not fworne, nor did I ftrike him in the hyewaye as hee fweares, nor is there anny proofe but his own fingle teltimony, which how far it availes in fuch a cafe would be confidered ; it s alfo worthy of inquire whether ever that law was intended for us, here beinge no cuftoms to be gathered, no exchequer to be applyed to, and therefore how these methods can be observed is not intellegable. You may efely imagen how things will be if I am forfed to complye with there humors. Pray confult, confider, and fee if fomethinge may not be done to putt a ftop to fuch arbetrary profeedings, a triall on the plafe by indifferente unconferned judges and jurors if at lefte there can anny fuch be found hoo will not be forfed into what fome will have done; but I shall not need to instruct you; there you have better counfell then I can give you, and of your fedelyty to inquire and remitte by the firste what is needful on this account I doute not.

I have given you but a tafte, wee that fee it know more then can poffibly bee underflood by those that only here; in a word, fuch is the haith of there heat and raidge that there is no livinge for us longe in this condityon. Butt wee hope God will bee feene in the mounte.

I fhould have inferted what fell oute after the defolvinge of the rebellyous affembly, there was difcourfe of conftables, and infted of the freemen's chufinge as formerly they tooke a florte and cheper courfe, and at the quarter feffions conftables were chofen and to begin with Mr. Speker, he has the honner to be conftable for Portfmonth, Capt. Gerrifh, Lt. Nutter and John Woodman for Dover, Smith the cooper for Hamton, John Foulfham Foulfham at Exeter. Whether Mr. Speker fhall ferve or fine is not yet determined. And now I am spekinge of the general affembly, muste hinte what was formerly forgotten, vz. that they convened on the Mondaye and the choice of the fpeker (there ould one) in words hily approved and hee complemented alamode. Then a bill was fente them downe (of which if I can get it being now in priffon shall inclose a copia) which they talked a littel of and then brake up for the nighte and went up to the Banke to lodge (the tide ferving very well to goe and com), the reporte of which hily difgufted, and the next morning the answer to the bill vehemently urged, which was in fine a negative. Hereopon in a grete raidge telling them they had bin up to confult with Moody an uter enemy to church and coman welth with much of like nature, liee diffolved them, which was don on the Tuefday, after which he came up to the Banke and gave order for a facrament on the next Lord's daye as you have herd and finfe the affembly men pricked for constables.

By the premifes you will fee how the governor is makeinge good his word, hee came for mony and mony he will gete, and if hee get it you know hoo mufte loofe it, and how mefereable mufte our condityon quickly be if there be no remedy quickly provided. Hee contrives and cutts out worke and finds evill inftrewments to make it up, and thefe fom among ourfelves. Thus wee are cloven by our owne limbes.

28th. Sinfe Mr. Jaffery was difpoffeffed, Raines offered him for five fhillings per annum quit-rent to Mr. Mafon, hee fhould have his houfe againe, provided hee would owne him proprietor, but hee refufinge it is faid hee fhall never have it againe. The talke is that his houfe must be court-houfe and priston booth, and ftandinge fo nere the governor it is judged futable for booth those ends, that hee may have the fhorter journey to courte and the pristoners may bee alwaies under his eye.

² 29th. John the Greeke havinge laine fom weekes in priffon upon executyon, his goods haveinge bin levied upon (as above), was by Raines locked oute of the priffon and bidden to be gon, but hee would not, keepes his quarters ftill with the other two. This daye his goods was fold by the marshall and bought by Thurton.

• Mr. Cotton is com home from Bofton. Grete offence taken here at a fermon hee preched in 'Bofton on Acts xii. 5. tho' plefinge to the hearers.

March 2d. This day Mr. Jeffery's goods ware all turned oute of dores by the fheriff, &c. his man received and difpoled

e e 2

of

of them. Againste Jaffery there are two oathes taken, fingle oathes, but beinge for the king will passe, and orders are given for warrants to apprehend him, he apperes not.

March 5. It is faid that they are goinge this daye to Major Waidrone's to ferve him as they have done Mr. Jafferey, and it's given out that the refle will be treted in like manner; the courte was adjourned yefterdaye to the nexte month pbably that they mighte levey the executyons that are in Banke before they cutt oute anny more worke Juftis Green feems fomethinge troubled for fendinge the menefter to priffon, and faith hee will never doe fuch a thinge againe, but Peter Coffin faith it is a nine dayes wonder and will foone be forgotten, but others thinke otherwife. If they go on thus wee are utterly ruined, mufte goe away or flarve if at lefte wee be not fo confined that wee cannot goe awaye nether. I queftyon whether annic aidge can parralell fuch actyones.

In my laste I fente you a letter to Sir JOSIAH CHILD my master, of which also you have another copia herewith. My defigne is that you carry the letter yourfelfe, waite on him while he reades it, and if he will plefe to here you (as I hope hee mayc) that you amplyfic matters, informe him what further intelligens you have and attende his directyon, if God move his hearte to doe oughte for us. This daye the governor fente us word by the marshall that wee must remove to Mr. Jafferey's house to morro, which house is made the prison. Wee hope the nuse of the rifinge of the Indyans will faule to nothinge.

Ditto 5th. Thus far was fente you by wave of Barbados. It fallowes. The governor did faie to a Salem man that Moody might goe out of the prifon, if hee would goe out of the provinfe, but wee here no more finfe.

'James Robinfon under grete rauth and in much danger only for fpeakinge fomthinge to Thurton (of his being a pittiful fello, &c.) while faid Thurton was active in turning out Mr. Jafferey's goods.

6th. Matthews and Thurton hunted for Mr. Jafferey, ferched in Mrs. Cutt's houfe, wente into every room above and below ftaires, ferched under her bed where fhe lay fike in it but found him not. They carried it very rudely and bafely in there worke. Matthews faid he would caitch him or have his harte blud, but hee was not there. Mr. Jafferey's goods were carried to the other fide by nighte.

It is faid that our imprisonment has much [alarmed] the hoole countrey and made them more fond of ther liberties.

This

This nighte Matthews was beten at Merfore's (fom fudlinge boute its like), but its made a mity thing on, faid to be a deepe plot, deeper then Gove's, managed by ftrong heds, and abundanie of that nature, and becaufe the perfons conferned ware under the inflewenfe of Vaughan and Moody they fhould fuffer for it, for not techinge them better. Tho' wee know no more of it then you, nor is there ought in it worth notis, but thus we are treted. The governor went up to the Banke and made grete inquiries aboute it. Capt. Pickeringe and others that ware in the fraie are bound over.

7th They had fix pounds five fhillings of Obadia Mors by waye of executyon. Raines was difcarded beinge put oute of beinge fheriffe, &c. tho' he had his comityon under the fealé but the other daye. Matthews is made provost marshall (at lefte) in his roome and Thurton marshall's deputy. Good burds for fuch offifes. Lord have mercy upon us. They had also eighteen shillings from Sam. Cafe, the refte is defered, and hee has put awaye his goods and intends to remove or goe to prifon, and fo wee muste all.

11th. The Indyan nufe occatyoned an order to the truffees to get aminityon, they came down and pleded their time was up, it was faid you shall keepe in during my pleasure. They faid they had no mony of the townes in their hands, nor could anny be raifed withoute a general affembly. Then laye out your owne mony or elfe woe to you; and this they are faine to comply with.

Hee faid and fwore that if Maffon would not acknowledge a judgment nexte courte of fix hundred pounds, he would take all his bufnes from him and few in his owne name. Hee fwore hee would turne out that rooge Ellet who is as bad as anny other.

Mr Waldron beinge fente for by warrant to com before the juftifes to take the conftables oath, appered before Mr. Maffon and Capt. Barefoot, but excufeinge it and giveinge good reafon was difmiffed upon payinge five pounds; but pore Capt. Barefoot was mofte ferefully rutted at for his labor, many oathes Iworne that Waldron fhould ether take the oath or ether take up with a goale. The nexte daye (tho' the juftifes hoofe bufnes it is, had fairely difmiffed him) he was convented againe, the oath tendered, hee thretned with a priffon imedyately, but tould them he knew the law better than foe, then they tooke his one bond to anfwer it at quarter feffiones, and fo far of that matter as yet. Another conftable is chofen, viz. Capt. Pickeringe, tho' hee have as yet waved the oath, haveing lately ferved ferved in that plafe, and pleding his being bound to good behaviour for that lafte fraye. He taulks much of friggets to fcare the pore peple.

14th. Counfell fat and could not agree aboute raifinge mony, which hily provoked fomebody. They faid the general affembly only could raife mony.

The governor tould Mr. Jaffery's negro hee mighte goe from his mafter, hee would elere him under hand and fele, fo the fello no more attends his mafter's confernes.

15th. This day the fecretary was in a grete raidge turned oute of all his offifes exepte fecretary to the counfell, (an emty name, littel proffite) and the bookes fente for oute of his hands. Hee is much conferned and dejected.

I am credible informed and you maye beleeve it, that the governor did in the open counfell yefterdaye faye and fware dredfully, that hee would put the provinces into the gretefte confution and diftractyon hee could poffible and then goe away and leve them foe, and then the devell take them all. Hee alfo then faid that Mr. Maffon faid hee would drive them into a fecond rebellyon, but himfelfe would doe it before; and I wonder he has not, fuch actings are the redy way, but God hath kepte us hether to and I hope he will doe fo ftill. Hee alfo faid and fwore that anny perfon that fhould have any manner of converte with us or any of our mind, he would counte them his utter enemies and carry toward them as fuch.

17th. The governor havinge formerly prohibited the prifoners from makeing fhingles wente himfelfe this day to the priffon and prohibited John Partridge from makeing fhoes, bad the marshall throw them into the fea.

This daye Raines beinge not willinge to give up a warrante that he had executed duringe the fhorte time of beinge fheriffe, was fent for by the governor, and not apperinge, the governor came to his chamber and did bete him dredfully, and bad the marfhall carry the rouge to gaile. Hee remaines cut of favour ftill. The governor allo went over to Capt. Hooke's and got him to give warrants to the conftables on the other fide to ferch all houfes for Mr. Jaffery and bring him over, but they found him not, nor is he yet found, tho' proclamatyon was made at Wells courte for his fefure, tho' not yet done.

March 18. This morninge came Matthews to our chamber and faid the governor fente him to carry mee to the priffon, where I am, where I ftill ly; being put in only for Thurton's actyon and kepte in tho' I offered fecurety to refpond it. I thinke they have let fall the other aboute the good behaviour, feeinge

ix

Teeinge they can make nothinge of it, and before my cominge in John the Greeke's bed, &c. was turned out of priffon and he forfed away, whoo would not depart before.

21ft. Mr. Martin came to difcorfe aboute the mony he was caffe for, which they have not yet levied upon him, but intend to laye it upon all the ould counfell equally that each maye bare his fhare; at fame time the governor tould Mr. Martin that hee would feud his executyon. Said Mr. Martin, you know it is not my dew to paye the mony. No matter (faid he), I counte mony and will have it. But I have none faid hee; then I will take your houfe. Hee added alfo to Mr. Martin, that hee was a church member and he would watch him and all fuch, and be fure to paye them of if he could caitch them.

22d. The forreft florm and the hiefle tide that ever was knowne. Many thoufands of pounds damidge in Bofton and much here. The bridge to the Grete Island broaken of in the middle to the grete joye of manny.

2 (th. The governor wente to Bofton in Foxe's floop, intendinge thenfe to New-Yorke, pretendinge to difcorfe Colonall Dangham and bringe downe two hundred Mowhawkes to kill the elfward Indyanes. What is at the botham or will be the ifshew God knowes. Hee had a could trete at Bofton, flaidd not a nighte in towne. Sinfe his goinge we have had littel nnfe worthy of your notis, but all things have bin very quiet hethertoo.

I have not inlarged upon these particulers to my matter CHILD, but if hee will take anny notis of the thinge and be confernd aboute it hee will then give you oppertunyty of difcourfeing him, and you may informe what is further neidfull.

3 ift. This month paffed oute and the other came in without anny noife, unles the grete joye that was at the Banke by Mr. Moodye's going up thether and my goinge onfe or twice after with our keepers, by Mr. Malon's permityon who prefides in the governor's ablence; but wee foone returned to the plafe from whenfe wee came.

April 8th. Nath. Fox who married Mrs Stileman's dafter fent Matthews to arrefte Capt. Stileman for his wive's portyon (tho' it was often tendred him in fuch paye as the courte ordered it, but hee would have it in mony.) Capt. Stileman gave his own house and all that was in it for securety to answer the actyon, but Matthews bringinge Thurton with him at his instegatyon, who was terrebly infolente, they arefled the wooman Mrs Stileman and carried her to prison with much violense and course usage, the' her husband had given securety. Shee was was carried in the evening. Capt. Stileman wrote to Mr. Mafon, he protefted against it and wrote to the marshall, it would not doe. He wente againe and Mr. Masson wroote againe, but to no purpose, they kept her there till the nexte morninge; a thinge not to be paraleled in the English nation ! Complainte hath bin made but no remedy. Abbot beinge up at the Banke with mee, Thurton tooke the key of the prisson, and when Abbot came would not permitt him to goe in, but turned him awaye. Brave doinges ! No tunge can tell the horrible imperyousness and domanereinge carridge of that wretch. The nexte morninge Mr. Masson (much a doe) got Mrs Stileman oute and the gaillor into his plase againe.

Mr. Maffon gave leve for anny minister to com and pretch at the Banke, so that we got Mr. Phillops for two Lord's dayes, viz. 13th and 20th, haveing bin nine Lord's dayes without a fermone.

April 14th. Came H. Greene to Mr. Moody's chamber and made a confeffion of his faulte and begged his pardon for putting hum in priffon, and faid hee would get him oute at quarter feffiones, &c. Good words, butt — _____. Capt. Barefoote went to the priffon and tould John Partridge that if hee would give an order to allow fo much as his charges came to oute of what the provines owed him aboute Gove, for the fouldyers, &c. hee fhould come oute of priffon, and they would paye him the remainder, the hoole beinge aboute thurty pounds, but hee was not forward lette hee fhould in fo doinge quitt them of falfe impriffoninge him; but if they would doe it themfelves, flop fo they mighte. Nothing is done in it.

15th. Matthews and Thurton ware fente to Hamton to levie executyones and ferve attatchments and warne jureymen for the courte in May.

They arrefled feaven, amonge which Capten Shourborne one, warned the ould jureymen, executed upon Wm Sanborne, tooke foure oxen which ware redeemed by mony, drove away feven cowes from Nath. Batchelor, wente to your houfe, met your fon Peter goinge with his foure oxen into the woods, commanded him to turn the oxen hoome, he would not; they curfed, fwore, drew upon him, thretned to run him through, bette him, but hee did not firike againe. They came to your houfe, ware fhutt oute, your wife ferefully fcared for fere of her fon who was oute with them. At length fnee lett them in, laid three pounds on the table which they tooke and then levied on feverall young cattel but relefed and lefte them. Your fon came hether to advife, but complaininge is bootlefs, fuch a difa difinal cafe are wee in. They tooke awaye two bedds from ould Perkins, but his fon offered his perfon and they tooke it and quitted the other; what more they did there wee as yet here not.

Capt. Gerifh, John Woodman, Liften. Nutter and Nath. Batchelor are fworne conftables.

17th.' I went to Mr. Maffon at Capt. Barefoote's house and had feverall witneffes with mee, and defired him to take depofityoues that I mighte fend them hoome, aboute my cafe and the refte of the cafes, butt hee refused. The governor had putt mee in priffon when I afked him, and now in his abfents the deputy governor denies to grant them. I hope this will be matter of jufte complainte, that we fhould be hindered from applyinge to his majelty for relefe under our oppreffiones. You will have evedenfe of his denial fente home, fworne before fom of the Baye mageflrates; wee can doe no more unles the Baye should affiste us, which they are loath to doe and wee are loth to putt them upon as matters are furcomstansed with them : but wee thinke it fhould be taken very hainoufly by all that love juftis and willinge to admenester it, that his magefties fubjects should bee thus treated. Surely they are afraid or ashamed of there actyones (and they may be boath) elfe they would not be fo fhye of having them knowne.

This is what offers here, what moore neidfull coz Waldron will advife from Bofton. With dew refpects remaine,

Your affured friend and fervant.

For Mr. Nath. Wire, in London.

A difcourfe with the governor aboute my imprifonment, May 84. [Subjoined to the foregoing letter.]

AT a feffiones held the 6th May, 1684, I was denied counfell, and to have witneffes fworne. Mr. Waldron, Captain Stileman and Captain Frofte were prefented.

10th. The governor was with me in prifon. Mr. Chamberlin, Mr. Hinkes and Mr. Sherloake with him.

The governor proffered mee (that whereas 1 was fined by the juftices in Thurton's cafe, that I might thinke they had not done mee rite) that if I would profecute it (giveing fecurety fo to doe,) in the king's bench at Weftminfter, the exchequer, or before kinge and counfell, I fhould; though by his comityon hee could not do it. My anfer was, unles I could have fecurety given mee that in cafe I thould recover, I might have my charge and damidge made mee good, it would be of no benefit to mee. He faid there was no refon for that, becafe it was for the kinge; though it was his becafe Mr. Mafon had refind refind up to the kinge all fines and forfitures and the kinge had given it to him. But he faid if I would depofite a valuable fom hee would doe the like and would give bond, and have it tried as abovefaid. My anfwer was I thoughte the forty pounds was enofe and that I expected executyon would com oute at the time, and flould endevour by the time to provide enofe for it, but withal tould the governor it was at his liberty to remit it if he pleafed by vertue of his comityon.

Ixiii

Allfo for my beinge in prifon for not giveing bond for my good behaviour, when the feffiones came I was not broughte to my triall for that, but remanded to priffon again.

At ditto time the governor tould mee hee had put me in priffon on that account, and hee would abide by it till I would give two hundred pound bound. My anfer was I had rather ly in priffon then give bond to tempt fuch a fello as Thurton, (or fuch others) that had fworne againste me alredy, and falily, and judged it might be no feruple to him to doe the like again. And withal tould him that if his honner plefed to let mee oute of prifon, I would ingaidge myfelfe by bond to live oute of the provines, though that would be very detrementall to my conferns and by that I hoped he would have no thoughts of my mißehaveinge myfelfe, that would be detrementall to the kinges govermente here or himfelf. Not that I forupled giveinge bond for my good behaviour, though not acculed for anny thinge but for layeinge a temptatyon to fom bale minded perfon or perfons to forfware themfelves, as one had done before in another cafe relateinge to me.

May 12th. Was informed that whereas Thurton had a comityon to be priffon keeper, (and withal had vapored and faid the priffon was to good for Vaughan, and the roome that hee had fited up did intend to kepe it himfelfe and that V. fhould take his quarters where he would affigne it, and that the prifoners fhould not be waited on as Abbot had done, for he would keep them loaked up, only com morninge and eveninge) lofte his poaket booke wherein was his comityon and fundry papors of confernment.

N. B. The original of this letter and journal is in the hands of the Honorable Prefident Weare.

No. XXXII.

Copy of a letter from the governor and council to the lords of trade. [Council records.] Province of New-Hampfhire,

May it pleafe your lordfhips, May 23. 1684, S INCE Robert Wadly is returned from England having lately had an appeal difmiffed by the council board, by taking taking advantage of Mr. Randolph's absence, who was atturney for the parties, he hath put the people of this province into fuch a ferment and diforder that it is not poffible to put his majeftys commands in execucon or any ways govern them. And tho' notwithstanding in obedience to your lordships commands we have called an affembly (a copy of the proclamation for that purpose being hercin inclosed) we cannot think it prudent or fafe to let them fit; they being of the fame ill humour or worfe as when Gove went into arms, his defign being hatch'd at the time the affembly fate. And it looks more like a delign, they having those four conftables into the affembly that the kings peace may not be preferved (the whole number of the affembly being eleven :) This Wadly being formerly an affembly man and hath three fons condemned in Gove's rebellion (and himfelf now chosen again) the oldeft of them I have pardoned, one of them is dead and the other I keep in prifon till I receive your lordships further order, all the other offenders being pardoned. Major Waldron's fon is conftantly of the affembly and fpeaker (this being the third that hath been called) I with his majefties clemency do not caufe fome great mifchief to be done here. They have never given two pence* to the fupport of the government and that very rate that was made in the time of prefident. Cutt and Waldron we have according to his majefties royal commiffion continued; but do not think it fafe to publish it, unleffe we had ftrength to countenance our proceedings. This we conceived our duty to inform your lordships, and are,

Ixiv

May it pleafe your lordfhips,

Your most humble and most obedient fervants,

The appllants claim by grant from Mr. Mafon; and as for Wadley he hath been thefe fixteen days in the countrey, and tho' I have heard much of him, I have not yet feen him. EDW. CRANFIELD, ROBt. MASON, WALT. BAREFOOT, R. CHAMBERLAIN, JOHN HINKS, JAMES SHERLOCK.

To the right honble, the lords of the comittee of trade and plantacon, at Whitehall.

No. XXXIII.

Copy of a letter from Cranfield to Sir Leolune Jenkins of the fame date. May it pleafe your honour, (Council records.) W E humbly beg after your honour hath perufed this letter to the lords of the council, you would be pleafed to

• The first affembly voted two hundred pounds to the governor, but it is not certain that he accepted it though he confented to the act.

to lay it before their lordfhips and defire their lordfhips to come to fome (peedy refolution; for it is no longer in my power to promote the honour and intereft of his majefty here, without a fmall fregate to fecond his majefty's broad feal and other his royal commands. As to the pirates your honour may be affured that myfelf and the council will punifh them according to their demerits, if they fhall at any time happen to come within this jurisdiction; and carefully obey all other commands which fhall be fent unto,

May it pleafe your honour, your honour's moft humble and moft obedient fervant, EDW. CRANFIELD.

I most humbly befeech your honour by the first opportunity, to fend the king's letter to give me liberty to go off to Jamaica or Barbados for my health; finding fo great a weakness in my legs, which indifposition hath bin contracted by the feverity of the cold.

To the Right Honourable Sir Leoline Jenkins one of his majefty's principal fecretaries of flate at Whitehall. [The two preceeding papers are in the council minutes 2d Book.]

No. XXXIV.

Copy of Mr. Weare's first complaint against Cransield. To the king's most excellent majesty and the lords of his most honourable privy councill.

THE humble reprefentation of Nathanael Weare, inhabitant and planter in your majefty's province of New-Hampfhire in New-England in America, on behalf of himfelf and other your majefty's loyal fubjects, inhabitants and planters there, whofe names are fubferibed to the four annexed petitions, as follows:

1. That the hon. Edward Cranfield, Efq. your majefty's governor of the faid province, upon his first entrance on that government, in order to the enlargement of his power as governor there beyond the just bounds and limits your majefty was by your royal commission pleafed to fett him, and to engross the whole power of erecting courts, with all neceffary fees, powers and authorityes thereto into his owne hands, exclusive of the general affembly there. The faid Mr. Cranfield at the first general affembly there, when the words of his commission ranne, "And wee doe hereby give and grant unto you full " power and authority to erect or confitute and establish fuch " and ice many courts of judicature and publique justice with-" in the faid province and plantacon within your government, " as you and they shall think fit and neceffary for the hearing " and

Izvi

" and determining of all caufes, as well criminall as civill, ac-" cording to law and equity, and for awarding execucon there-" upon, with all reafonable and neceffary powers, authorityes, " fees and priviledges belonging unto them," caufed his commiffion to be entred in the councill bookes there and delivered a copy thereof to the general affembly without the words [and they], affirming those words to have been put in by mistake of the clerk in engroffing the commiffion; whereby the faid Mr. Cranfield has enhanced the fees upon tryals there to his own advantage, as will appeare in one of the articles following.

2. Although your majelty has been gratioufly pleafed by your faid commiftion to interpofe between the inhabitants of the faid collony and Mr. Robt. Mafon, pretended proprietor thereof, and to direct,

" That on non-agreement between those inhabitants and Mr. Mafon, the faid Mr. Cranfield fhould interpole, who if he could not end the differences between, was by the faid commiffion directed to transmitt to England fuch cafes impartially ftated, with his opinion and reafons on the fame, that your majelty with advice of your privy councill might heare and determine the fame.' That neverthelefs the faid Mr. Cranfield, inftead of keeping himfelf indifferent between the contending parties Mr. Mafon and the faid inhabitants, hath by purchafe or mortgage from Mr. Mafon made himfelf owner of the province: And the better to come by what he hath foe purchafed, he hath under colour of the authority of your majefty's commiffion made courts, whereof both judges and jurors have agreed with Mafon for their own lands, and fome of them have taken grants from Mafon of other mens lands. That neverthelefs this jury is continued from month to month and kept for this fervice.

That Mr. Mason has cast forty perfons on fuit by that jury, the court rejecting all pleas, and though the verdict be given for Mr. Mason according to your majesty's royal commission (which directs as before) and the judgement entered accordingly, yet upon the execution the inhabitants are turned out of their lands and houses, as it hath fared with Wm. Vaughan and others, and deprived of all substitute.

3. That the charge of every action is raifed from 20s. to 61. which is exacted in money, and though goods tendered (as ufual) the perfons are imprifoned for want of money in kind, and Mr. Cranfield himfelf takes — of the 61.

4. That the faid Mr. Cranfield under colour of trying actions, has by fetting the fees foe extraordinary, forced feverall to quitt their claimes for want of money to carry on the fuite.

ta

5. That the faid governor taking upon himfelf the power of priceing money not entrufted with him by his commiffion, hath against the agreement of the general affembly, by advice of his councill, ordered pieces of eight however wanting in their weight to pass for 6 shillings.

6. That the faid governor, without good and lawful caufe, hath taken upon him to commit feveral men to prifon, particularly Wm. Vaughan, until bonds given for their appearances and good behaviour, when nothing further objected to them.

7. That the faid governor and his council took upon them to make laws and put them in execucon without the general affembly.

S. That to prove the articles above against Mr. Cranfield, the complainants have fuccefslefsly endeavoured to procure warrants or fummons from the fecretary to fumon their witneffes to be fworne (which cannot otherwife be foe) the feeking of fuch fummons has occasioned being bound to the good behaviour, foe as the complaining of a wrong done one does, under Mr. Cranfield's management, but draw a new punishment on the afflicted, but noe manner of redrefs.

All which the faid Nath. Weare humbly lays at your majefty's feet, imploring your majefty's prefent heareing what your petitioner is able to make out of the premifes, and ordering fome commiffion to examine the truth of the refidue of the faid allegacons (fince your majefty's governor on the place will not admit of fuch evidence.) That on the return thereof your majefty's fubjects in that province may find fuch releife as to your princely wifedom fhall feeme meete.

And that in the mean time Mr. Cranfield be admonifhed not to exceed the bounds of his commiffion.

And your petitioner shall ever pray, &c.

No. XXXV.

Att the court at Hampton court, This 11th day of July, 1684.

By the king's most excellent majefty and the lords of his majefty's most honourable privy councell.

U PON reading this day at the board the peticon and complaint of Nathaniel Weare, inhabitant and planter in his majefty's province of New-Hampfhire in New-England in America, in behalfe of himfelfe and others his majefty's loyall fubjects and inhabitants and planters there, whofe names are

lxviii

are fubfcribed to the fower peticons thereto annext against Edward Cranfield efq. his majefty's governor thereof;

His majefty was pleafed to order that the faid peticon and complaint be, and they are hereby referred to the right honourable the lords comittees of this board for trade and foreigne plantacons, who are to confider thereof and to report to his majefty att this board their opinion thereupon, and then his majefty will declare his further pleafure.

Philip Lloyd.

A true coppie.

[The two preceding papers are in the hands of the Honourable Prefident Weare.]

No. XXXVI.

Letter from the lords of trade to Governor Cranfield.

FTER our hearty commendations to you. His majefty having received the petitions and complaints of divers of his fubjects inhabitence and planters of New-Hampshier against you for certine irreguler proceedinges alleged by them to bee had by you in the execution of your commiffion and adminiftration of juffice: and it being ordered in councell that the faid petitions and complaints bee examined and concidered by us that wee may report to his majefty our opinions, to the end his majefty's further pleasuer may be fignified thereupon. Wee have therefore herwith fent unto you copies of the faid petitions and reprefentations that you may return your particular anfwer thereunto with all fpeed, and that wee may the better diftinguish the truth of what is aleaged or complained of, and of fuch defence as you shall be able to make. Wee doe think fitt that all perfons whatfoever, have free libertye to depofe upon oath what they know, and to take copies of all records in thefe or any other cafes relatinge to yourfelfe or the faide province, and that the faid depofitions bee taken in wrightinge by any member of the councell or justice of the peace in that collony, whome you are duly to authorize thereunto, and as we cannot beleve that you will put any reftriction or difcouragement what foever upon the takinge and transmittinge of all neceffary proofs and records, attefted by the proper officers for the clearinge of truth in the matters complained of, foe we thinke it requifite that copies of all affidaves bee interchangeably delivered, to each party concerned as foon as they shall be taken, and fo not doubtinge of your complyance herein wee bid you hartyly farewell.

From

From the councell chamber in Whitehall this 23d day of July 1684. Your very loveing friends

Radnor. Craven. Guilford. C S. Rochefter. L. Jeukins.

To our very lovinge friend Edward Cranfield efq. lieutenant governor and commander in chief of his majefty's province of New-Hampfhier in New-England. A true copy, William Blathwayt.

[This paper is in the council minutes 2d book.]

No. XXXVII.

At the court at Whitehall the 8th of Aprill, 1685. By the king's moft excellent majefty and the lords of his majefty's moft honourable privy councill.

U PON reading a report from the right honourable the lords of the comittee of trade and plantacons in the words following:

May it pleafe your majefty,

Having received an order in council dated the 11th of July laft, upon the petition and complaint of Nathanael Weare, inhabitant of your majefty's province of New-Hampshire in New-England, in the behalfe of himfelfe and others your majefty's subjects and planters there, against Edward Cranfield, Efq. your majefty's governor of that province, whereby wee were directed to report our opinions upon the faid complaint Wee did accordingly transmit a copy thereof to the faid Edward Cranfield, and upon receiving his anfwer, and hearing what the complainants could alleage and make out against him ; Wee find that the faid Edward Cranfield has not purfued his instructions in reference to the propriety of foile which Robert Mason, Efg. claimes in that province, inasmuch as the faid Edward Cranfield by his inftructions is directed that in cafe the . inhabitants of New-Hampshire should refuse to agree with the faid Mafon, he fhould interpofe and endeavour to reconcile all differences, which if he could not bring to effect he was then to fend into England fuch cafes fairly and impartially flated, together with his opinion, for your majefties determinacon; whereas inflead thereof he has caufed courts to be held in New-Hampfhire, and permitted titles of land to be decided there, and unreasonable cofts to be allow'd, without first representing the particular cafes to your majeftie. As to the complaint of his having raifed the value of coines against the laws of the affembly

lxx

affembly there, wee are most humbly of opinion that although it be your majefty's undoubted prerogative to fet and determine the price and value of coynes within your dominions, yet your majefty's governor ought not to have made any alterations therein without having received your majefty's fpeciall directions. All which wee humbly propofe may be fignified to him by your majefty's order, and that the differences depending between the faid Robert Mafon and planters in that part of New-Hampfhire may be at length decided. Wee further offer that William Vaughan, one of the complaynants attending this board, may have opportunity allowed him of appealing to your majeftie within a fortnight from all verdicts and judgements given in New-Hampshire in his private cafe, upon hearing whereof and by the relation it has with others your majelty will be beft able to judge of the right and title of the faid Robert Mafon to that part of the province of New-Hampfhire aforefaid, and upon bringing the faid appeale that all proceedings at law relating to the faid title may forthwith ceafe until your majefty's further pleafure be knowne.

All which is neverthelefs molt humbly fubmitted.

ROCHESTER, ARLINGTON, HALIFAX, P. OXFORD, CLARENDON, C.P.S. CHESTERFIELD. BEAUFORT, Council Chamber, 27 March, 1685.

HIS majeftie in councill was gracioufly pleafed to approve of the faid report, and to order that his majefty's pleafure therein be fignified to Mr. Cranfield accordingly. It was alfoe ordered that Mr. William Vaughan be allowed to appeale to his majeftie within a fortnight from all verdicts and judgements given in his private cafe in New-Hampshire, according to the said report. A true copy,

WM. BRIDGEMAN.

[The preceding paper is in the hands of the hon. prefid. Weare.]

No. XXXVIII.

FTER our hearty comendations unto you, we have in obedience to his majefty's comands, received and examined your answer to the complaint of Nathaniel Wear, inhabitant of his faid province of New-Hampshire, in behalfe of himfelfe and others his majefty's fubjects and planters there, and having likewife heard what the faid Wear could bring in evidence of the faid complaints, and thercupon reported our opinions to his majefty, Wee are comanded hereby to fignifie unto

ff

unto you, that you have not purfued your inftructions in reference to the propriety of the foyle which Robert Mafon, Efq. claymes in the province of New-Hampshire, inafmuch as you were directed that in cafe the inhabitants of New-Hampshire should refuse to agree with the faid Mafon you should interpole, and endevour to reconcile all differances, which if you could not bring to effect, you were then to fend to his majefty fuch cafes fairely and impartially flated, together with your opinion, for his majefty's determination; in flead whereof you have caufed courts to be held in New-Hampshire, and permitted titles of land to be decided there, and unreafonable cofts to be allowed, without first representing the perticuler cafes to his majelty. And yet although it be his majefty's undoubted prerogative to fet and determine the price and vallew of coyne with in his majefty's dominions, you have not done well in directing any alterations therein without his majefty's fpeciall order : In both which you have been wanting in your duty to his majefty. But that the chiefe occasion of dispute that province may be removed, we are farther directed to acquint you that as to the differances depending between the faid Robt. Malon and the planters, his majefty hath been gracioully pleafed by his order in councill, dat. the 8th of this inftant Aprill, to permit William Vaughan, one of the complainants attending this board, to appeale to his majefty with in a fortnight from the date of the faid order from all the verdicts and judgements given in New-Hampshire in his private cafe, upon hearing whereof, and by the relation it has with others, his majefty will be beft able to judge of the right and title of the faid Robt. Mafon to that part of the province of New-Hampshire : And his majefty doth likewife thinke fit that upon bringing the faid appeale by the faid William Vaughan, all proceedings at law relating to the faid title doe forth with ceafe until his majesty's pleasure be known. Whereof you are to take notice and to govern your felfe accordingly. And fo we bid you very heartily farewell. From the councill chamber at Whitehall, the 29th day of Aprill, 1685. Your loving friends,

(Signed.)

W. Cant. Guilford, C. S. Rochefter, Halifax, P. Clarindine, C. P. S. Beaufort, Lindfhy, Arlington, Hunington; Bridgwater, Chefterfield, Sunderland, Craven, Aylefbery, Midleton, Godolphan, J. Ernle, Geo. Jaffreys. Directed Directed to our loving friend Edw. Cranfield, Efq. lieut. governor and comander in chiefe of his majefty's province of New-Hampfhire in N. England.

No. XXXIX.

A FTER our hearty comendation : His majefty hath received the petition and appeale of Wm Vaughan, inhabitant of New-Hampshire, from feverall verdicts and judgments given against him in that province, which being refered to us by his majefty's order in councill of the 29th of Aprill laft, that we should examine the allegations thereof, and make report of the fame, with our opinion thereupon, wee have accordingly appointed to heare all parties concerned in the feverall cafes therein contained, on the first Tuesday after midfummer day which shall be in the yeare 1686: To which end we herewith fend you a coppie of the faid petition and appeale, which you are to communicate unto Robt. Mafon, efq. and to all others whome it may concern, who are to take notice thereof, and to give their attendance at that time either by themfelves or by their agents fufficiently impowered by them, to answer the faid appeale, and to submit to such judgment hereupon as his majefty in councill shall be thought fitt. And you are likewife to permit all perfons to have free acceffe to, and take coppies of all records with in that province relating to the matters in difpute, and to depofe upon oath what they know concerning the fame, which depositions are to be taken in writing by any of the members of the council or juffices of the peace in that province, without any hinderance or difcouragment whatfoever, in order to be transmited unto us, for the clearing of truth in that appeale. And fo we bid you heartily farewell. From the councill chamber in Whitehell, the 22d Your loving friends, day of May 1685.

Gilford, C. S. Rochefter, Halifax, Pr. Clarindiae, C.P.S. Ormond, Sunderland.

Lieut. gou. of New-Hampfhire, or com- ? ander in chiefe for the time being.

[The two preceding papers are in the poffestion of John Penhallow, equire.]

No. XL.

To the king's most excellent majefty.

The humble petition and addrefs of your majefty's dutiful and loyal fubjects inhabiting in the province of New-Hampfhire in New-England. [1685.]

ff2

Moft

Moft humbly fleweth,

T HAT your majefty's loyal fubjects of this province, had for more than fifty yeares been peaceably poffeffed of the lands lately challenged by Mr. Mafon, and having found the fame an utter defert and foreft land, with exceffive coft and hard labour reduced the fame to a tollerable fupport of our felves and familyes and lately maintained the fame with a vaft expence of our effates and lives against the incurfions of a barbarous enemy who had otherwife reduced the fame to utter confusion.

That upon his late majefty's declaration and order for the fettlement and government of this province, wee accounted ourfelves happy for that therein we were by his faid majefty's princely grace and favour, faved from the unreafonable demands which Mr Mafon might have made upon us, by the limitations in the commiffion for government, wherein it was provided that the faid prefident or governor for the time being, thould ufe all methods by his good advice to fettle and quiet the people in the matter of Mr. Mafon's title, or otherwife impartially to flate the cafe and report the fame to his majefty, that a finall determination might thereupon have been made by his majefty in councell, which if it had been duely attended had we doubt not long fince by your majefty's juftice and fayour putt us into an happy eflate of quiet and repofe.

That notwithflanding his faid majefty's command and limitation, the faid Mr. Mafon hath been allowed to purfue many of the inhabitants, in feverall fuites and actions, wherein the government have taken to themfelves power of an abfolute judgment without any regard had to the faid commands and limitations, and with that excefs and rigor as to affigne the faid Mr. Mafon fometimes tenn pounds, other times twenty pounds cofls, when damages have been fometimes not above two fhillings, very feldom ten according to the orders and linitations abovefaid.

That the faid Mr. Mafon beyond and befide the faid quit rents, and directly againft his majefty's order in the faid commiffion, wherein the tennure of improved lands is affured to the ter-tenants upon payment of the faid quitt rent, or otherwife as his majefty in councill fhould determine, hath difpofed or given away the fee to feveral perfons of feveral lands which were longe before his challenge fenced and improved by others, to the great damage and injury of his majefty's good fubjects, befide many other irregularities in the management of the government, to the greate oppreffion and defruction of trade within within your majefty's province, and the utter impoverishing thereof.

Ixxir

That for the laft two yeare's and upward dureing the whole management of Mr. Mafon's fuits at law againft your majefty's fubjects, there hath been generally one jury returned to ferve all the faid iffnes with little alterations and almoit conftantly one foreman, (who for that end wee are apt to feare) was early complyed with by Mr. Mafon for all the lands in his owne poffeffion formerly, with addition of feveral other lands to his owne profifit.

That notwithflanding your majefly's late gracious order, and inhibiting of any further procedure in the cafe of Mr. Mafon's title, until the caufe were brought before your majefly in councill, Mr. Walter Barefoote who was left deputy governour, hath fince the arrival of your majefly's commands permitted executions to be extended, and perfons thereupon imprifoned in caufes concerning the faid Mafon's title, with exceffive and unreafonable cofts and damages.

And laftly, whereas your majefty hath upon complaint made against the irregular proceedings done and fuffered, been graciously pleafed to permit Mr. William Vaughan, one of the principal inhabitants and merchants in this province, to take his appeale to your majefty in conneill for reliefe, against feverall oppreflive judgments, one whereof referrs to the title of his lands within this province holden in the fame forme with the reft of his majefty's good fubjects here, wee do with all humble gratitude acknowledge your majefty's jullice and favour herein and for that the purfuance and iffue of the faid appeale will therefore neceffarily affect the whole province and be introductory to the determination of all Mr. Mafon's challenge, wee have judged it our duty in most humble manner to prostrate ourfelves at your majefty's feete, and have therefore betrufted and fully impowered Mr. Nathaniel Weare one of the inhabitants of this your majefty's province our agent to by before your majefty and most honorable privy council the common cafe and condition of your majefty's poore and diffreffed fubjects in this province, who is fully inftructed humbly to reprefent the fame, and the arbitrary and fevere opprefiions wee have lahoured under, from which wee are well affured of reliefe by your majefty's most just and gracious determination, and to make an humble and entire fubmission of ourfelves unto your majefty's pleafure, most humbly befeeching that wee may hence forward have our perfect and immediate dependence upon your majefty and the crown of England as well in the tennure of

Ixxv

of our lands as in the affairs of government, which gracious influence of your majefty is only able to revive and reftore this province to its former flourishing eftate and growth, whereby we may at length be made ferviceable to your most facred majefty and the crowne which wee are devoted to ferve, refolving therein to be exemplary to all other your majefty's fubjects in the territory of New-England, and for which wee fhall ever pray, &c.

[This paper is in the hands of the hon. Prefident Weare.]

No. XLI.

At the court at Whitehall the 19th of November 1686, Prefent, The king's most excellent Majefty. (L.S.) E. of Plymouth, Lord Chancellor,

Ld Treafurer,

Ld Prefident,

Duke of Ormond,

D. of Albermarle,

D. of Beauford,

Ld Chamberlain,

Earl of Oxford,

E. of Huntington,

E. of Peterborough,

E. of Craven,

E of Powis,

E. of Morray, E. of Middleton, E. of Melford,

E. of Tyrconnell,

Vifcount Stauronberg,

Vife. Prefton,

Ld Bp of Durham,

Ld Arrundell of Wardour,

Ld Dartmouth,

Ld Dover.

Mr.Chancellor of the exchequer,

E. of Nottingham,

Mr. Chancellor of the Dutchy.

TJ PON reading this day at the board a report from the bonble the lords of the committee of council for trade and for ign plantations, bearing date the 6th day of November indant, fetting forth, that in obedience to his majefty's orders in council of the 25th of April 1685, and the 3d of July laft, they have examined the appeal of Wm. Vaughan from a verdict and judgment given against him on the 6th day of November 1683, in his majefty's courts in New-Hampfhire in New-England, at the fuit of Robert Mafon Efq. as proprietor of that province for certain lands and tenements in Portfmouth in the faid province, and that they having heard the faid Robert Malon and Nathaniel Weare attorney for the appellant and his council learned in the law, are humbly of opinion that his majefty be pleafed to ratify and affirm the verdict and judgment aforefaid.

His majefty in council was pleafed to approve of their lordthips faid opinion and report, and to order the faid verdict and judgment given against the faid William Vaughan on the fixth' day day of November 1683, in his majefty's courts in New-Hampfhire in New-England, at the fuit of Robt. Mafon, efq as proprietor of that prouince, for certaine lands and tenements in Portfmouth in faid province, be ratified and affirmed, and they are hereby ratified and affirmed accordingly.

WM. BRIDGEMAN.

Vera copia, per Richard Partridge, clerk. Copy as on file in the cafe, Allen vs Waldron, Exam. per Geo. Jaffrey, Cl.

No. XLII.

Four letters or petitions from John Hogkins, commonly called Hakins, one of the fachems of the Penaceok Indians. [From the originals in the Recorder's office.]

Honour gouernor my friend, May 15th, 1685. YOU my friend I defire your worfhip and your power, becaufe I hope you can do fom great matters this one. I am poor and naked and I have no men at my place becaufe I afraid allwayes Mohogs he will kill me every day and night. If your worfhip when pleafe pray help me you no let Mohogs kill me at my place at Malamake river called Panukkog and Nattukkog, I will fubmit your worfhip and your power. And now I want pouder and fuch alminifhon, fhatt and guns, becaufe I have forth at my hom and I plant theare.

This all Indian hand, but pray you do confider your JOHN HOGKINS. humble fervant, Simon Detogkom, Peter > Robin, Joseph X Trafke, Mr. Jorge + Roddunnonukgus King | Hary, Mr. Hope × Hoth, Sam | Linis, John --- Toneh, Wapeguanat | Saguachuwafhat John a Canowa, Old Robin 1, John x Owamolimmin, Mamanofgues > Andra, Natonill + Indian.

Another from the fame.

Honour Mr. Governor, May 15, 1685. NOW this day I com your houfe, I want fe you, and I bring my hand at before you I want thake hand to you if your worthip when pleafe then you receve my hand then thake your hand and my hand. You my friend becaufe I remember at old time when live my grant father and grant mother then Englishmen com this country, then my grant father and Englishmen they make a good govenant, they friend allwayes, my grant father leving at place called Malamake rever, other name chef chef Natukkog and Panukkog, that one rever great many names, and I bring you this few Ikins at this first time I will give you, my friend. This all Indian hand. T.e reft as before.]

JOHN + HAWKINS, Sagamor.

Another from the fame.

Pleafe your worfhip,

I WILL intreat you matther you my friend, now this if my Indian he do you long pray you no put your law because fom my Indins fooll, fom men much love drunk then he no know what he do, may be he do mifchif when he drunk if fo pray you muft let me know what he done becaufe I will ponif him what he have done, you, you my friend if you defire my bufinefs, then fent me I will help you if I can.

Mr. JOHN HOGKINS.

Another from the fame.

Mr. Mafon,

PRAY I want speake you a few words if your worship when please because I come parfas [on purpose] I will speake this governor but he go away fo he fay at last night, and fo far I underfland this governor his power that your power now, fo he speake his own mouth. Pray if you take what I want pray com to me becaufe I want go hom at this day.

Your humble fervant,

May 16, 1685.

JONN HOGKINS, Indian fogmor.

No. XLIII.

Letier from Capt. Hooke, advising of danger from the Indians. Capt. Barefoot, Sir,

HIS is to informe you that just now there cam to me a poft, wherein I am fully informed that there is just ground to feare that the heathen have a fouden defyne against us; they havinge lately about Sacoe affronted our English inhabitants there by threatening of them, as alfoe by killinge theyre doggs; but more pertickularly in that on Friday, Saturday, and Lord's day laft they have gathered all theyre corne, and are removed both pack and packidge. A word to the wife is enough. The old proverb is, forwarned forearmed. Myfelf and reft in commission with us are fourthwith fettinge ourfelves in a poflure, and tomorrow our counfell meet for to confider what is needful to be done. Not els, beinge in great haft, butt remayn, Sir, your obliged fervant,

FRANCIS, HOOKE. Kittery, 13 Aug. 1685. No. XLIV.

IXXVIII

No. XLIV.

Report of perfons fent to enquire into the above matter. (No date or fignature.)

To the honourable Walter Barefoot, Efq. and the councell of Great-Ifland.

Gentlemen,

A Ccordinge to your command and order to me, bearinge date the 2d inftant, I have to the utmoft of my power obferved every particular. Upon our arrival there on Friday night they were all very courteous to us, and in the morninge my orders were read which was very kindly received by them, and the reafons why they deferted the places where they ufually abode among the Englifh was,

1. That four Indians came from fort Albany to the fort at Pennicooke and informed them that all the Mohawkes did declare they would kill all Indians from Uncas at mount Hope to the eaflward as far as Pegypfcut.

2. The reafon of Natombamat, fagamore of Saco, departed his place was, becaufe the fame news was brought there as himfelf declared upon reading my orders at Pennicooke.

3. Natombamat, fagamore of Saco, is gone to carry the Indians downe to the fame place where they were before departcd from us, on Sunday morninge, and defired Capt. Hooke to meet him at Saco five days after.

4. Both fagamores of Pennicook, viz. Wannilanfet and Mefandowit, the latter of which is come downe, did then declare they had no intention of war, neither indeed are they in any pollure for war, beinge about 24 men befides fquaws and papofes.

5. Afking the reafon why they did not come among the English as formerly, they answered they thought if the Mohawkes came and fought them and they should fly for fuccour to the English, that then the Mohawkes would kill all the English for harboring them.

No. XLV.

Articles of peace agreed upon the eighth day of September, in the year of our Lord 1685, between the fubjects of his majefty king James the fecond inhabiting the provinces of New-Hampfhire and Maine, and the Indians inhabiting the faid provinces.

T is agreed there shall be for the future a lasting peace, friendship and kindness between the English and the Indians, and that no injury shall be offered by the one to the other. That That if any Englishman doth any injury to an Indian, upoa complaint made to any justice of peace the Englishman shall be punished, and the Indian shall have prefent satisfaction made him. And if any Indian doth an injury to the English or threaten to do any injury, the fagamore to whom that Indian doth belong, shall punish him in prefence of one of the king's justices of the peace.

That if any other Indian shall defigne any mischief or harme to the English, the Indians inhabiting the aforesaid provinces shall give prefent notice thereof to the English, and shall assist the English.

That fo long as the aforefaid Indians shall continue in friendship with the English, they shall be protected against the Mohawks, or any others, and may sreely and peaceably fet downe by the English near any their plantations.

> Robert Mafon, Robert Elliot, John Davis,

Walter Barefoote, Henry Green, Francis Hooke.

The mark of [Melandowit.

The mark + of Wahowah, alias Hopehood.

'The mark & of Tecamorifick, alias Jofias.

The mark o of John Nomony, alias Upfawah.

The mark W of Umbesnowah, alias Robin.

We whole names are hereunto written do freely confent and engage to comply and perform the within written articles as our neighbours have done, and do further engage as followeth:

Laftly, That the Indians fhall not at any time hereafter remove from any of the Englifh plantations with their wives and children before they have given fair and timely notice thereof unto the Englifh, from whence they do fo remove; and in cafe the faid Indians fhall remove with their wives and children without fuch fair and timely notice given to the Englifh, that then it fhall be taken pro confeffo that the Indians do intend and defigne war with the Englifh, and do thereby declare that the peace is broken; and it fhall and may be lawful to and for the Englifh, or any on their behalfs, to apprehend the faid Indians with their wives and children, and to use acts of hoftility againft them until the fagamores fhall make full fatisfaction for all charge and damage that may arise thereby.

John Davis,

Francis Hooke,

The mark of Netambomet, fagam. of Saco. The mark χ of Wahowah, alias Hopehood.

The

The mark) of Ned Higgon.

The mark o of Newcome.

Kancamagus, alias John Hawkins, fagamore, figned

this instrument, 19 7ber, 1685, his G mark.

Bageffon, alias Joseph Traske, O his mark.

And agreed to all within written.

Teftis, JOSEPH RAYN.

No. XLVI.

Portfmouth, the 7th of Sept. 1687.

To the much honred cort now fiting in faid Portfmouth, for the prouinc of Newhampfhir,

The humbel petifion of William Houchins, on of his magefty fubgicts belonging to faid prouinc, humbly feweth for aduic, ade and releft in his deplorabell effat and condition.

THAT whareas it has plefed God to lay his hand uppon him, and that has is in further him, and that hee is in fuch a condition not being abell to help him felff, as to the geting a liuing or proquering help or remedy for my deftemper, being low in the world, and having ufeed all the menes and aduic pofabell for nere fiue year paft; having bin informed by fom that it is a deftemper caled the king's euell*, fo can not be qureed but by his magefty. Hauing littell or nothing in this world, if my liff should go for it am not abell to trancfport my felff for England to his magelty for releff; thareffor humbly and hartly beg the help, ade and afiltanc of this honred cort, that thay would fo far commiferat my deplorabell condition as order fom way ether by breff or any other way that youer honers shall think most meet to moue the harts of all criften people with compation to besto fomthing uppon mee, to trancfport mee for England, whar, God willing, I intend forth with to goo iff polabell, but

* This petition is inferted merely as a curiofity. It was a received opinion in that day that the diffemper called the king's evil could be cured only by the royal touch. The following advertifement taken from an old London gazette is of the fame nature.

"Thefe are to give notice, that the weather growing warme, his majefly will not touch any more for the evil till towards Michaelmafs. And his majefly's chirurgeons defire to prevent his majefly being defrauded, that greater care be taken for the future in registring certificates given to fuch as come to be toucked." Lond. Gaz. May 29, 1682. but without help not pofabell. This humbly leuing my felff in the fad condition I am in, trufting in God and youer houers for help and aduice, fubfcrib youer por deplorabell faruant, WILLEAM HOUCHINS.

No. XLVII.

A letter from Secretary Addington to Major Waldron, apprizing him of his danger from the Indians.

[The original in the hands of the hon. Thomas Westbrook Waldron.]

Honble Sir, Bofton, 27 June 1689. T HE governor and councill haveing this day received a letter from Major Henchman of Chelmsford, that fome Indians are come into them who report that there is a gathering of fome Indians in or about Penecooke, with defigne of milchiefe to the Englifh. Among the faid Indians one Hawkins is faid to be a principle defigner, and that they have a particular defigne againft yourfelf and Mr. Peter Coffin, which the councill thought it neceffary prefently to difpatch advice thereof to give you notice, that you take care of your own fafegnard, they intending to endeavour to betray you on a pretention of trade.

Pleafe forthwith to fignify the import hereof to Mr. Coffin and others as you shall thinke necessary, and advise of what informations you may at any time receive of the Indians motions. By order in councill,

ISA. ADDINGTON, Secy.

For Major Richard Waldren and Mr. Peter Coffin, or either of them, att Cochecha; thefe with all poffible fpeed.

No. XLVIII.

Copy of an address of the general court to Queen Anne, Decem. 6, 1709. [Council minutes.]

To the queen's most excellent majefty.

The addrefs of your majefty's most dutiful and loyal fubjects, the governor, council, aud reprefentatives of your majefty's province of New-Hampshire in New-England, convened in general affembly,

Moft

lxxxii

Most humbly sheweth,

T HAT in the midft of the great diffreffes, that your majefty's moft dutifuland loyal fubjects of this your majefty's province were involved in, by the frequent incurfions of our ill neighbours the French of Canada and their dependent Indians, to the great hurt of our plantations and fettlements, your facred majefty has been pleafed of your royal bounty and compaffion to fupply us with a number of cannon and ftores for our defence, the receipt whereof has invigorated and encouraged us in the defence of our frontiers, and our marches againft the Indians in their feeret receffes in the woods, which are always and ftill fuccefsfully put forward by your majefty's governor for our fecurity, to our perfect fatisfaction.

That while we were thus defending ourfelves and families, againft the common enemy of the repofe of all your majefty's Britifh fubjects in the plantations abroad as well as in Europe, we were purfued by the challenge of Mr. Allen for the lands and foil under our feet, which we have this fixty years defended with our lives and eftates, as well as the affiltance of our good neighbours of your majefty's colony of the Maffachufetts, your majefty of your royal and princely regard to us has difmiffed that challenge, which will forever encourage us to our utmost power to defend this your majefty's province, fince we may now hope to leave our children in the poffeffion of the country, with an entire dependance upon your majefty and your royal fucceflors without the danger of any further unjuft challenge from those perfons that have to long difturbed us with their claims.

And whereas your majefty out of a gracious regard to this and other your provinces in thefe parts of America, was pleafed to form a defign against the French fettlements at Canada and Nova-Scotia the last fummer, but a more important fervice in Europe requiring your majefty's forces which were intended hither, whereby that defign is laid afide for the prefent; we most humbly pray your majefty that it may confis with your royal pleasure to revive the faid defign, and that the expedition lately intended may be profecuted feasonably the next spring; and that your majefty's arms in America may have a glorious success as in Europe, to the utter confusion of your enemies, and lasting repose of all your majefty's good subjects inhabiting this continent. We most humbly render our everlasting praifes to Almighty God for your majesty's most glorious successes against the tyranny and usurpation of the French king and heartily pray for your majesty's long life and happy reign and the continnuance of the protestant successful for the benefit of your majesty's subjects of Great Britain, of all your majesty's dominions and plantations, and of all Europe who have had the unspeakable benefit of your majesty's unparalleled reign.

We are your majefty's most loyal and obedient fubjects,

Mark Hunking, fpeaker. Signed in prefence and by order of the Houfe of Reprefentatives. Signed in the prefence and by order of the Council.

Portfmouth, in New-Hampshire, 6th December, 1709.

END OF THE FIRST VOLUME.

